Wedell, a Good Flier.
Nine Jump Together.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE DEATH OF James R. Wedell, a flier who held the world's record for land-flying, means a serious loss to this country. When only a boy, Wedell bought an old, broken down plane, sold as junk, repaired it, flew to Army headquarters seeking a chance to fight and fly in France. Told, "You can't possibly fly, because you have only one eye," he replied:

"Why can't I? How do you suppose I got here?"

He was an airplane designer, of real genius, a skillful builder, as well as one of the greatest pilots in the world. His land plane record was 306 miles an hour, and when he died he was working on a machine with which he hoped to win the London-to-Melbourne race next October.

IF NUDIST foolishness lasts long enough, and foolish nudists have money enough, Mr. Maurice Allard, who has made himself president of the "nature's recreative association," intends to take a hundred and sixty nudists to lovely Vanna Vanna Island in the South Seas. It will cost each nudist one thousand dollars to go there, and, for the sake of peace, they must all be married and take their wives.

Being married and taking their wives along under nudist conditions may not mean absolute peace. That remains to be seen.

ONCE ON THE island, Mr. Allard assures them, there will be no more expense. They will live on cocoanuts, mangoes, guavas, pineapples, breadfruit, turtles, crabs, shrimps, fish.

The owner of Vanna Vanna wishes to sell. The nudists also will wish to sell, after they have eaten crabs and cocoanuts for a while.

MOSCOW NEWSPAPERS accuse Japan of arousing hatred against Russia, mentioning an anti-Soviet film called "The Supreme Will," displayed in Japanese theaters.

The picture shows Russian airplanes attacking Tokio, and mentions the fact that 100,000 Japanese killed in the Russo-Japanese War "have not been sufficiently avenged." The important Russian newspaper, Pravda, says:

"Japanese imperialism does not hesitate to use dirty methods to slander the Soviet union."

That is fighting language.

If wise, Japan will avoid war with Russia, since war would change that "Tokio bombing" moving picture into a reality.

Also Japan cannot reasonably hope to conquer the Russia of today. The allied powers of Europe were not able to break down the Soviet government in its infancy. The Japanese, a great people, can hardly believe themselves able to do what the European allies could not do.

If wise, Russia will also refrain from any steps precipitating war. They are doing well now, and at the end of a war they would learn—as this foolish nation did after the big war—that it does not pay.

IN CHINA, big country with the biggest population, things are done in a big way. In Fukien province nine young Chinese girls, from thirteen to nineteen, all suffering from unrequited love, tied themselves together, jumped into the river. All were drowned.

Under old Chinese customs, some of the nine might have been thrown into the river as babies, as "surplus girls."

THE REV. DR. SEARLE, in New York's Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, expressed the opinion that God must be brooding over the American people, whose dollars, engraved "In God We Trust," are spent for battleships while thousands lack the necessities of life. Dr. Searle wondered what God thought of the world in which nations had spent sixty thousand million dollars on armament since the end of the World War.

"What does God think of us" is an interesting question. Perhaps an accurate answer would be:

"He thinks as little of us as an intelligent man thinks of ants fighting each other in a garden path."

It would be painful to think that the Creator of the universe must worry about the individual foolishness of so many hundreds of thousands of millions of be-

MISS ELLEN TUCK FRENCH . . JOHN JACOB ASTOR'S "TUCKY"

Miss French, the freckled bridesmaid-to-be who's apparently to get th bridegroom, concerned today with illness of her finance, John Jacob Astor III, 21, whose's so ill (cold) that one aunt expressed alarm over whether he'll be able to keep the wedding date.

'FISTIC ADONIS' FLUNKS '400'

You can't keep the Astor family off Page 1. Here's why:

1—Young John Jacob Astor III went down with a severe cold while top-notch socialites were gathering at Newport for his elaborate marriage to Miss Ellen Tuck French, scheduled for Saturday.

International News Service.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 26.—While "the 400'," began arriving today for the wedding of John Jacob Astor, III, and Miss Ellen Tuck French on Saturday, the bridegroom-to-be was suffering from a cold.

Despite his reported indisposition, arrangements were made at his home for a tea late this afternoon at which wedding presents will be displayed. A detective was on guard.

News of young Astor's illness was confirmed here following publication of an exclusive story today in the New York Evening Journal which said the youthful descendant of the country's first big pelt and fur man is passing the hours away morosely, fighting to conquor a hacking cough and an erratic temperature. It added:

"At his side are anxious relatives, physicians, a private nurse and a corps of attendants. His aunt, Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, already has expressed alarm over

New Orleans Shuts Gambling Joints

NEW ORLEANS, June 26.—(AP.)—All gambling places, both for dice and card games, were closed down last night throughout the city.

Rumors flew that the state militia was being mobilized and raids were in store, and the gambling was stopped in so-called "wide open" New Orleans. Enforcement of state laws against gambling was hinted the other day by Senator Huey P. Long.

DEDHAM, Mass., June 26.—Norma Millen, 19-year-old bride of a machine-gunner bandit, was pictured in her cross-examination today by the District Attorney as a lookout in one murder and the "finger lady" in another staged by her husband, Murton, and his pals.

In a terrific verbal pounding by Prosecutor Edmund Dewing, at her trial as accessory in the Needham bank robbery and killings, the doll-faced preacher's daughter sought refuge in tears frequently, had hysteircs and collapsed twice on the witness stand.

She admitted she has "lost a ring" in a theater in Lynn some time before the Paramount Theater there was held up and C. Fred Sumner, bill poster, was slain by the Millen brothers—Murton and Irving—and Abe Faber.

SOBS OUT ADMISSION

Sobbing and hesitatingly, she finally made the admission of the loss of the ring. However, she insisted she did not know what theater or what date it was.

The District Attorney sought to show that she "put the finger on"—or scouted the theater—the night before the holdup. He also attempted to show she actually WASHINGTON, Pa., June 26.—Mrs. George H. Bartholomew, society matron and college graduate, will stand by her husband, physical director at Washington and Jefferson College, charged with murder.

This development was made known today as Bartholomew waived a preliminary hearing in the death of George Thomas Manis, 23-year-old female impersonator.

Bartholomew's wife and mother of his three children visited him in his cell at the County Jail and pledged her loyalty. She told her mate that she believed his story that he had killed Manis in a scuffle arising out of the female impersonator's alleged attempts to blackmail him.

WEEP TOGETHER

The wife, who had been taken by friends to a secret retreat following Bartholomew's arrest, returned to her home last Tuesday and the next day went to her husband's cell. It was their first meeting since the burly physical instructor's arrest.

Mrs. Bartholomew rushed forward with open arms. Her prisoner-husband embraced her. Both wept.

After this display of emotion had passed, Bartholomew brightened considerably. His wife's visit made him more cheerful.

He was shown every consideration by authorities today. He was not required to leave jail for the preliminary hearing before Alderman John F. Carmichael.

This concession was made after Robert E. Burnside, chief counsel for Bartholomew, had conferred with Assistant District Attorney Donald R. Hart and had advised him that any possible technicalities arising from Bartholomew's non-appearance would be waived.

HELD FOR COURT

The prisoner was held for the August grand jury, remaining in jail without bond temporarily. Counsel indicated that an attempt to obtain his release on bail would be made.

Burnside insisted today that Bartholomew would fight to the

GERMAN CONSUL HERE GUARDED

Loibl said he supposed the guard was for him. Yesterday several Communist organizations visited his downtown office with demands that Ernest Thalmann, Communist leader in Germany, be released from prison.

The consul said that Acting Police Supt. Jacob Dorsey telephoned to ask about reports of disorder—of which Loibl said there were none.

The delegation, including representatives of Unemployment Council, International Labor Defense, Small Home and Landowners Federation and International Workers, requested their letters be forwarded to Germany's President Von Hindenburg.

They demanded that Thalmann and 200,000 other prisoners who they said were being held for political purposes, be released. Thalmann was originally arrested when the Reichstag was fired and although acquitted has not been freed.

Comedian, 2 Others Die in Plane Crash

CARLSBAD, Czecho-Slovakia, June 26.—(INS.)—Max Pallenberg, famous European comedian, was killed with another passenger and the pilot when a tri-motored plane crashed near here today. FATE OF PWA LOAN RESTS ON PARLEY

U. S. Warns Objections Must Be Settled This Week

Unless the dispute over the imposition of tolls on the Liberty Tubes is amicably settled when a committee representing the South Hills protestants meets with the County Commissioners this week, Allegheny County will get none of the $30,000,000 it has asked of the Public Works Administration.

Setting Saturday, June 30, as the deadline for applications for funds from the PWA, word came from the office of Administrator Harold L. Ickes that applications in dispute on that date will be discarded. The application of the Allegheny County Authority has been temporarily set aside because the news reached Washington that objection had been made.

OFFICIAL COMMENTS

An official in Ickes' office said:

"The administration has no sentiment in this matter. If the people of Allegheny County cannot get together before June 30, then the funds will be allocated elsewhere. There are too many worthy projects pending to permit funds to be tied up over a local project and the administration does not have the time to weigh the merits of the objections."

The committee planning to see the Commissioners is headed by L. T. Stevenson and includes D. W. Baker, of Mt. Lebanon; Edward C. Emmerling and Ray R. Pollitt, of Dormont; James R. Galbraith, of Brookline; Elmer E. Harter, Jr., of Beechview; S. V. Barton, of Castle Shannon, and P. Lewis, of Overbrook.

They will stand pat in opposition to the tolls, Attorney George P. Kountz announced yesterday.

M'NAIR PREDICTS RIOTS

Mayor McNair predicted riots the first day the county attempts to collect tolls at the tubes and promised if any of the rioters were arrested, he would free them "if he was on the bench."

The prediction was made at a meeting last night in the Overbrook Municipal Building. He added:

"Buck McGovern thinks he's running the county. Well, those tubes are in the city, not in the county, and I'm going to have a thing or two to say about the City of Pittsburgh for the next few years if they don't put me in jail. They've been trying to do that for some time, but I'm just one step ahead of them."

Tilly Loses! Divorce Goes To Husband

LONDON, June 26.—(AP.)—A jury hearing the divorce action of Edward Frank Willis James against Tilly Losch James, former Viennese dancer, today granted him a decree nisi. The divorce will not become absolute for six months.

The jury held that the husband's charge of misconduct with Prince Sedge Abolensky, former husband of Alice Astor, had been proved. The counter-charge of cruelty brought by Mrs. James was not substantiated.

Strange emotional conflicts in the married life of the couple had been called to the attention of the jury by Sir Boyd Merriman, the judge in summing up evidence of the trial which had been an eight-day sensation. As a fashionable crowd of spectators hung on every word, Sir Boyd said:

"Their temperaments were what has been described as artistic, sometimes as nervy, sometimes as high strung and often as neurotic."

The court today took into the record a letter written by Mrs. James which, allegedly, contained a passage she had "married the little Englishman, but that it is a joke which cannot last.

Mrs. James called her husband domineering and argumentative, and said he ordered her about. The husband retorted that she had called him "a little louse" and was contemptous toward him.

MRS. GENE TUNNEY

STORK VISITS TUNNEY'S WIFE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Mrs. Gene Tunney, wife of the former heavyweight boxing champion, gave birth to her second boy at the Presbyterian Hospital here today.

The event took place at 7:44 a. m. Tunney, who was on hand at the hospital throughout the night, greeted his new son a short while after the delivery.

Mrs. Tunney is the former Polly Lauder, Connecticut heiress.

The Tunneys were married in Rome on October 3, 1928. Their first son, Gene, Jr., will be 4 in November.

Returning from the hospital the former heavyweight champion of the world, who retired undethroned, entered the lobby of the Hotel Pierre with a broad smile. He said:

"Sure, that's right. Eight pounds eleven ounces. Mrs. Tunney and the baby doing well.

"The selection of the name for the child and the date of the christening have not been determined as yet."

ANTI-STRIKE BOARD TO BE NAMED

Aid to Steel Work Expected in New Executive Order

WASHINGTON, June 26.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt shuffled his trump card in the troublous capital-labor situation to the top of the New Deal deck today as he returned for a week of high pressure work before leaving for Hawaii.

A new emergency labor board, with wide power to settle such questions as collective bargaining, was expected to emerge from conferences today, with an announcement of the board's personnel and an order defining its authority believed due in a few hours.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, and others hoped the new labor board would do much to end dissension in the steel industry, where a general strike has threatened, and such controversies as the longshoremen's strike on the Pacific Coast and the copper miners' dispute at Butte, Mont.

NEW BOARD SET-UP

The board, to be named under legislation which Congress drafted as a substitute for the controversial Wagner labor disputes bill, may be a three-man or five-man board. It will supplant the present 13-man National Labor Board.

Leon C. Marshall, a vice chairman of the present board and professor at the institute of law, Johns Hopkins University, was most prominently mentioned as a probable choice for the new agency.

The outstanding powers of the board will be to investigate the background of collective bargaining disputes threatening to obstruct interstate commerce and to conduct secret elections among employes. It can command witnesses or documents, and its orders will be enforceable or reviewable in the courts, as is now the case with the Federal Trade Commission.

Violations may be punished by a maximum of a $1,000 fine and a year in prison.

HOUSING DRIVE POST

Many bills passed by Congress also must be cleared from the presidential desk, and the Chief Executive faced the task of picking men for several key posts, including one to direct the vast housing drive.

The President had scores of suggestions for the new commissions to regulate the stock markets and the communications systems.

Lillian Russell's Understudy Dies

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., June 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. Jennie Elizabeth Fitch, who, according to friends, was an understudy to Lillian Russell for six years, died in a Connellsville hospital today at the age of 81.

Mrs. Fitch's stage name was Jennie Arlington. She was at one time soprano soloist for the United States Marine Band, and her husband, Harry N. Fitch, was baritone soloist for the John Philip Sousa Band. Funeral services will be held tomorrow.

Broker Sorry He Kicked Girls' Bed Apart

Sylvia Roman, 22, who is a brunette and pretty, and Margaret Dillhoff, 23, blonde and equally pretty, were indignant. It seems that a gentleman friend, at the unseemingly hour of 5 a. m. had forced his way into their apartment in Monterey street via the window.

This gentleman friend had then proceeded to kick apart their bed and generally make a shambles of the place.

So the next night, when he telephoned again, they simulated politeness and invited him over again. And when he arrived a policeman took him away.

And today in Morals Court he said he was John H. Welsh, 40, a broker, of DuBois, that he had been pretty tight, that he would pay for the damage, that he liked Sylvia very much, but now realizes she is not overly fond of him. Sylvia verified his suspicions by informing Magistrate J. W. McGowan:

"I don't want any part of him."

John was discharged when he said he wouldn't do it again.

King 'Gagged' by Queen And Roosevelt's Mother

LONDON, June 26.—(AP.)—Two of the world's most talked about women—Queen Mary and Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt—sipped tea together this afternoon in Her Majesty's private apartments at Buckingham Palace.

King George was present, but most of the animated conversation was carried on by the mother of the American President and the Queen of Great Britain.

Just two mothers—grandmothers, in fact—they found many common interests as they chatted merrily. Their Majesties were impressed, as the Prime Minister and other empire leaders had been, by the gaiety, friendliness and frankness of Mrs. Roosevelt.

She radiated pride in her famous son, but Mrs. Roosevelt gave expression to a commonsense view of the world and its affairs gained in her 80 years of experience.

She expects to remain here the rest of the week. Tonight she will dine at the American Embassy and tomorrow she will go out to see the sights.

PLOT TO WRECK HITLER RULE REPORTED

Former Steel Helmet Troops Blamed and Face Extinction

BERLIN, June 26.—(AP.)—The government, hearing for almost the first time since Adolf Hitler's ascendancy as Chancellor the rumbles of dissatisfaction in some sections with Nazilism, threatened sharp action today.

Government officials indicated they would move for "complete extinction" of the auxiliary branch of the War Veterans' League.

Recent rumors said the league held secret plans to replace the Hitler regime with a military dictatorship. Nazi secret police reported "reactionism" in the league and a nation-wide plot to overthrow the Nazi regime.

Nearly all members of the veterans' branch once belonged to the Steel Helmet troops, a powerful force before the Nazis gained authority.

FORMAL ALLIANCE

Although Steel Helmet troops entered a formal alliance with Nazi organizations for the overthrow of the republic, their friendship never ripened. The name "Steel Helmet" was scrapped at the government's suggestion.

The threat of "complete extinction" of the veterans' auxiliary was made by the supreme command of the Nazi storm troops after a stabbing affray in Pomerania, in which a storm trooper allegedly was wounded by a league member.

This bold step was seen as an effort to bring to a head the opposition issue raised by Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen June 18 when he vigorously expressed sentiments of the conservative forces.

The Veterans' League is considered the "shock troops" of Conservatives and a rallying force for Junkers covertly opposing the Nazi regime.

Most Steel Helmet members have clung to their hope of a monarchial restoration and military class rule.

The secret police report said instigators of disorders and tension "were always found in the league's ranks."

Goering Thunders Defi To Monarchist Move

HAMBURG, Germany, June 26.—(AP.)—"We have Hitler," thundered Germany's minister without portfolio, Herman Wilhelm Goering, "and we are satisfied."

A huge mass meeting which gathered last night to hear Goering hurl an ultimatum to a rising Monarchist expression, gave the minister prolonged applause after his address.

The minister's remarks struck sharply and directly at Monarchist talk, and called for unity behind Chancellor Hitler. The very fact that he referred to Monarchist sentiment at all served to strengthen the impression that the government views the growing activities of Conservative factions among the Nazis as a definite threat.

Goering warned:

"Whoever sins against confidence is putting his own head on the executioner's block."

The minister turned thumbs down on any hopes there might be for the return of a Hohenzollern to the throne under Hitler's regime.

He spoke sarcastically of "certain circles" being desirous of restoring the monarchy, and said:

"Our children and grandchildren can vote for whatever form of government they want. We that are living have Hitler and we are satisfied."

U. S. Goes to Rescue Kidnaped Missionary

HANKOW, China, June 26.—(AP.)—A further effort to free the Rev. Howard Smith, Washington (Pa.) missionary kidnaped six weeks ago, was made today by the United States government.

HITLER AT END, NAZI SAYS

NEW YORK, June 26.—(AP.)—The New York Post, in the second of a series of copyrighted articles by Johannes Steel, says today that during the last year and a half Fritz Thyssen, steel and power baron; President von Hindenburg and Vice Chancellor von Papen "have given Hitler sufficient rope to hang himself," and adds, "Hitler has finally done so."

Steel, former private secretary to the president of the Reichsbank, Hjalmar Schacht, gives the following as "the truth about Germany:"

"Storm troops have mutinied 60 times within the last 90 days.

"More than two-thirds of them would desert Hitler in a civil war.

"The Reichswehr is anti-Hitler.

"Despite terrorism, the undercover opposition of Catholics, Protestants, Jews and Communists is increasing and solidifying."

ings, on so many thousands of millions of planets scattered in space.

CATHOLICS IN Germany resent the government's pretensions to rule in church as well as outside.

Bishop Nicholas Bares, addressing 75,000 German Catholics at an open-air meeting, tells them that Christ is their only fuehrer, that they should be led only by Him, not listen to "the faltering words of human beings." The Papal nuncio participated in the ceremonies.

IT HAD BEEN announced that the "pork barrel" system was to be abandoned, and the statement was made in good faith. But you read that taxpayers' money will be spent to erect six hundred and twenty-six new buildings, including many new postoffices. To some that will sound like old-fashioned "pork" under a more respectable name, and big "pork," since this one building item will amount to one hundred and ten millions.

JULY RELIEF FOR PA. CUT

WASHINGTON, June 26.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania will learn this week whether it will be called on to match federal grants for unemployment relief in future.

The Keystone State's appropriation for July will probably be lower than in recent months, Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, disclosed last night, but he declined to break his silence on the question that has had the state buzzing for weeks with rumors of a special General Assembly session.

When the July allocations are announced—probably Thursday—Pennsylvanians will know the answer, and not before then.

Although the state's share of relief funds will probably be cut, Hopkins said there is no intention of drastically reducing allotments to individuals because "they're none too large at present."

While Gov. Pinchot at Harrisburg was expressing hope that the federal government will continue to bear all Pennsylvania's relief burden until the next regular session of the General Assembly, Hopkins was criticizing the government's present relief methods as "no way to handle unemployment."

He reiterated his belief in long-time planning, with a program combining public works and unemployment insurance.

DUCE TO FETE DOLLFUSS

ROME, June 26.—(AP.)—Premier Dollfuss of Austria will make a "family" visit to Premier Mussolini of Italy at the end of July.

They will go to Riccione on the Adriatic, where Mussolini and his family will spend a vacation. Il Duce has invited Frau Dollfuss and the Chancellor's two children to accompany the Austrian leader to the meeting there.

Chancellor Dollfuss will remain only two or three days, but his family will stay at Riccione longer. The spot is a famous summer resort for Austrians.

High authorities said that Mussolini's invitation to the Austrian Chancellor was extended some days before Il Duce met Chancellor Hitler of Germany at Venice two weeks ago. Therefore, they said, the Mussolini-Dollfuss conference will not be in consequence of the meeting at Venice.

It is understood, however, that Dollfuss wishes some personal clarification of the Venice conversations with reference to Austria.

NORMA MILLEN HYSTERICAL

had driven the automobile when her husband and his gang had killed Ernst Clarke, sporting goods manager, in Fitchburg. Dewing demanded:

"Didn't you act as a lookout for your husband in the Fitchburg shooting?"

DENIED BEING LOOKOUT

Norma replied:

"No, I didn't."

She also denied having told Lieut. Stokes, of the state police, that Murton had declared it was "pretty good shooting for my first murder."

Shortly after Norma took the stand today she was told to speak louder by the District Attorney. Breaking into tears, she seemed unable to control herself and was led from the stand.

After a doctor had treated her, she returned, but soon grew weak again. When Judge Nelson Brown saw the fresh tears, he called a deputy who half carried her away. Wet towels were used to revive her.

NORMA AS ACTRESS

One of the District Attorney's sword thrusts dealt with Norma's dramatic ability. Although she denied the prosecutor's remark that she had studied dramatics, Norma is remembered in Natick High School for her acting in amateur productions.

However, her schoolmates who succeeded in crashing their way through the mob of women into a courtroom seat will never forget the scene in which Norma pleaded for her youth and freedom from the witness stand.

If it was acting, Broadway should have taken her before Murton.

She told her story in a low, silver tone. It was a story of a parental outcast, a romance gone wrong, of a lawless youth who found out his bride was a doll and kicked his plaything into a corner.

HOUSE TOLD CCC RUINED ARMY VEHICLES

Sabotage Evidence Revealed in Military Purchase Quiz

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Evidence of sabotage of Army trucks used in CCC work is in the possession of the War Department, The House Military Affairs subcommittee learned today.

Sand had been poured into the oil pits of the motors of 12 trucks used in CCC camps of Kansas, according to a report made to the War Department by Brig. Gen. A. G. Lott, commander of Fort Riley, Kan., and identified by Col. B. F. Miller, chief of the motor procurement section of the War Department, a witness before the committee.

OPERATED AT HIGH SPEED

The alleged sabotage was discovered when the trucks were taken to the Swenson Motor Company, of Manhattan, Kan., for reconditioning.

Col. Miller also said that many trucks used by the CCC had been abused chiefly through operating them at high speed. Representative Goss (Rep.), of Connecticut, said he had heard of the abuse of truck motors by diluting their oil with other materials.

The subcommittee, which is conducting a sweeping investigation of War Department purchases, delved again today into charges that disqualification of two leading manufacturers of low priced trucks had prevented adequate competition in Army purchases.

LACK OF COMPETITION

The two concerns were the Ford Motor Car Company, disqualified for failure to comply with the NRA, and the Chrysler Motor Car Company, ruled out because of alleged use of lobbyist salesmen.

Maj. Gen. L. H. Bash, quartermaster general, admitted there was a "deplorable lack of competition" under which it would be possible for a motor company to "hold up the government."

The committee placed in the records a letter from the General Motors Corporation declaring that all units had been instructed not to take advantage of the absence of competition in obtaining government contracts.

last the accusation that he deliberately killed Manis. The attorney announced:

"There is every indication at the present outlook of the case that we will go to trial instead of entering a plea."

Russel Zoninger, another of Bartholomew's attorneys, announced today that witnesses had volunteered to testify in support of the defense's charge that Manis had attempted blackmail.

Meanwhile the state is going ahead quietly perfecting its case against Bartholomew. Chief of County Detectives William B. Dinsmore, in charge of the investigation, is running down every clue.

The slain youth's father, A. L. Manis, refuses to place any credence in the blackmail theory. All through the trying ordeal Mr. and Mrs. Manis have maintained belief in their boy. He was gentle to them. The father said:

MILL SUSPENDS UNDER NRA PRESSURE

Blue Eagle Removal Causes Closing of Hosiery Plant

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The sentence of "economic death" for business firms without the Blue Eagle—pronounced nearly a year ago by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chieftain—had claimed its first recognized victim today.

Closing of the Harriman Hosiery Mills, one of the South's largest hosiery manufacturers, was acclaimed a victory for the NRA by supporters of compulsion in the enforcement of the act.

Gen. Johnson, who is to return to his office from a hospital today, is expected to stand pat on the decision not to restore the Blue Eagle to the Tennessee firm.

He is to receive a report from A. R. Glancy, division administrator, who flew to Harriman in an effort to patch up the quarrel and avert closing of the factory.

Brandishing the "big stick" of the NRA, Glancy had refused to restore the Blue Eagle until the mills had re-employed workers alleged to have been discharged because they joined the United Textile Workers' Union.

The company, having already cut its force more than 300 by a decline in business, contended this would necessitate discharging some of the 653 workers, who remained with the plant.

Serious charges made by T. Asbury Wright, Jr., attorney for the mills, are to be placed before Johnson. They included:

A declaration that the Department of Justice had advised that prosecution of the mills' operators for violation of the collective bargaining provisions of the NIRA was not justified.

An assertion that the general counsel of the National Labor Board, Johnson's secretary and compliance director advised deceit in dealing with union employes, suggesting that employes be taken back and later discharged on grounds other than union affiliation.

A charge that the National Labor Board, when it heard the case, was "packed" with union labor leaders or labor sympathizers.

FINAL DARROW REPORT NEAR

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Fresh criticism of the NRA appeared certain today as the Darrow Review Board neared completion of its third and final report to President Roosevelt on monopolistic practices and effect of codes on the small businessman.

The board, it was reported, has found the new steel code and amendments to the motion picture code insufficient to overcome its former criticism.

In addition a critical analysis of several codes affecting the construction industry is being drafted. With the administration avowedly seeking lower building costs as a part of the gigantic housing campaign soon to be inaugurated, the Darrow board will add its word of approval.

The increase in basing points under the steel code also will be subjected to critical analysis by the board. An attack on the entire basing system is expected on the ground that it maintains uneconomic plants, prevents distribution of the industry and penalizes consumers.

GAS FIRM, UNION AGREE ON VOTE

A strike of unionized gasoline station attendants of the American Oil Company, threatened for midnight tonight, was called off this afternoon after a conference between union heads and company officials.

The union men, claimed by union heads to represent over two-thirds of the employes, voted a strike ultimatum at a meeting last midnight in Rodgers Hall. They demanded union recognition and an increase in wages.

At a two-hour conference this afternoon in the Grant Building offices of the oil company, an agreement was reached to conduct a government-supervised election to determine the percentage of men who wished to be represented by the union, it was announced.

According to company officials, this was the only point on which the company had balked in dealing collectively with its employes.

CARMEN STRIKE IN MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, June 26.—(AP.)—Pickets appeared today at power plants, car barns and garages of the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light Company as the strike called by three American Federation of Labor unions began, but power, traction and bus service continues virtually unbroken in the city and metropolitan area.

A statement issued by the company said only 93 of its 4,700 employers were absent today "for all causes, including sickness," and that 80 of them were in the transportation division.

Demonstrations at the company buildings were orderly. The striking unions demand elections by crafts and reinstatement of 13 men allegedly discharged for union activity.

Troops Held Ready In California Strike

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—(AP.)—Federal peace efforts in the Pacific Coast maritime workers' strike were speeded here today while Portland reported an exhausted fuel oil supply and California National Guard officers were ordered to prepare for an emergency.

Employers' representatives and leaders of the 27,000 allied strikers may be brought face to face as a climax to a hurried series of conferences, said Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, directing the mediation attempt.

WEIRTON BLAST GIVES 2 MEN JAIL TERMS

Bonded in Gun-Toting Case, Rearrested on Bombing Charge

WELLSBURG, W. Va., June 26.—(AP.)—Two men arrested after a dynamite blast in a union workers' meeting hall in Weirton were sentenced today to serve six months in jail and fined $50 on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

The defendants, Harold Smith and William Meadows, said they were special policemen employed at the steel mills.

W. J. Moore, attorney for the men, appealed for a re-hearing and they were freed on $1,000 bond.

Immediately after their release, the two were re-arrested on a charge of feloniously bombing the building used by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers as a meeting place.

BOMBING CHARGE

The bombing complaint was sworn to by George Bambrick, prosecutor of adjoining Hancock County, in which Weirton is situated. The arrests were made by Sheriff Jack O'Connor.

The explosion occurred early yesterday, causing damage estimated by union officials at $500. At a meeting in the same hall last night, union members denounced the explosion as "a trick of the steel barons."

The hearing in Wellsburg was before Magistrate George Howard. Officers said the men did not provide credentials to show they were employed as policemen at the steel mills, as they claimed.

STORE DAMAGED

Charges in the bombing complaint referred specifically to damage done the Weirton Cigar and Candy Company's building, a two-story structure. The second floor was used by the union men. Merchandise and candy on the lower floor, occupied by the candy firm, was knocked from the shelves by the blast, but no one was injured.

Smith and Meadows were arrested about two hours later. Officers charged their automobile contained guns.

After the hearing in Wellsburg, which is in Brooke County, the men were taken away by the Hancock County officers, supposedly for a hearing in Weirton on the bombing charge.

Weather Conditions

There is a low centered over Wisconsin (29.78 inches), at Madison, and another center over Wyoming (29.60 inches) at Sheridan. Showers and thunderstorms occurred during yesterday and last night in the vicinity of these disturbances, and it is cloudy this morning. Over the remainder of the country the skies are mostly clear. Temperature changes since yesterday were unimportant. The weather continues warm over the country east of the Rocky Mountains with maximum temperatures of 90 degrees or higher nearly everywhere except in the region of the lakes and eastward to the coast. In Illinois the temperature yesterday afternoon ranged from 100 to 102 degrees.

'Walk-a-Thon' Expires In Blotch of Red Ink

Three couples with very sore feet and no money, a dark arena and a lot of red ink were all that remained today of Pittsburgh's "walk-a-thon" after 1,100 hours of effort.

The show closed last night after more than a month of gasping fer, as Police Inspector Harry Moore, of Oakland, put it, "patronage and interest."

According to Inspector Moore, who knows all about it because one of his policemen, detailed to Motor Square Garden for the duration of the show "to keep order" still has $120 in wages coming to him, the walk-a-athon has been dying for a week.

The three remaining couples, he said, received nothing inasmuch as the contestants' contract read that winners were to split 75 per cent of the profits. They had been reeling around for 1,100 hours.

In lieu of the $120 he owed the specially detailed policeman, John Lonergan, C. A. Pressey, Uniontown promoter, who staged the show, gave Lonergan an amount of personal property as security and promised the cash within 90 days. Rent and a number of other expenses, including some salaries, had been paid, Inspector Moore said.

Gandhi's Life Spared By Boy Scout's Error

POONA, India, June 26.—(AP.)—The Mahatma Gandhi, frail little leader of millions, although he holds no public office, has escaped another attempt to assassinate him.

When an automobile arrived at a hall yesterday where Gandhi was scheduled to speak a Boy Scout band struck up a tune and the crowd cheered.

A man made his way to the car, tossed a bomb into it and fled. All five passengers were injured, but the mahatma was not one of them. He arrived a few minutes later. The mistake of the band leader in thinking he was in the car was credited with having saved the mahatma from death or injury. Gandhi said:

"This outrage will not injure my cause, but will make it stronger."

It was the seventh attempt on his life. He added:

"If they think my body is so sinful they should have singled me out of the crowd and not injured innocent persons."

'CAT-AND-MOUSE' TORTURE CHARGED TO PREMIER BY GIRL

LOVE SUIT JURY HEARS STORY OF STENOG

Young Woman Faces Cross-Examination On Strange 'Spell'

International News Service.

EDMONTON, Alta., June 26.—Following testimony that a "strange spell" held her to an asserted illicit relationship with Premier John E. Brownlee, of Alberta, for more than two years, pretty Vivian MacMillan today faced an ordeal of cross-examination in Supreme Court.

For more than three hours the tall, slender 23-year-old stenographer occupied the witness stand on the opening day of the trial, describing her relationship with Premier Brownlee. Miss MacMillan and her father, Allan MacMillan, are suing for an award of unstated damages on charges of seduction and enticement.

Before a crowded courtroom the stenographer testified that the Premier, on a lonely country road, had made fervent love to her and finally broke down her resistance.

Miss MacMillan charged that illicit meetings between herself and the Premier continued from the fall of 1930 until the summer of 1933 when, her health shattered, she told the entire story to her parents.

GIRL FALLS IN LOVE

She had met a medical student, John Caldwell, in the fall of 1932, and they fell deeply in love with one another and he proposed marriage. Miss MacMillan said she told Caldwell of her asserted relationship with the Premier, and the boy, saying that marriage could no longer be entertained, offered to do anything he could to break off her relationship with Premier Brownlee.

The girl testified:

"I tried to end it with the Premier, pleading for him to give me my freedom. He seemed to hold me under a strange spell by superior will.

"I was helpless in his presence, but every meeting with him was repugnant to me. He played with me like a cat plays with a mouse."

She had become a good friend of the Brownlee family and was very fond of Mrs. Brownlee, Miss MacMillan said.

Once when a guest in the Brownlee home, she swore the Premier forced her to keep a midnight tryst with him while his wife slept in an adjoining room and a son slept on another bed in the Premier's room.

Brownlee, she testified, had pictured himself as a lonely man and told her that she owed it as a sacred duty to the public and to Mrs. Brownlee, whose close personal friend she had become, to submit herself to him.

CONSENTED TO PLEADING

Miss MacMillan pictured herself as the victim of assaults upon her resistance and appeals to her heart to save Mrs. Brownlee from certain death in childbirth until she finally consented to his pleading.

Of her decision to "break off" with Premier Brownlee, the girl testified:

"I asked Mr. Brownlee to give me my freedom. I wanted to break off with him, but he replied: 'I certainly will not.' Then he flew into a rage and told me I needn't report for duty at the buildings the next day."

The Premier had obtained employment for her when she came to Edmonton from her home at Edson, she said.

Mrs. Brownlee sat with her husband through both court sessions and both followed the evidence closely. Vivian was accompanied by her mother.

Caldwell did not appear. He is co-defendant with Vivian in a counter claim for $10,000 damages brought by the Premier on grounds of conspiracy.

Vivian said she had introduced Caldwell to Brownlee. The former held out his hand, but the Premier had ignored it and turned his back on the young student.

Old Grid Star Held For Sanity Hearing

CHICAGO, June 26.—(AP.)—Clarence H. Herschberger, 57, famed as the greatest place kicker in football as a member of the University of Chicago team in the late nineties, was at a psychopathic hospital today, held for a sanity hearing Thursday.

Upon leaving the university in 1898 he became a member of the faculty at Lake Forest College and Academy, spent two years with the National City Bank of New York and engaged in the real estate business in Chicago until last July, when he suffered a second nervous breakdown.

his inability to keep that wedding date with 'Tucky' French at 4 p. m. Saturday."

By DAVIS J. WALSH

International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 26.—All is apparently not well with the plans of Enzo Fiermonte, the prize fighter who has been studying up to be a society man, but hasn't quite made it.

The wealthy Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick Fiermonte, 41-year-old bride of Enzo, was in seclusion at her Westhampton estate today while her Italian husband was vacationing here.

Enzo, it was learned, packed up his baggage Sunday and drove away in his roadster in a cloud of Long Island's most aristocratic dust. The "Fistic Adonis" could not be located, while his wife was said to be "quite indisposed."

MATCH BANNED

Just to give you a rough draft of the idea, Enzo is understood to have leaped out of the training ring the other day for the purpose of putting what the Southampton set calls a "powder" upon an inquiring reporter, but was dissuaded by Charley Johnston, his manager and first assistant dissuader.

So nothing came of it, but the incident indicated that the gentleman's matchmaking is still pretty good. The reporter had been away from the camp, seeking atmosphere and needle beer, and had returned well filled with both, with the result that he would hardly have been much of a workout for the Maxie Rosenbloom match on July 19. However, that difficulty has been partially overcome with the aid of the boxing commission, which says there isn't going to be any Maxie Rosenbloom match then or at any time. It's all very harrowing.

Moreover, the reporter incident is understood to have brought to a head some latent objections to the sterling profession of boxing on the part of Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick Fiermonte, who had married Enzo into a life of ease and refinement and I believe was just about to have him stuffed and mounted for the living room when he was taken down suddenly with an attack of ambition. She has felt all along, it seems, that this is bringing unwelcome attention to the house of Astor and embarrassment upon her son, John Jacob Astor III.

ENZO TO THE RESCUE

The latter doesn't believe in prize fighters. But it seems he does bicker in hotel lobbies with his fiancees, with the result that he started out to marry Miss Gillespie, is now going to marry Miss French and can't keep off the front pages from one edition to another.

Nevertheless, the Astor's deplore publicity and would shun it, if they could ever stop marrying prize fighters and rowing in the newspapers about who isn't engaged to whom any more.

Besides, the reporter just about settled matters. It seems that he followed the widow of old John Jacob up the walk, plying her with knowing questions about Enzo's left hook to the liver, and even thrusting a foot into the door jamb like a book agent. It was then that Enzo, his proud spirit touched, went to the rescue only to be restrained by cooler heads.

The discussion that followed lasted far into the night, I understand, but it wasn't the end of Enzo's plans for himself. I suspect that, if these were really known, we might have a pretty good story.

JILTS FIANCE AT ALTAR

NORFOLK, Va., June 26.—(AP.)—Leslie Avery Shaw, of Lynchburg and Charlotte, N. C., was on time for his wedding in fashionable Park View Methodist Church, Portsmouth, but he was just two hours and a half too late to hear Miss Elizabeth Thomas say "I do," as she wed another.

Debutante daughter of a prominent Portsmouth family, she was missing when guests arrived Saturday for the ceremony. They were told by ushers that the wedding had been postponed. Then Miss Thomas, now Mrs. Vernon Caryle Shaner, said she and Shaner had been married in South Mills, N. C., just across the state line, at 2:30 p. m. Saturday.

Confirmation of the elopement came in the form of a formal announcement from the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thomas.

MYSTERY ADDED TO URN DEATH

SEATTLE, June 26.—(AP.)—The missing heirs to Sarah Smith-Scollard's missing millions formed today's enigma in the series of puzzles left by the wealthy, eccentric "Hetty Green of La Salle Street" when she died in Canada.

George H. Rummens, attorney for Mrs. Scollard's sister, Mrs. Katherine Kirkpatrick, of Okland, Cal., said the Scollard will, drawn in 1927, left $1 to the sister and $1 to her divorced husband, G. F. Scollard—and the balance to "my legal heirs as such shall be determined by law."

So far as is known here, Mrs. Scollard left no other relatives.

JUDGE TO WEIGH JAIL RELEASE

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., June 26.—(AP.)—A hearing will be held tomorrow by Judge Frank E. Reader to determine whether Hamilton M. Brown, for seven years warden of the Beaver County Jail, shall be removed from his position or be suspended.

The warden is accused of releasing John Oriol, a prisoner, from jail two day before the May 15 primary, permitting him to do political work in his home city of Ambridge and return to jail on the day of the voting.

A contempt charge also is pending against Brown.

Counsel for Brown said he would not use the privilege of cross-examining any witnesses at the hearing. Brown's defense will be based on his good administration of the jail duties in the past, his promise there will be no recurrence of the Oriol case and the claim that his livlihood depends upon his job, his attorney said.

YOUTH ADMITS KIDNAP HOAX

International News Service.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., June 26.—A hair-raising tale of having been kidnaped, beaten unconscious with blackjacks and thrown out of a speeding automobile evaporated into the realm of vivid imagination today.

After hours of questioning, Harry J. Meenan, Jr., 17-year-old high school graduate of Philadelphia, finally broke down and confessed that the whole abduction narrative was a colorful figment of his fancy.

Then why was he found standing weakly and alone by the side of a road, looking frightened and haggard?

The youth replied:

Body of Man Found In River at Etna

The body of a well-dressed young man was taken from the Allegheny River at the Isabella Furnace, Etna, shortly before noon today.

At the County Morgue, the man was described as between 25 and 30 years old, of medium build and weighing 160 pounds. He was wearing sport slacks with a dark stripe, black shoes and white sport shirt. The body was found by Charles Roberts, 1314 Sonora street, North Side, and William McDonald, 5525 McCandless avenue.

Asks for Pension, Accused by City

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 26.—(AP.)—Pension demands of James J. Browne, former Brooklyn park commissiooer, have been met by the city with charges that in 14 years he banked $1,071,713.89, although his salary from the city during the period totaled only $96,804.94.

The charges were contained in an affidavit filed in Supreme Court yesterday by Commissioner of Accounts Paul Blanshard, and included allegations of "misfeasance, malfeasance and non-feasance while in office."

GETTLE VICTIM IN NEW THREAT

LOS ANGELES, June 26.—(AP.)—The William F. Gettle kidnaping case was revived today with the disclosure that the Beverly Hills oil millionaire has received extortion notes, demanding $6,000 to "atone" for his court testimony against two women.

Threats that his home would be dynamited and his family injured seriously if he failed to comply were contained in the notes.

The women in the case, Loretta Woody and Mona Gallighen, were convicted of conspiring to misuse the mails in connection with a $60,000 ransom demand, sent to Gettle's family while he was held by kidnapers.

Wife Slayer Suspect Attends Services

FARRELL, Pa., June 26.—In company with police officials, Peter Jemme, Farrel barber, attended funeral services yesterday for his pretty 22-year-old wife, Ida, who was shot to death shortly after she entered the home of her parents last week. Jemme, held on an open charge since his estranged wife was shot five times, continues to deny that he fired the shots.

MAE'S 'SIN' IN 'WASH'

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 26.—(AP.)—Mae West's picture, "It Ain't No Sin," will be "laundered" at the studio here before it is released anywhere, Paramount officials announced today upon receipt of notice from the New York Board of Regents banning the film in that state.

Reasons for censoring the film, which was scheduled for national release June 30, were not received here, officials said, adding:

"Retakes will be made of some of the scenes of the film. Some of the dialogue also will be rewritten. The film certainly will not be scrapped."

The changes in the film will require about two weeks, after which studio officials said the picture would be submitted again for approval of the New York board.

The title of the picture also may be changed, it was said.

Unofficially, it was estimated, the film represents an investment of $500,000.

WEDS BRYAN'S GRANDCHILD

WASHINGTON, June 26.—(AP.)—The minister to Denmark, Ruth Bryan Owen, has announced, by cablegram from Copenhagen, the Washington marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Ruth Owen Meeker, to Robert Lehman, of New York, a cousin of Gov. Herbert Lehman.

Unable to be present at the wedding, which occurred almost coincidentally with receipt of the cablegram, the minister nevertheless participated in the plans.

The couple came to the capital from New York to be married by her friend, Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives, in which Mrs. Owen served for four years as a Florida member.

The ceremony took place yesterday afternoon in the chapel of the Methodist Building, in which Mrs. Owen had an apartment while living here.

Mrs. Lehman and William P. Meeker, of Baltimore, were divorced last November.

NEW CLUE HINTS SLAYING OF BRIDE

Police Seek Boy Who Got Wrapping Paper For Visitor

By DOROTHY ROE

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 26.—The international mystery of the disappearance of Agnes Tufverson, successful woman lawyer and bride of the erotic adventurer, "Captain" Ivan Poderjay, struck new complications today as police worked on two opposing theories.

Belief of the missing woman's friends that she may be alive and hiding was supported by the statement of Mrs. Ruth P. Hall, manager of a Boston dress cleaning establishment, that a photograph of Miss Tufverson was that of a woman who left dresses to be cleaned in her shop twice between May 15 and June 10.

The theory that the 40-year-old business woman was "disposed of" gained strength when a newsdealer near the expensive apartment house where Miss Tufverson lived told police he had sold 12 sheets of 40 by 72-inch heavy brown wrapping paper for delivery to her apartment just before she disappeared.

ORDERED BY MAN

The newsdealer, Joseph Friedman, said a small boy called for the paper, and when asked what he wanted it for, pointed to the Tufverson apartment and said:

"I'm getting it for a man over at the big house. He paid me to come over here and get it for him."

New York police believe that Miss Tufverson was murdered, her body dismembered and packed in a trunk. The brown wrapping paper, they believe, may have been used in wrapping the body.

Although an intensive search was being made for the missing woman in Boston, New York authorities placed little credence in the theory that the woman lawyer is still alive.

FAIR IN 'SOLITARY'

A search was under way here for the boy who delivered the wrapping paper, in the hope that he may supply the missing link in the tangled chain of evidence.

In the meantime Capt. Poderjay and his French wife, Mme. Suzanne Perrand, were placed in solitary confinement in the Vienna Jail where they are held on "suspicion of murder."

Segregated from the other prisoners, they were placed in single cells and denied companionship even during the daily walks in the jail yard.

PASTOR DENIES MARITAL TIE

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. Wineta Long Welburn undertook today to convince a jury she was entitled to a divorce from the Rev. William D. Welburn, Jr., because of mental cruelty entailed in his denial of their marriage and paternity of her child.

According to the pretty brunet, she and the former pastor of Government Hill Methodist Church here were married at Boerne, Tex., on July 25, 1933; and a son, William Drummond Welburn, was born to her on November 18, 1933, an issue of the marriage.

She also claims that thereafter the young pastor made statements to his congregation and others that he was not the father of the child and that he had not been married to the plaintiff.

Defense attorneys indicated they would seek to show someone posed as the minister in obtaining a marriage license at Boerne and later posed as the minister at a wedding ceremony performed there.

Man's Heart Stitched After Stab Wound

LANCASTER, Pa., June 26.—(AP.)—The medical profession, keenly interested, kept touch by telephone as George Hampton, 41, continued to improve after an operation in which his heart was lifted from its place, stitched to close a stab wound, and replaced.

Hampton, stabbed in the heart Sunday night, was "slightly improved" last night, hospital officials said. The stab wound is alleged to have been inflicted by Hampton's housekeeper, Mrs. Myrtle Dorwart.

Walker Gets Offer For Act at Fair

CHICAGO, June 26.—(AP.)—James J. Walker, former Mayor of New York City, was cabled in London a $100,000 offer for a five weeks personal appearance with his wife, Betty Compton, at the World's Fair.

The offer was made last night by Lew Dufour, manager of the Hawaiian Gardens concession.

Envoy's Daughter Married at Capital

MRS. RUTH OWEN MEEKER AND ONE OF HER THREE CHILDREN: 2½-YEAR-OLD KAYWIN

Mrs. Meeker, divorced last November, today in Washington the bride of Robert Lehman, divorced New York broker and cousin of Gov. Lehman. The bride's mother, Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of William Jennings Bryan and U. S. Minister to Denmark, announced the wedding.

Moonlight Dance Made 'Daddy' Browning Ill

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 26.—A cold caught after moonlight dancing on the deck of a Hudson River showboat cruise, it was learned today, was the contributory cause of the ailment which has sent Edward W. (Daddy) Browning to the hospital.

Browning, estranged husband of Frances (Peaches) Browning, is in the Hospital for Joint Diseases.

The condition of Browning was "unchanged and still serious," it was said this morning at the hospital, where the elderly millionaire real estate operator is suffering from cerebral hemorrhage.

No marked improvement in the condition of the 63-year-old patient was anticipated for some time, it was said. His entire left side is paralyzed.

In Chicago, Frances (Peaches) Browning expressed regret over Browning's illness. Peaches, who opens a theatrical engagement there next week, said:

"I'm sorry. Really I am. But I don't think I'll send him any message because I know he will receive the best of care. I can't go there now because I'm in love with my work and I can't leave."

Pirate Mascot in Jail On Girl's Charge

Six youths, one of whom said he was mascot for the Pittsburgh Pirates, were held for court without bail on a morality charge by Magistrate J. W. McGowan today.

They are Dan Piper, 18, of 823 Whiteside road, Oakland, the Pirate baseball team's new batboy; Joe Snyder, 22, and P. Resnich, 28, of 2110 Center avenue; Nathan Hellman, 17, of 2100 Wylie avenue; Charles Pollock, 21, of 2174 Center avenue, and Curtis Bluestone, 19, no address.

The six were arrested last night on complaint of a 19-year-old girl employed as a domestic in a Center avenue home.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS ::

By PAUL MALLON

Hull 'Only Fooling' When He Asked Goods for Debts

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Mr. Hull was only fooling recently when he invited the British to pay the war debts in goods instead of money.

It is true that the State Secretary is a Sunday school man and does not know much about poker. But his deficiency in that respect is more than made up by President Roosevelt. They get their heads together on the latest debt step, basing it on what is known in both diplomatic and poker circles as "calling the bluff" of the British.

As a matter of fact, the only way in which this whole inner war debt situation differs from the average high class poker game is that, in playing war debts, nobody pays. The honor of winning is the only stake.

Consequently, no negotiations are imminent for payment in goods, money or cigar store coupons and none is likely for a while.

FOOLISHNESS

Messrs. Roosevelt and Hull did not really believe there would be. The truth is their private economic advisers told them before they wrote the note that it would be virtually impossible to work out a transfer of goods at this time.

There is one simple insurmountable reason. It is that the British government has no goods of its own. To pay us in goods it would have to buy them from private producers. But at what price?

If she bought tin for the fixed price and transferred it to us without a profit, she might as well transfer the money. If she tried to make a profit on the transaction, the price at which we would receive the tin would make it too high. We might better buy the tin from the private producers themselves.

Either way, there would be no sense to the transaction.

UNIVERSAL COMPLAINT
$ OUT GO
$ INCOME
MOST OF US HAVE BUDGET TROUBLE. THAT'S WHY WE HAVE A FELLOW FEELING FOR MR. LEWIS DOUGLAS, DIRECTOR OF THE BUDGET. HE IS ALWAYS TRYING TO MAKE THINGS BALANCE. SO ARE WE.
WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS IS AN INVENTION — A LITTLE COFFEE MILL CONTRAPTION (A) WHICH WOULD TAKE A BATCH OF BIG BILLS TO BE PAID, AND AN INADEQUATE CHECK, ALL INSERTED IN HOPPER (B), AND THEN, BY GIVING CRANK (C) A COUPLE OF TURNS, A PERFECTLY BALANCED BUDGET WOULD BE DISGORGED AT (D) ALONG WITH YOUR HOROSCOPE AND PLENTY OF SPENDING MONEY ($). MR. DOUGLAS COULD USE SEVERAL. HE MIGHT KEEP THE HOROSCOPES AND TURN OVER THE SPENDING MONEY TO MR. ICKES.
Malone - Washington - 1934

MOTIVES

The only reason the Roosevelt-Hull poker team invited payment in goods is because the British had insisted they could not transfer money. Messrs. Roosevelt and Hull did not intend that their call of that bluff should be taken as seriously as it was. The newspapers picked that news idea out of a single sentence in the body of the Hull note and made headlines out of it.

Mr. Roosevelt was so perturbed that his spokesmen suggested to newsmen they were over-playing the suggestion. The White House hinted that it was not by any means an important feature of the note.

HOPES

There are economists in the State Department who believe that, within a year or two, when world trade relations get somewhere near normal, transfers may be worked out on the basis of paying goods. It is, of course, ridiculous to think that any substantial portion of the debts could be paid that way, or any other.

You can, however, readily see where the existing situation leaves the debt issue.

'Calling the Bluff' Of Britain Backed By Roosevelt

BORAH

Of all the progressives, Senator Borah has been most skeptical of the New Deal. He even shies away from going to the White House whenever possible and has refused to get tied up with the administration even in the indirect way other progressive Republicans have been tied up.

For that reason, Mr. Roosevelt perked up when he saw Borah among a group of Senators at the White House a few days ago when the silver bill was signed.

The President beamed his best beam at Borah and said:

"Senator, we will get you yet."

Borah returned the President's smile, saying:

"I think you've had too much of me already."

PORTENT

That terse exchange was the frothy whitecap of a strong conflict of political undercurrents.

Mr. Borah has not announced it yet, but he is going to hie himself to the hustings during the summer. He will speak a few pieces about the NRA, AAA, et al, and, when Mr. Borah speaks his piece, it will be in the manner of a New Deal valedictory. He has far more invitations that he will be able to fill, but he will fill enough of them to make a loud national noise.

His speeches will not be under the auspices of the Republican National Committee. He is almost as skeptical of the lads in control there as he is of the new dealers.

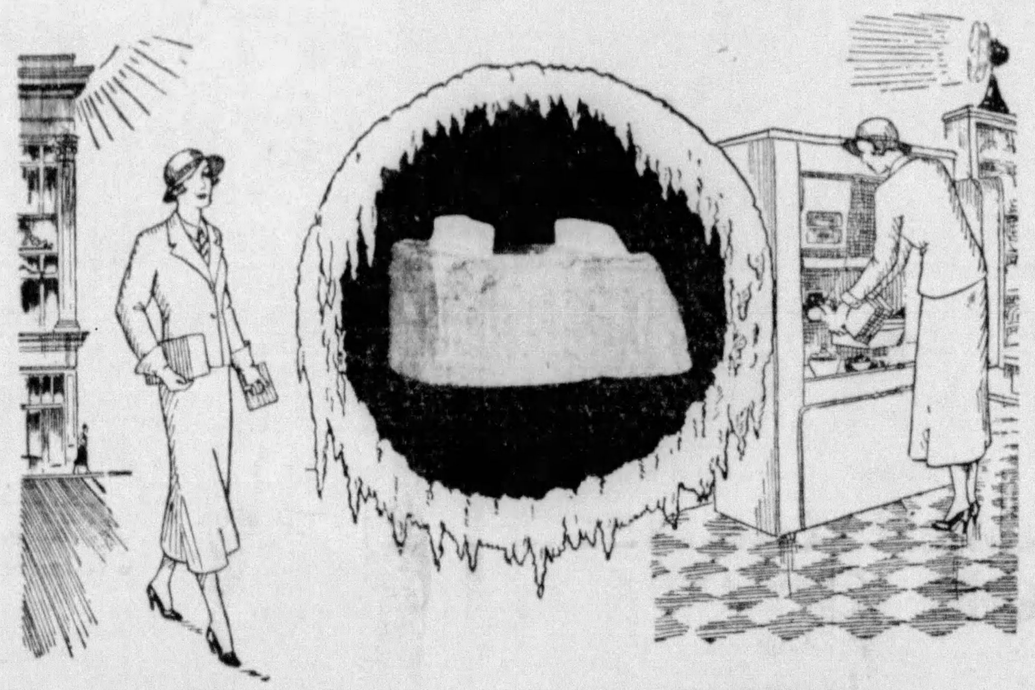
WORKS for DONAHOE'S

—first with Ice Cream

Eight years ago, Donahoe's introduced Dry Ice—not only to Pittsburgh—but to the United States at large. Wherever the Pittsburgh newspapers went, carrying the Donahoe advertisements, there went the story of Dry Ice. Thousands of merchants in hundreds of cities had never heard of Dry Ice and we were kept busy telling them what it was, how much it cost and where to get it.

—now with Butter

Eight years ago, Dry Ice was regarded by most of the few who knew about it as an interesting novelty—a scientific plaything—but Donahoe's, quickly visioning its adaptability for packing Ice Cream, were the first to put it to use in Pittsburgh and one of the very first in the entire country. Now, with their new, improved dry ice, under their own trade-marked name, "Kold Aire," Donahoe's have found another—and wider—use for it.



No More Soft Butter when the mercury soars— Kold Aire Will Keep DONAHOE'S BUTTER Hard for Two (2) Hours —or longer—on the Hottest Day

Now—on the very hottest day—the kind of day that melts the butter you buy almost to a liquid before you get it home—

You can buy your butter — the Finest Churned in America—at Donahoe's and—When you unwrap it, several hours afterward, to place it in your refrigerator—You will be delighted to find—no melted, softened mess of butter—but neat, sweet, clean cut, absolutely hard-chilled butter.

Two small pieces of Kold Aire —wrapped with your butter at no extra cost to you— —Real White Magic— do marvelous cooling work

It is impossible for butter, wrapped in the ordinary manner, to remain hard or firm, if carried around, even for a short time, in hot weather.

Once butter is melted or softened, it is never again the same—even when rehardened.

Not only is there an alteration in its physical condition—the firm smooth texture, with its clean, sweet, golden appearance is gone—but also, and most important—that intangible something with which all fine butter is so richly endowed, the flavor, the aroma, the exquisite bouquet, is released and most of it disappears once butter has been oftened and rehardened.

The softening and rehardening of fine butter does not spoil it—but, most assuredly, the sofening and rehardening does take away the "bloom" from a piece of fine butter—it often leaves a flat taste, flavor has flown. The butter no longer is "imprisoned fairy gold from nature's richest storehouse."

Donahoe's Butter is priced very low

"Kold Aire" Preserves all the pristine flavor and freshness of this fine butter for several hours, on the hottest day, no matter how high the temperature soars. Enjoy the exquisite bouquet, the rare, delicate flavor of the finest butter at its best—take it home Kold Aire wrapped. No extra charge for this extra service.

30c lb.

DONAHOE'S BUTTER— finest churned in America— is now under refrigeration from the churn to your refrigerator at home

When you leave Donahoe's Store with a package of Donahoe's Butter—

You carry the most marvelous modern refrigeration right with you in the package—two small pieces of Kold Aire, weighing practically nothing—no big bulky package—it is easy to carry. No moisture—Kold Aire does not melt, it evaporates.

Take Home the BEST Butter in Pittsburgh—the finest sold in the entire U. S.— Package Refrigerated with Kold Aire, No Extra Charge

Small Extra Charge if you desire sufficient Kold Aire to keep butter hard chilled for considerably more than two hours.

What Kold Aire Is— and What It Does

Kold Aire is nothing more nor less than your old friend carbon dioxide, which is used every day in the carbonated beverages you drink—soda water, ginger ale, etc., but Kold Aire is carbon dioxide compressed until it becomes solid. Then it resembles a mass of hard, white snow crust.

There is no drip to Kold Aire. It gives off a vapor-like, harmless, dry gas which never condenses into moisture. The evaporating gas reduces the size of the cake so slowly that the process is imperceptible. Nor does the mass "melt" in the ordinary sense, but gradually—very gradually—it diminishes, meanwhile radiating intense cold and leaving no trace.

TWO BROTHERS PLAYING IN POND DROWN

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., June 26.—(AP.)—Two young brothers are together in death as they always were in life—joined by an idyll of love and loyalty which brought their lives to an end.

And twin caskets, side by side, have added to the sorrow of a near-destitute Connellsville family. The caskets hold the drowned bodies of Fred Stillwagon, 10, and his brother, James, 8.

From a brief escapade in the life of the two boys leads a figurative path to the caskets.

The brothers were sent to the store for groceries yesterday on a food order supplied the family by a welfare agency. Warm, they stopped on the way back home to wade in Breakneck Reservoir; just wade, because neither was a good swimmer.

Water splashed, and the boys' happy voices resounded against the surrounding trees. Then James stepped into a hole. Fred went to his rescue. Both floundered and sank. Their final shouts for aid brought Samuel Free, 55, fishing some distance away.

Free, unable to swim himself, brought a motorist, unidentified, from a nearby highway. The motorist brought the bodies to the surface. Connellsville police and firemen were unable to revive them, and the bodies were taken to the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Stillwagon, to find final resting places in the twin caskets.

Science Officials To Confer Here

Shorts on Nudes In Art Exhibit Pacify Critics

CHICAGO, June 26.—(AP.)—Six young women artists painted trunks on their nude etchings today—and now the workks can be exhibited at the annual open air art fair.

The shorts, in oil and water colors, were added at the insistence of the South Parks Board, which held:

SEEK TO DISBAR AGED ATTORNEY

NEW CASTLE, Pa., June 26.—(AP.)—A recommendation for disbarment of Attorney Samuel L. McCracken has been filed with the Lawrence County Court by the grievance committe of the Lawrence County Bar Association.

Attorney McCracken, who has been practicing law in Lawrence County for 50 years, is charged with unethical practices in the handling of mortgage money. Last September he was feted by the Lawrence County Association in celebration of his golden jubilee as a lawyer.

The specific case laid before the court by the grievance committee is one in which Mrs. Elizabeth Walker placed $2,500 with Attorney McCracken for investment in a first mortgage. He is alleged to have placed the money on a property owned by Adam Boyd, and then placed another mortgage of $1,800 on it, although there were prior liens.

SEES HER MATE KILL RIVAL

ERIE, Pa., June 26.—(AP.)—A horrified woman was forced to watch early today while her husband beat an alleged rival to death with an iron bar.

The victim was Joseph Eckstein, 29.

Motorcycle Patrolman Joseph Scully quoted Tomasik as saying he struck Eckstein with the bar three times after seeing him and Mrs. Tomasik together in a field at 4 a. m., today. Eckstein and the Tomasiks were neighbors.

FAVOR MELLON IN TAX RULING

WASHINGTON, June 26.—(AP.)—The United States Court of Appeals ruled in effect yesterday that the head of a federal executive department cannot be held responsible for damages resulting from his official actions over matters entrusted to him by law.

This ruling was made in a decision in favor of Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the Treasury, and Ogden L. Mills, former undersecretary of the Treasury, in a suit brought against them by the Standard Nut Margarine Company of Florida.

It served as a test case for eight suits brought by manufacturers of oleomargarine products for damages aggregating more than $2,000,000 against Mellon and Mills personally.

It was contended that the two had attempted to tax margarine manufacturers when the tax was not authorized by law.

It was generally agreed that the decision disposes of the remaining seven cases.

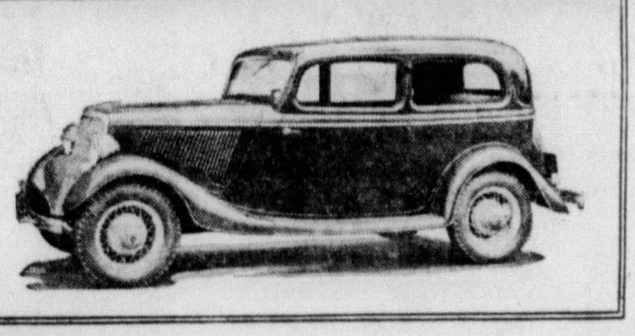
GREATEST "RATING" JOB EVER DONE HERE

BOGGS & BUHL'S FORD CONTEST

an I.B.M. job

40 of These Cars Awarded on Basis of IBM Analyses



FOR sheer size, speed, accuracy and thoroughness . . . probably nothing else of its kind ever done in the Pittsburgh district compares with the job just completed by the International Business Machines Corporation for Boggs and Buhl.

It was the reading, sorting and rating of all the ballots cast in the 65th Anniversary Sale Contest. This work by IBM led to the naming of the winners of the forty automobiles given away by the store.

The International Business Machines Corporation is proud of the fact that it was selected by Boggs and Buhl for this responsibility.

It is proud of the record it established in carrying out the job.

It submits this as an outstanding example of what CAN be done in this type of work by an organization skilled in the human and mechanical methods of handling great volumes of records.

It Took 21 Readers 1876 Man-Hours to Analyze the Fronts of These Ballots

Scene in one corner of the IBM offices where trained readers and editors read every word of the Boggs and Buhl Contest ballots.

It Took This Machine Only 50 Hours to Analyze the Backs of the Ballots

IBM's Counting Sorter which tabulates the information on the backs of Boggs and Buhl's ballots at the rate of 24,000 an hour.

How We Handled the Boggs & Buhl Contest Ballots

Almost 200,000 ballots were read. Painstakingly.

Over ten million words.

As high as 30,000 ballots were analyzed on a single day.

As many as 21 trained editors were reading the ballots at one time.

The ballot boxes closed each evening at 5:30 (two Saturdays at 9 P.M.). Each morning, when the store opened at 9 A.M., every ballot deposited the previous day had been read (word for word) graded and sorted, ready for the judges.

Not once was there a hitch in this. Not one ballot was passed over.

Repeated check-backs against the editors by IBM and by Boggs and Buhl failed to reveal a single ballot which had not been read. Secret marked ballots put through as a check on the readers invariably showed every ballot was being read.

Editors and readers worked 1876 man hours, in this analysis.

On this basis, it would have taken one person 10 months 3½ weeks to have read the ballots, working constantly on a 40-hour week.

Other IBM Jobs

—IBM was selected by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to tabulate the examination papers by which the State Liquor Control Board chose its hundreds of employes.

—IBM was chosen by the Family Society of Allegheny County to analyze case records. 50,000 cases were analyzed in 2½ weeks by this method, although it had previously taken 18 weeks to do the same work on only 30,000 cases by another method.

—IBM was chosen by a local oil company to segregate the purchases made by every customer, for every product and for every service station.

—IBM was chosen by the Tuberculosis League to analyze one of the most comprehensive health surveys ever attempted in Pittsburgh.

—IBM handles analyses on which allotments to farmers are made by the Federal Government.

—IBM services are used by the War Department, Post Office, United States Treasury, Veterans Bureau and other Federal Government departments.

POLICE SEIZE 17 AS 'FIREBUGS'

CHICAGO, June 28.—(AP.)—Police, holding 17 persons, including one woman, believed today they had uncovered a million dollar ring of "firebugs" that engaged in kidnaping and extortion as sidelines.

An investigation of a recent attempt to extort $2,000 from Harry Welch, a Toledo (O.) merchant, led to the disclosures of the activities of the arson ring which also allegedly made a business of abducting and extorting money from its own customers after they had collected their fire insurance.

Welch, who was kidnaped 11 days ago, told police he was branded by hot irons and forced to call his mother in Toledo requesting that the $2,000 be sent to Chicago. Instead she called an attorney who notified Chicago officials.

Sergt. Thomas Kelly, of the state's attorney's office, said that the inquiry had been extended to determine if the accused persons were to blame for other fires in which three firemen perished.

2 HELD IN THEFT OF PORCH RUG

Two Homestead youths are being held for court today under $300 bail each on charges of larceny and carrying firearms following a hearing before Justice of the Peace J. Clyde Miller.

They are Steve Pastor, 19, of 336 West Fourteenth avenue, and Robert Bright, of 127 West Twelfth avenue, Homestead. Police allege the pair stole a porch rug from the home of Mrs. Laura Daerr, of 1807 West street, Homestead, and sold it to a neighbor for 80 cents. Pastor was carrying a gun at the time of his arrest, police said.

Investment Banker Dies Aboard Plane

ARCHBOLD, O., June 28.—(AP.)—Robert E. Christie, Jr., 41, president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, was stricken with a fatal heart attack while aboard an airliner near here yesterday.

Christie, member of the firm of Dillon, Read & Co., died as the plane was making an emergency landing to bring him to a doctor. He boarded the plane at Akron, O., en route to Chicago for a bankers' conference.

Moonshine Seized, 6 Arrested in Raid

Six persons were arrested and two pints of moonshine whisky were seized in a raid at rear of 223 Federal street last night, police reported. Irwin and Ethel White, of the same address, were charged with violating the liquor laws and four male visitors were held as visitors to a disorderly house.

SERUM BLAMED IN BOY'S DEATH

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—(AP.)—Infantile paralysis serum made in San Francisco laboratories was under careful scrutiny of public health officers today as they sought to prevent other deaths following that of 2-year-old Jackie Baldwin who died at Healdsburg after receiving a serum injection from his father.

The serum purchased and used on his son by Dr. Bryan Baldwin showed indications of contamination, Dr. W. H. Kellogg, of the state department, said.

Robert Baldwin, 7-year-old brother of Jackie, was reported recovering after receiving an injection.

PARIS, June 26.—American hostesses have been out-prima-donnaing each other this week in a competitive merry-go-round to stage the costliest and most talked-of party of the Grande Semaine, Paris' "big week" of the year.

Everyone is wondering who will throw a thousand-bottle champagne party to out-do that dazzling affair given the other night at the Crillon by a prominent New York matron.

This party, with 600 bottles of bubble wine and two orchestras, was not altogether unintentionally bigger than the party given two nights previously by Lady Deterding, wife of the Dutch oil king.

The guests of Lady Deterding, who many say has been engaged in something of a social battle with the New York hostess, only managed to consume 500 bottles of champagne.

Those inveterate "Lion Tamers," Lady Mendl, the former Elsie De Wolfe, and Mrs. James Corrigan not only have Paris topsy-turvy with lavish entertaining this week, but actually have been standing on their own heads in preparation for it.

LADY MENDL

Those friends customarily received by Lady Mendl in her chambre de toilette, which is the equal of most elegant sitting rooms, can't miss seeing the gymnastic apparatus on which Lady Mendl does her "daily dozen," while Mrs. Corrigan's friends will marvel at how adept she is at walking on her hands.

Ganna Walska achieved a head start on other hostesses by having her huge garden party the first day of the Grande Semaine and by featuring a former chef of the czar as impressario of the culinary details, an orchestra of bagpipes and accordions, vodka for thirst-quenching, and a mighty guest list of some 200 best names.

MRS. CORRIGAN

Mrs. James Corrigan . . . keeps Paris topsy-turvy . . . makes her friends marvel at how she can walk on her hands.

Best dressed women of the Paris big week:

Baroness Robert de Faucaucourt in blue and white flowered crepe with a blue coat and a large hat to match; Ganna Walska in a gray organdie dress with a sapphire necklace and sapphire and emerald pendants each two inches square, sapphire and emerald bracelets and rings and gray hat.

You can still get them . . . cottons, novelty prints, polka dots, in all colors and sizes, 15-16-17! The sunbacked affairs that let your little shoulder blades flap coolly in the breeze and bask in the sun! With pockets! With little smartening notes like side closings and buttons! All guaranteed fast color.

VIEWING THE NEW

Come hide in the closet with us! Or isn't yours the kind that you like going into?

Closets have come out into the open in a sense! No longer places of airtight, airless dark . . . they have popped their pretty heads into their rightful place and claimed a lot of modern housewives' attention!

Witness the new closet shop that one of the stores has! Here are ensembles just the same as one would get themselves to wear! Pinks, blues, yellows, blacks . . . glazed flowered chintzes that gladden and smarten up the most cheerless closet! They include 12 hangers (covered), a 60-inch garment bag, a 12-pocket shoe bag, two hat stands, and a laundry bag . . . a complete closet family to dwell comfortably together. And priced at a sum that outclasses all similar ones for value—$4.95, all inclusive. Modern Bluebeard's wives please note . . . you're closet-conscious, we suppose!

Set sail for Plunder Island . . . which in this case happens to be a rack of frocks that one of the stores is making walk the price gangplank for $1.00!

Women all but fought over them when they were $1.79, and now!

While piques, most of them, for tennis and general sports wear. With all the emblems that make sailors beware! . . . like anchors to windward and such! And all the chic that make ladies take care . . . to include at least one of these in their wardrobe!

Collars (sailor type) . . . or backless, sleeveless styles . . . trimmed in navy or middy blue. Also a few (very few) colors. Sizes 14 to 20 . . . and not more than a handful of them, so don't delay!

And when knitted boucles hop into the clothes-breach for only $2.69, we think it's time to say something about them!

These being nice juicy shades like apricot and raspberry . . . the kind that look so well on tanned skins. Knitted into a novelty bourle weave that is interestingly different . . . and finished nicely.

With cross-over collars buttoned down with chunks of pins like butterscotch! With short sleeves either buttoned or tied in a little knot with two ends poking out. And in sizes 14 to 20 . . . not many of these either.

MAN RESCUED FROM BEATING

Police saved Harry Stoner, 28, of 1215 Federal street, from the fury of a crowd at East Ohio and East Diamond streets early today after, police alleged, Stoner hurled an automobile hub cap into the face of Alfred Romito, 31, of 1206 James street.

Stoner became involved in an argument with two men, one of whom was Romito, as he walked in Federal street, according to a police report. Romito started to walk away when Stoner hurled the cap at him, police said.

Stoner ran, pursued by a crowd of 10 to 15 men. Police, attracted by the noise of the chase, rescued Stoner. He was charged with felonious assault and battery.

STATE C. OF C. ASKS SCHOOL TAX CHANGE

HARRISBURG, June 26.—(AP.)—A committee of the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce assembled today to consider ways of avoiding new taxes for financial support of schools.

To refute proponents of a state income tax or sales levy the chamber asserts business already is paying virtually all of the $62,000,000 which the state contributes biennially to education.

FOUR POINT PLAN

In an effort to obviate the necessity of bolstering the state school subsidy with new tax sources, the chamber's committee is considering four changes in the present system of obtaining funds for the schools, as follows:

"1—Creation of a more scientific and equitable system of property assessments.

"2—Consolidation of Pennsylvania's 2,584 school districts under a more modern community or county unit district system.

"3—Centralization of tax collections in the county.

"4—Remedial measures to correct the outstanding inequalities in the method of distributing state aid."

SAID AMATEUR GUESSING

Chamber officers said:

"The system, or lack of system, of assessing property for taxation has long been the subject of educators and experts on taxation.

"As many bases of assessments may exist as there are assessors, resulting in an unscientific and inequitable treatment of properties. In the main, assessments are virtually amateurish guesses."

Discussing consolidation of school districts, the chamber said Pennsylvania has 2,584, which are managed by 13,552 board members, adding:

"The average area per district is only 17 square miles as compared with 377 in states having a more modern form of school government.

ABILITY UNEQUAL

"The financial ability of these small districts to support schools is very unequal. Some districts are so poor in taxable wealth that the tax rates levied to the limit are insufficient to provide adequate facilities even when the generous state aid is added, while nearby may be a district with so much wealth a small tax rate provides more than enough revenue.

"Due to so many small districts, it is not unusual to find that children just outside of a borough school and in close proximity to a well-graded school must walk away from this type of school into the country to attend, in some cases, one of the 6,220 one-teacher schools in their own district.

THIRD IS SCHOOL COST

"The cost of collecting all local taxes in the state is over $6,000,000, of which over $2,000,000 is the cost of collecting school taxes. In Ohio the total cost of collecting all local taxes is about one-half of that required to collect school taxes in Pennsylvania. The total local taxes levied in both states is pretty nearly equal.

"In Ohio all taxes are payable through the County Treasurer's office, while in Pennsylvania, taxes are collected by nearly 3,000 tax collectors."

In allocating financial assistance, the chamber says it is possible for a district having $1,000 less valuation back of each teacher than another district to receive 42 per cent more aid.

"It is possible for a district to spend $1,000 more for another teacher and receive an increase of $6,845 in state aid—a 584 per cent increase on the investment. The law really permits this, and such juggling actually occurs."

Taxpayer Forum Adds Four More District Heads

Four more prominent residents of Western Pennsylvania have been added to the membership of the Pennsylvania Taxpayers Forum, membership in which is limited to 100, one from each of the 67 counties and 33 at large.

Dr. C. R. Foster, president of the Indiana State Teachers College, will be the Indiana County member and R. M. Sheppard, president of the Pittsburgh and Shawmut Railroad Company, will represent Armstrong County. Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler, will be Butler County's representative and Nelson Eisaser will be Cambria County representative.

At the recent reorganization meeting of the forum, Dr. Samuel Hardem Church was elected a vice president along with Francis H. Bohlem of Philadelphia County and H. H. Keppel of Erie County. Mrs. Charles P. Davis of Chester County is president and A. S. Kempfer is executive secretary.

The forum is a state wide organization with these objectives:

1—To invite the co-operation of taxpayers' organizations throughout the state on the one issue of reduction in the cost of state and local government.

2—To disseminate through newspapers, pamphlets, bulletins and addresses, the informations and addresses, information as to comparative costs of local units of government.

3—To frame a legislative program from time to time to be introduced into the state Legislature on the subject of the cost of state government and to solicit the backing of its affiliated taxpayers' organizations in support thereof.

4—The Forum will not attempt to support or take any tempt to take any part in local issues, save at the request of an affiliated organization or as a follow up to its financial analyses.

Copper Man Leaves $4,000,000 Estate

BUTTE, Mont., June 26.—(AP.)—Probate of the will of William A. Clark, Jr., late copper magnate, disposing of property valued at $4,000,000, was asked in a petition on file in District Court here today.

Besides a bequest of $500,000 to George Plae, Los Angeles youth, whom he intended to adopt, the larger bequests included sums of $50,000 and $25,000 to employes and friends, and $100,000 in trust to Harrison Post, Los Angeles, friend and musician.

TEACHERS URGE REFORMS AT CONVENTION

CHICAGO, June 26.—(AP.)—Charging that a "Pollyanna" attitude dominated the teaching of government in the nation's schools, Abraham Lefkowitz, of New York, a vice president of the American Federation of Teachers, asserted that from the organization's convention would come a demand for a "more realistic approach to the subject."

"Civic decency must be taught as a means of eliminating corruption in government."

Lefkowitz, a spokesman for the group, said the federation probably would adopt resolutions urging the elimination of tax exempt securities and tax exempt salaries; opposing the sales tax as a violation of the principle of ability to pay; assailing shorter school terms and elimination of subjects and advocating the passage of federal child labor laws.

He charged the government had ignored the problem of education in its recovery program, saying:

"The $75,000,000 recently voted for the relief of education is merely a drop in the bucket. It is not even a recognition that there is a problem."

Dr. Henry R. Linville, of New York, president, ridiculed the suggestion that the teachers were making "any silly gesture toward seizing power." He said:

"Our 'blue printing' must involve the maintenance of the principles of democracy as against dictatorship, the principles of representative government against autocracy, the principles of freedom of speech, of the press, and of assemblage, the principle of the right of all workers to organize and set up standards on social lines.

"We cannot ultimately protect the schools as effective social agencies unless we come to accept the principles of democracy in industry, which means the acceptance in some form of the principle of political collectivism."

Florence Curtis Hanson, secretary-treasurer, reported the federation had an increase of 70.1 per cent in membership during the past year and that the total was now at the highest point in history.

Blames Juvenile Crime On Playmates' Taunts

International News Service.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., June 26.—Subnormal school children often are driven to crime because of the ridicule and taunts of their classmates unless given other interests through vocational education, Dr. Joseph Speer, director of industrial arts education in Pittsburgh schools, told the arts section of the annual vocational conference of the State Department of Public Instruction here today.

Although schools were planned for normal children, Dr. Speer pointed out, they represent but 70 per cent of the population. He declared it was the duty of the school to provide interesting and suitable work for subnormal children.

E. R. Eastman, of New York, editor of a farm magazine, explained the AAA as it applies to eastern farmers at the vocational agriculture group meeting.

Mrs. Mulford Blough, Carlisle, chairman of the home departments of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, spoke on family and community relationships before home economics teachers and supervisors.

45 Nevada Workmen Die at Boulder Dam

CARSON CITY, Nev., June 26.—(AP.)—Forty-five workmen have been accidentally killed while at work on the Nevada side of the Boulder Dam project since March, 1931, the Nevada Industrial Insurance Commission reported today.

In addition to the fatal accidents, which have averaged more than one each month, there have been 1,300 accidents, causing disabilities of seven days or more, since construction of the gigantic dam was started.

Monarch Club to Elect Heads Today

Election of officers was on the program today for the delegates to the tenth annual convention of the National Monarch Clubs which opened yesterday in the William Penn Hotel. Forty-two delegates from 21 clubs in scattered sections of the United States are attending the convention.

At yesterday's session it was decided to form a "1,500 club," to boost the national membership from 1,000 to 3,500 during the coming year. The delegates were welcomed by Mayor McNair.

Sore, Burning Feet Plagued by DERMASTALSIS
Painful foot ailment destroys cells

THERE'S nothing more damaging to your health, your comfort, your looks—than hard, lumpy callouses that actually feed on living cells, eat deep into the foot tissues... That's DERMASTALSIS, daily taking its toll of suffering victims. If you don't stop it in time, the tiniest callous becomes tough, fibrous, rock-like, growing steadily inward. Soon every step becomes an ageing, nerve-wracking torture, crushing the callous painfully against the smarting, unprotected nerves and tissues beneath.

DERMASTALSIS is bound to make being on your feet a fiery ordeal...unless you end it quickly. Don't wait till it steals time from your work and really disables you. Try this simple home treatment way to refreshing foot ease now.

At bedtime soak your feet in hot water—just 15 minutes. Then rub in COOLENE, the ivory-white, vanishing footcream. Feel the callous soften as Coolene's soothing, cooling medication stops all irritation—instantly draws out inflamed swelling from the sore, burning, tissues beneath. Checks DERMASTALSIS by removing painful pressure—softens and in a short time actually tends to destroy the entire callous growth.

Be sure to get COOLENE today. Your first application brings amazing relief. For a full day your feet will stay wonderfully cool, springy, untiring. COOLENE is greaseless—will not stain sheets or clothing.

Things I Never Knew About San Francisco.

The United States Mint in San Francisco holds about one-third of the gold possessed by the guvmint (about 2 billions in $).

Pedestrians passing the Mint can look through the windows and see several millions of dollars worth of silver in a single room. But the windows are all barred and double barred, so don't get excited.

But City kids skate down the hills which visitors from the East refuse to descend by foot or even 4-wheel-brake cars.

The Chinatown telephone exchange gives a greater degree of personal service than any other "hello" office in the U. S. If you don't find your laundryman at the number you call, the operators will ring the whole exchange until they find him (for a nickel?).

Sir Francis Drake in 1579 missed discovering the world's largest harbor at S. F. because Angel Island obstructed the view!

The word "hoodlum" originated in S. F. A gang of muggs who wore hoods on their "uniforms" and who used to raid and burn Barbary Coast joints were given this name. They were the first gangsters in the Bay City.

The superintendent of Steinhart Aquarium in Golden Gate Park is tagged Seale. (Bet he stays home on April Fool's Day!)

Even those who do not especially go in for city boosting will shrink in horror if you call it "Frisco." (Don't ask me the reason.)

You get your wrist slapped, too, if you forget to refer to the earthquake of 1906, known as "the great fire." (Remember, now!)

Lieut. James Boland, in charge of San Francisco's City Prison, is the only officer of his rank in the dep't who has a misspelled badge. An old jeweler inscribed "leutenant" on his shield years ago. (Boland was so happy at gaining the new post he never changed it.)

To those proofreaders who asked, Boland said: "It's the man that makes the badge, not the badge that makes the man, in police work!" Boland knows. He ruled the Barbary Coast when it was too tough.

All San Francisco Bay Bridge workers, while on the job, wear steel helmets, steel capped shoes and life preserver vests. (The vest would keep a man afloat if he fell in the bay wearing all that steel!)

Sid Grauman, the Hollywood premiere merchant, was once an usher in his pappy's moom-pitcher house on Market Street!

Rudyard Kipling wasted too many days trying to land a berth on a Frisco newspaper. (They didn't know how well he could "kipple.")

The first tongs were started in San Francisco in the gold rush days in Chinatown. There are no tongs in China and there never have been.

San Francisco is one of the few combined city-counties in the nation.

The cable-car was invented in S. F. There are more of these lines still operating here than in any other place in the world.

A spring of water runs constantly under Fillmore Street, directly under King Solomon's Temple, in this city-by-the-sea.

You can get a meal, in this town, cooked in the manner of any race or country, including the Bronx and the Eskimo.

Your Theater And Mine

By KARL KRUG

LIKE A SNOWBALL

The movement of the church against motion pictures is so far-reaching and involves so many angles that it is impossible to ignore it. I have been intending to say something about it, but Jack Alicote, fair-minded editor of the Film Daily, has done it for me. Under the heading, "A Snowball . . . Rolls Down Hill," he writes:

". . . Like the proverbial snowball rolling down hill, this movement of opposition is gaining momentum with each new turn. In spots it is thoroughly unreasonable, but the movement has become more than a threat, is serious and cannot be ignored much longer.

"What this industry could stand is a united, CONSCIENTIOUS job of reselling itself, through its own screens, to its hundred million film patrons.

"We have just talked to a substantial, clean-cut moral producer who has a right to be worried. He asks: 'And now where is the producer headed? What do they want us to produce? If we please one group, the other bunch kicks. An honest, straightforward story is a cinch to be found immoral by some, and when we sacrifice intelligence and logic, the critics roast us for lack of courage. And if we take the middle course, we are panned by everybody.'

"We can sympathize with him for he is about right."

There is no doubt that the movies, in many, many instances deserve to be spanked. On the other hand, it is practically impossible to ignore sex in pictures. Where the producers have made one of their biggest mistakes is in permitting their advertising and publicity departments to flaunt off-color stories in the faces of the public.

Many photoplays are perfectly harmless when seen on the screen, yet from the billing they get, the layman, and he is the one to be considered, receives the impression they are a combination of "Desire Under the Elms," "White Cargo," "Rain" and "The Green Hat" all rolled into one.

Sex has always been, and always will be, the chief basis of the output of fiction writers. To attempt to skirt around the fact that sex plays an important part in modern, daily life is preposterous. It must be included in motion picture plots, but the studios should handle it intelligently and with less emphasis. Also in some American communities and certain European countries there is a rigid exclusion of children under certain ages from some pictures.

I hold no brief for motion picture producers. I think they have brought this movement against their product to a head by their own actions, to a great extent. On the other hand, certain of the talkies, now banned, are perfectly harmless, in my opinion, for the entire family to see.

A certain photoplay, now showing in Pittsburgh, was recently brought under a church ban. One clergyman saw it before it had gone on the list of taboo films and expressed gratification at the "clean-cut theme of the picture." Yet that very film is now on the outlawed side.

At the moment, Hollywood producers are making a great to-do over the purchases of several Broadway plays. Among them are "Sailor Beware," "The Pursuit of Happiness," "She Loves Me Not," "Tobacco Road" and "The Green Bay Tree." Every one reeks with sex, and one carries a theme that should never even get near a studio. Just how they are to be handled to get by censor boards, I haven't the faintest idea.

The problem of what to produce and what not to produce is a big one, I know. Yet it can be mastered in a manner to satisfy everyone.

Parents, too, should make a serious effort to choose their children's film fare. There is such a thing as adult screen entertainment, and I think there always will be. Keep youngsters away from those films that deliberately flaunt immorality in their advertising. Chances are many of them will be harmless, but if the producers choose to "sell" their wares in that manner, take them at their word.

The Great American Family should be its own best censor board.

Full Moon Is Worry of Censor

By GEORGE SEIBEL

With a full moon high in the heavens above the giant fronds of the trees that fringe the Arnold School campus, the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse presented a pleasant romantic comedy, "The Curtain Rises," as an appropriate curtain-raiser for their summer season. B. M. Kaye has shown a quietly desperate spinster who has never been kissed making her last stand for love by engaging an actor to teach her the art of acting.

Mr. Seibel

The great Viennese star whom she is trying to engage for this part sees nothing in the plain little church mouse, and puts her off on his understudy. The understudy proves such an excellent tutor that the pupil is transformed into a brilliant Juliet, and when the great star decides that he will be her tutor from now on she decides that she will choose her own Romeo.

This delightful plot, neither startlingly novel nor any too probable, is worked out with charmingly sentimental touches to a satisfying romantic climax. It was so satisfying, in fact, that the curtain was quite reluctant to shut off the final kiss, which the censor must condone as the fault of the full moon and the dreamy trees. But Helen Wayne as Elsa and Robert Gill as Franz had played their parts with such vibrant sincerity that not all the blame for the curtain's hesitation should be visited upon the June night.

The most notable advance of this group of players was in their vocal work, for they have acquired a smoothness and fullness of voice which are rarely met with on the provincial Broadway. William Roos acted the matinee idol with all the full-blown vanity of the decaying trooper, while George Rowland, Jr., as a blandly vapid newspaper man shared the comedy honors with Irene Cowan as a domestic angel with a spice of dragon. DeLisle Crawford and Patti Littell as another pair of lovers rounded out the cast of seven with a natural vivacity agreeably human.

But to Helen Wayne and Robert Gill go the honors for making the romance seem real—and to her for some pretty comedy touches a few extra "wenches"—to understand that allusion you should see the play, which I strongly advise as an intelligent and agreeable way to spend a night in June.

Arthur Marlowe had done the direction with excellent taste, and everything worked smoothly except the curtain—whose eccentricities are both understandable and forgiveable. The comedy will be repeated every night this week, and the drapery will no doubt overcome its slight hesitancy, to save the censor further embarrassment.

HOLLYWOOD, June 26.—Hello! Has your little poochie-woochie—your little dog, in other words—looked over the latest in canine menus? Don is opening an ultra-modern canine cafe in Beverly Hills. He has purchased a fleet of light, speedy autos and will start a daily delivery service for the doggy dinners.

THE BEST NEWS of the film year is the arrival on the screen of "The Thin Man"... Dashiell Hammett's greatest mystery novel comes to life...breathless with excitement, packed with laughs and tense moments. No wonder Alexander Woollcott said: "The best detective story yet written in America." And what a marvelous movie they've made of it!

All In A Day

By MARK HELLINGER

In Which the Customers Do the Work.

"HERE'S A little tale that's going the rounds, Mark," writes Cora Moore, "and it seems to be right up your alley. Take a look at it:

"A Mr. Cohen, who had purchased tickets on an air line from New York to California, appeared in the plane office the day before he was scheduled to fly. He spoke to the clerk in charge.

"'If you don't mind, please,' he said, 'I'm canceling my tickets on tomorrow's plane. My wife and I aren't going in the plane.'

"'Certainly, Mr. Cohen,' replied the clerk. 'We will refund your money. But might I ask the reason for your change of mind?'

"The customer shrugged his shoulders.

"'I was reading in the paper about an airplane accident this morning,' he returned, 'and I didn't like the way it sounded. So I'm not flying, and I'm going by train instead.'

"The clerk smiled indulgently.

"'My dear Mr. Cohen,' he advised, 'you can, of course, do as you wish, but I want to tell you that you are making a mistake. I take it that you're a sensible man and that you believe in fate. Am I correct?'

"'So what?' said Mr. Cohen.

"'So this,' continued the clerk. 'Being a sensible man, you must realize that when it's your time to go—why, then it's your time to go. When your number is up, it's all over.

"'It makes no difference what you do, Mr. Cohen. You can be on a boat, or walking the sidewalk, or riding on a train. When your number is up, you're finished. Don't you realize that?'

"Mr. Cohen nodded.

"'I'm realizing everything,' he agreed. 'But, please, just give me back my money.'

"'All right, sir,' was the reply. 'You can have it. But surely you don't believe that your number is up, do you?'

"Mr. Cohen slapped the desk.

"'Never mind my number,' he cried. 'How about the pilot?' . . .

* * *

"DID you hear," asks Ed Lowry, "about the man who was tossed out of the Barbers' Union because he used profane language?

"Absolutely, Mark. He talked too dandruff!" . . .

"IF you can stand one more story about the city salesman who registered at the small southern hotel," writes Joey Nash, "why, then, here it is:

"This bird arrived at the hotel very late one night and was advised that he'd have to share a bed with another man because the place was so crowded.

"He was assigned to a room in which a drunken Texas cowpuncher had the other half of the bed. The puncher had been too stewed to undress, and had rolled into bed with his entire outfit on, including his spurs.

"The room had no light, so the salesman undressed in the dark and crawled into bed. Every time the cowpuncher moved his spurs dug into the salesman. The latter man stood it as long as possible—and then shook the cowboy until he awakened him.

"'Say,' he demanded, 'who do you think you are anyway?'

"'Suh,' was the drawled reply. 'Ah'm a southerner and a gentleman.'

"'Gentlemen, hell!' fumed the salesman. 'If you were a gentleman, you'd cut your toenails!' . . .

Echoes From Cabarets

By THE ROUNDER

At the conclusion of this, their final week at the Urban Room, Hotel William Penn, Saturday, those Panchito and Marion pretties, who have been showing footwork on the seventeenth floor, will have their first rest since last October. Paul Pendarvis, whose band comes to the Urban Room Tuesday, July 3, will bring his own entertainers with him, including Patricia Norman, singer, and a specialty xylo band of five pieces.

The Casino, Cliff Milne, managed by Fred Sanders, who has no association with any oldtime night club, is one of the cool spots that is gaining in favor with patrons, especially those of Coraopolis Heights and Sewickley.

Three years ago Lew Mercur brought the Sherdena Walker Band, which is now furnishing the music at his Villa Royale, from Cleveland, to play at his then popular Club Alaban. After being shifted to his Plantation, the band, then known as Harry Draper's, came under the supervision of Sherdena Walker, who has managed it ever since. Billy Maxey's floor show also is at the Villa.

A visitor from York, Pa., was discussing food and menus with Freda Pope at the Boat last week, claiming that he, too, had to deal with the problem of varied diet at his hotel. Then Freda read his card, that of S. Latimer Stiles, in charge of the York county jail.

Eddie Hartner's trouble about a dancing permit, which has kept his Mirado Cafe, Beaver Falls, closed the last three weeks, has finally been ironed out, and he will open again with Jack Barry's floor show and Gene Coy's Band.

The Madoo Club will hold its annual summer cabaret dance at the Club Mirador, Homestead, tomorrow. Leroy Bradley's Orchestra will furnish the dance music and there will be a floor show. Assisting Leo Greenberg, chairman on arrangements, are Abe E. Lipsitz, Ben Sissel, Maurice Tackna, Harry L. Sisselsky, Maurice Kanta, Joseph Weitzman, Morris J. Martin, Bernard Weiner, and Nathan Malin.

MUSIC

Jeanne Brideson.

Jeanne Brideson, whom we have not heard publicly since she was almost an infant, played again for quite an audience in the Winchester School auditorium last night, Ralph Lewando played her accompaniments.

Mr. Lissfelt

Since her last public appearance Jeanne has improved in security of attack, in freedom of expression and her tone is adult tone. Her stage appearance is charming and she plays with much simplicity of manner. There is a real healthy quality to her music.

The program included two movements of the Mendelssohn Concerto, shorter works of Kreisler, Sarasate and Ries, and closed with the "Scherzo Tarentelle" of Wieniawski and the Paganini "Witches Dance."

40,000 FACTS ABOUT 1933

Forty thousand current facts about the world from Aalborg, Denmark, back to the Zuyder Zee, in Holland, are contained in the New Standard Year Book for 1933, published today by the Funk & Wagnalls Company, New York.

New achievements in art, science, politics, athletics and all forms of endeavor are reported in the annual year book, including a complete resume of the New Deal, the outstanding event of 1933.

The publishers are said to aim at writing the history of 1933 in as concise a form as possible, providing ready refecence for everything that happened of importance.

3 IN GRADUATING CLASS DROWN

International News Service.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., June 26.—The bodies of three students who were to have been graduated from Watertown High School tomorrow lay on the bottom of Black River Bay, Lake Ontario, today—one a 19-year-old girl and the others two youths who were drowned trying to save her.

The bodies, for which police were dragging the waters of the bay, were those of Cecelia Kamalsky, Raymond Butterfield, 18, and Robert Case, 18. Eight other students were saved when the little dinghy in which they were motoring was swamped by a wave 75 yards from shore.

The tragedy shattered the gay atmosphere of the annual senior picnic held for the 125 members of the graduating class.

Every Conceivable Force WORKED TO TEAR THESE TIRES TO PIECES

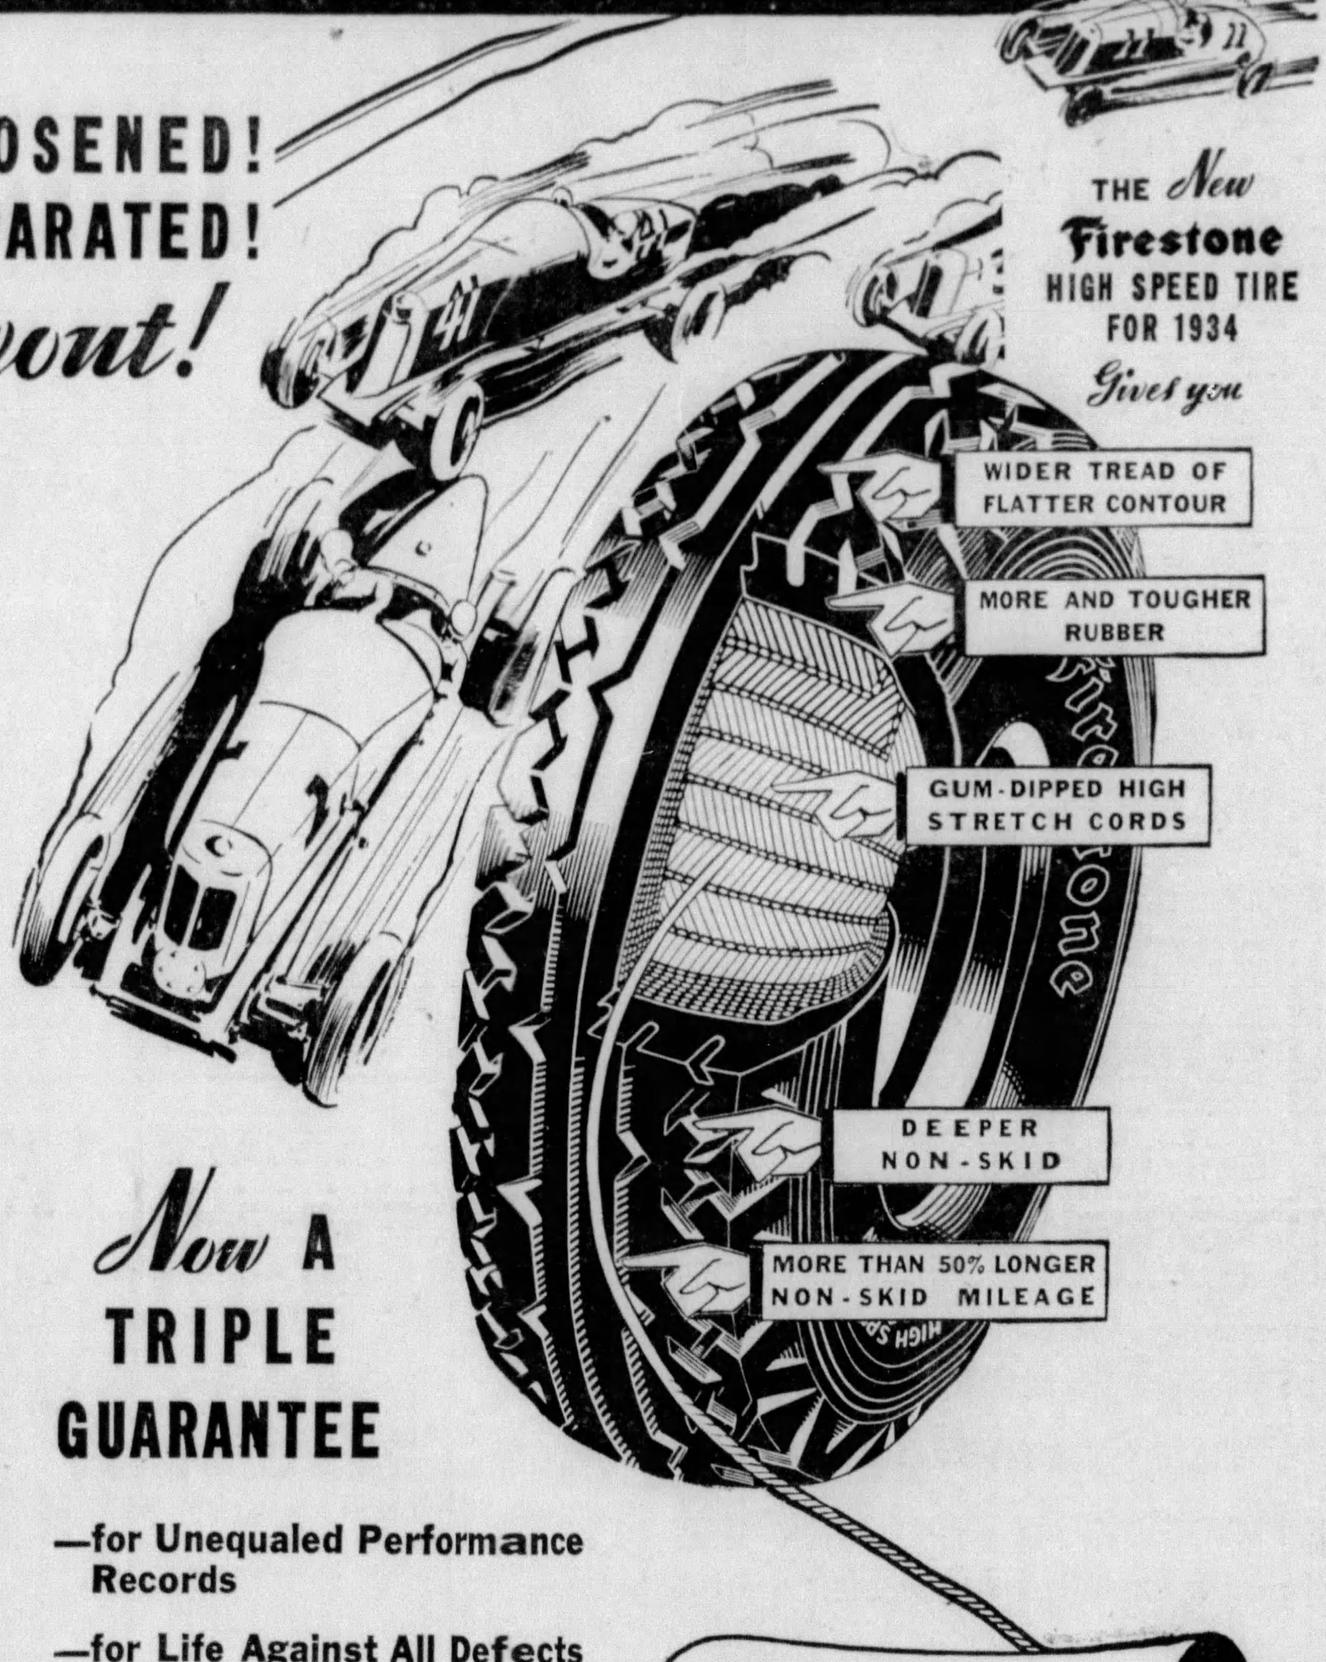
But NOT ONE CORD LOOSENED! NOT ONE TREAD SEPARATED!

Not one Blowout!

AS thirty-three speed demons careened and slid around the steep banked curves of the hot brick track, tires shrieked and smoked . . . break-neck speeds, 150 miles and more down the straightaway—tremendous centrifugal force tugging to rip the tread from the body of the tire. In fact, every conceivable force worked to tear the tire to pieces, but not one cord loosened—not one tread separated—and not a single blowout. What amazing proof of Tire Strength—Safety—Quality and Dependability!

Every one of the thirty-three drivers at the Indianapolis 500-mile sweepstakes chose and bought Firestone High Speed Tires. The fact that not one of the 132 tires failed is your greatest guarantee of the Extra Safety—Strength — and Dependability built into Firestone Tires.

The New Firestone High Speed Tire for 1934 is Safety-Protected on the outside by a wider tread of flatter contour, deeper non-skid, more and tougher rubber, giving you more than 50% longer non-skid mileage—Safety-Protected on the inside by eight additional pounds of pure rubber absorbed by every 100 pounds of cords. This additional rubber surrounds every cotton fiber inside every cord in every ply. This is accomplished by the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, which soaks the cords in liquid rubber, counteracting damaging frictional heat, the greatest enemy of tire life.



THE New Firestone HIGH SPEED TIRE FOR 1934
Gives you
WIDER TREAD OF FLATTER CONTOUR
MORE AND TOUGHER RUBBER
GUM-DIPPED HIGH STRETCH CORDS
DEEPER NON-SKID
MORE THAN 50% LONGER NON-SKID MILEAGE

Now A TRIPLE GUARANTEE

—for Unequaled Performance Records

—for Life Against All Defects

—for 12 Months Against All Road Hazards*

MAKE THIS TEST YOURSELF

Note how the rubber in a Firestone Tire clings to the high stretch Gum-Dipped cords. This greater adhesion and strength is made possible by the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping.

Note how the rubber pulls away from cords that have not been Gum-Dipped. Regardless of the number of cord plies in tires not built with Gum-Dipped cords, friction will develop intense heat, and heat will separate the plies—very often causing blowouts. Only in Firestone Tires are friction and heat counteracted by Gum-Dipping.

Greatest Guarantee of All

Get the protection of the Firestone Triple Guarantee—for unequaled performance records—for life against all defects—for twelve months against all road hazards.

New Series Begins on WJAS

The Columbia-WJAS network livens the summer season with two new series of programs, beginning tonight.

George Givot, "Greek Ambassador of Good Will," has been signed with Freddie Rich's Orchestra of 45 pieces for a half hour broadcast of comedy and popular music each Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock.

Dance orchestras filling summer engagements at Atlantic City will play 12 programs each week over the network. Isham Jones starts off the series tonight at 11:30.

"Q S T . . . urgent . . . find Henry Caldwell . . . communicate with sister in Los Angeles . . . . urgent . . . Q S T."

This message was relayed 'round the world by amateur radio operators. They found the man who had been missing 20 years, and his sister was saved from separation from her small child.

The story is dramatized over WCAE tonight at 11.

Notes About Radio Stars, Stations

By AIRCASTER

Strange as it may seem, up to the moment, there has been only a single June wedding among the radio artists, and that one sets perhaps an all-time record for brief honeymoons.

Charley Barer is the bass player for Fred Waring. When not umpahing, he visits the golf courses and makes divots.

The other day he saw a young woman take a chair on the club house porch. He recognized her mind, throwing down his club, went up to her and said, casually: "Hey, let's get married."

That was 12:30 in the afternoon. At 1 o'clock they had bought a ring.

At 1:30 they were looking for a preacher.

At 2:20 they were man and wife.

And at 3 p. m. the bridegroom was rehearsing with the Pennsylvanians.

The bride is Dorothy Virginia Bell, of Hollis. They met five years ago.

BETTING GAME

A story came out of Minneapolis the other day, and since then it has been discovered that the same thing described in the dispatch has been going on locally for some time.

It is a new gambling racket, based on the policy system, and employing radio programs as deciding factors.

It works like this:

Subscribers send in their money to the banker and wager with him on various programs. The bettor may vote either way that Amos or Andy will speak first when they go on the air that night, or that Gertrude Berg will be heard before "Jake."

Bets are also made on the number of times a popular song will or will not be played over one station in the course of a night.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Yesterday we had two interesting anniversaries.

The first was the sixtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lemon, of Saltsburg, Pa., who celebrated the event surrounded by their eight children and eight grandchildren.

The other anniversary, or rather anniversaries, were those of Mr. and Mrs. Dan O'Leary of Frankstown road, 21 years married, and their next door neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Leary, 28 years married.

Dan and John are brothers as well as neighbors.

The fire marshal of Tarentum, Pa., whose letter is appropriately written in flaming ink, is blazing with enthusiasm over his two daughters, Hilda Marian, 18, who graduated this year from Tarentum High School with an 8-year perfect attendance record, and Val Jean, a sophomore in Tarentum High, who also has a perfect 8-year record for school attendance.

Lawrence, Jr., isn't doing so badly either.

He is only 11 years old and is in the seventh grade of Tarentum Public School. For the last four years he has kept his record perfect.

The fire marshal's letter ends:

Congratulations from all Globe Trotters.

E. G., of East Pittsburgh, is a bit confused about Boys' Day at Forbes Field. Boys' Day is on Friday only and the boys are admitted without payment of government tax. The women who take advantage of Ladies' Day on Thursday are required to pay Uncle Sam 10 cents.

WCAE Features Tonight

George Seibel, dramatic critic of the Sun-Telegraph, speaks at 7 on "Plays and Players," bringing to the radio audience all the highspots of the theatrical world. At 5:45, Marie Moss, pianist, offers her own favorite airs.

At 4 o'clock, Phyllis Morton, dramatist, gives a poetical program, and at 6:25 and 11 o'clock the baseball scores are flashed.

MANY 'COMICS' WAIT PARADE

When the big parade of the Sun-Telegraph comics is staged at Kennywood Park, Friday July 13, it is expected that this unique procession will be one of the most colorful ever held in Pittsburgh. Scores of little boys have already decided to enter as "Micky Mouse" there will be a bevy of "Tillie the Toilers," plenty of Juvenile "Popeyes" and lots of youngsters will appear as the counterpart of "Skippy," "Snuggins" and Junior." There's going to be lots of prizes for the best "make-ups," including dandy high-priced bicycles, complete outfits of clothes and loads of other things that boys and girls will want.

Pa.

The parade of the comics will be the feature of the annual Sun-Telegraph Day at Kennywood when hundreds of strips of free tickets will be given away for the rides and attractions. Watch the Sun-Telegraph for coupons to be printed.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Jesse Hawkins' orchestra plays a special 45 minute program of Modern Melody from 10:45 to 11:30.

Other dance bets—Baron Elliott's band at 6:15 and Freddie Herrick's orchestra at 8:30.

Eddie Peyton's band is also included in the dance cycle with the usual half-hour of music and fun, starting at 11:30.

Dorothy Discourages Max's Whirlwind Courtship

MY LIFE AND LOVES
—By MAX BAER
World Heavyweight Boxing Champion

CHAPTER IX

When I met Dorothy Dunbar in the "Willows," a casino in Reno, something hit me like my own right hand.

I can't remember if I proposed to her the minute I saw her, or whether it was formal and I waited about five minutes. But I was in love! Boys, I was all on fire like a volcano, and had just one thought in life—to marry Dorothy.

Was she impressed? Yes, sir. Just like an operatic star would be impressed if a college boy proposed. Oh, yes, Dorothy was nice—and she was patient with me. She pointed out that I was very young at 21, and that she was a few years older, and that she really liked me—liked my enthusiasm and all that—and would be glad to be friends with me. But as for marriage—did I know some GOOD jokes?

'Cinch to Be Champion'

She asked me who I was—what I did. Boys, was I wounded! I just had forgotten all about being a fighter. Dorothy's indifference toward me stirred me up again. I told her how good I was—that I was a cinch to be champion.

Dorothy is a mighty fine girl, and very refined. Otherwise, I guess she would have yawned. As it was, she said she guessed the reason she hadn't heard about me was because she didn't read the sports pages much, and read only the New York papers, anyway.

The next time I saw her was the next day. I made it my business to see her. I'm like that. If I get an idea, I crash through with it—regardless. I wanted Dorothy, and the fact that she wasn't wild about me, or even half wild, didn't discourage me. I renewed my proposal.

MRS. JACOB BAER AND HER SON . . . . . HE MAY BE THE CHAMPION, BUT MA'S THE BOSS

Dorothy smiled—and smiled.

Eyes Set on Garden

"Listen, lady," I said, "I'm no big shot now—not the way you see it. You've been busting around in society, and you think fighters are all polookas. But I want to tell you that Madison Square Garden will be wanting me to fight there pretty soon, and when I hit New York I'll be looking you up, and I'll have a 16-cylinder car, and a secretary, and a chauffeur."

"Really."

If it had been a guy that said "really" to me in a tone like that, I'd have another knockout to my credit. But you know how it is—you've got to handle ladies gently. So I merely said:

"And, furthermore, I'll be a world champion, too. Get that? The champion of champions! You won't need to read the sports pages to hear about me. I'll be on the front pages—all of them. I'll be seeing you in New York."

Spends $5,000 in Week

"Yes, do," said Dorothy, "I'll be wanting to see your choice in secretaries and chauffeurs, and perhaps you will have a valet, too—and a butler?"

Dorothy was good at repartee—awfully good. She kept kidding me right up to the time I left Reno, which wasn't a long time after, because my money had run out. I hated to quit the town with Dorothy there, but I had to get back to Oakland for a couple of reasons, and the second was that I wanted to get Ham Lorimer and Ancil Hoffman smoked up about getting me a fight in Madison Square Garden, New York.

Ancil and Ham then jointly managed me. This is the way it worked out:

I surrendered 16 2-3 per cent interest in myself, thus reducing my ownership in myself to 50 per cent. That gave Ham and Ancil 50 per cent, which they split equally. Ancil said later that the arrangement provided he was to pay me $5,000 in cash immediately (which he had paid, and which I had spent in one week of wooing in Reno), and that he was to pay $20,000 more out of his 25 per cent as earned by me in my fights.

A 30 Per Center

Ham did turn over Ancil's $5,000 but that is all he paid to me. Ancil says he paid Ham $5,000 in cash when the contract was signed, and since then paid Ham almost all of the additional $20,000, but Ham never gave me any of that. I'm suing Ham about it now.

I may say at this time that I get only 30 per cent of my earnings. My pals, the Jacklich brothers, in Oakland, thought early in 1930 that I was as good as I had been telling them, and they offered me $15,000 for a 10 per cent interest. After I had recovered from my dizzy spell, I whispered:

"In cash?"

"Yes," they answered.

"Bring it around right away and I'll sign the papers."

I didn't have much hope they'd show up—thought they were pulling a joke. But back they came with $15,000. I signed away a 10 per cent interest in my earnings and I guess it—the $15,000—lasted about a month.

Provides for Parents

When I completed the deal with Ancil and Ham, my original 66 2-3 had shrunk to 40 per cent. I got to thinking about my inability to keep money, and my responsibility to my parents, so when Ancil began handling my business affairs, I signed a document authorizing that the first 10 per cent of any money due was to be given to my parents.

So I'm a 100 per cent fighter—ask Max Schmeling and Primo Carnera—but get only 30 per cent of what I earn. That's why I'm busted so often—that and a few other reasons like gray suits, blue suits, brown suits, swallow-tail suits and law suits—and, of course, girls who don't sue.

When you buy
AN AUTOMATIC REFRIGERATOR
you want "the facts"...

Here they are!

WE BELIEVE that the New Air-Cooled Electrolux is the very best of all automatic refrigerators. And we want to tell you why.

Electrolux operates upon a different principle than the others . . . a simpler, more efficient principle. A tiny gas flame circulates a simple refrigerant. Ordinary air cools it. For that reason it costs less to operate, has no moving parts to wear and need costly repairing, is permanently silent, and gives constant steady cold.

Only Electrolux can offer you all those things. In addition, the new Air-Cooled Electrolux has the modern conveniences that women appreciate so much.

Here are a few of them: Temperature regulator. Split shelf. New gleaming white Newtone finish. Trigger tray release. And many others.

You buy more than a kitchen appliance when you buy an automatic refrigerator. You buy fuller protection for foods . . . new pleasure in preparing salads and desserts.

Please consider this an invitation to come in and see the New Air-Cooled Electrolux. We know you'll appreciate it more after actually examining it.

And remember. Your own gas company stands back of Electrolux—promptly and willingly services every one it sells.

Operates for only 2¢ A DAY

says Mae West

"It seems to me that the occasional smoker is a better judge of a cigarette than the constant smoker. At least, your occasional smoker is apt to be more critical.

"Off the screen I never smoke. On the screen, I smoke when the part demands it. And I want a cigarette that is non-irritating, mild and easy on the throat. After trying many brands I settled upon Old Gold as my 'picture smoke.' It's delightfully smooth—and free of bite—and doesn't give the least discomfort to the throat.

"If I ever decide to take up smoking in earnest, you may be sure Old Gold will be my brand."

(Signed) MAE WEST

Many Boys and Girls Building Planes In Preparation for First Derby, July 7

By J. JAMES MOORE
Pittsburgh Wing Commander

Hello, Junior Birdmen! There's going to be great excitement, plenty of fun and lots of close competition at the first annual Pittsburgh Model Plane Derby to be held Saturday, July 7, at Schenley Oval in Schenley Park.

Boys and girls throughout Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia are building their models today in preparation for the meet. From all indications, and with good weather, it will be the most successful contest of its kind ever held here.

Many members have already completed their all-balsa plane, others are working on their single propelled stick model and still others are getting ready to build their double propelled plane. Those are the three eligible models.

If you have not already sent in your entry blank you ought to do so at once. And if you have not secured your eight-page book of rules and pink entry blank, send for it now. It will be sent you free upon request.

All you need do is send a penny postcard or letter to our Junior Birdman headquarters in the Sun-Telegraph Building and ask for a copy of the model plane regulations for the forthcoming derby.

SIGN APPLICATION WITH THIS COLUMN

If you are not already a member, you ought to sign the application blank appearing with this column and mail it immediately so we can list you as a Junior Birdman or Junior Birdwoman and make you eligible as a contestant for the July meet.

An average of 75 boys and girls are joining the local wing every day. Many of them write in to headquarters after they get their wings, telling me how much they like them. Send for yours today.

After the plane derby we are going to have another contest of a different nature. If you are not so good at building flying models your chance will come later.

I also want to tell you that you can belong to all other junior aviation societies and still compete for the wonderful prizes in the coming contest by joining the Junior Birdmen and by filling out one of the pink entry blanks.

Eighteen gold, silver and bronze medals will be given the Group "A" and Group "B" winners as prizes. And the boy or girl getting the most points for the three flying events will be declared Pittsburgh's Model Plane Champ.

Besides he or she will receive a trophy and a free trip to Washington, D. C., to take part in the national model plane contest on July 28. One of the prizes in the nationals is a three-week trip to Europe. How would you like to win that?

ARMY INSIGNIA NO. 5

The attractive shield-like insignia on the planes of the U. S. Army Air Corps' 9th Observation group.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS BOX

Byrne Lyons, Grindstone, Pa.—According to the new regulations, only eight (8) members are required to form a Flight Squadron. Your group of 15 boys would almost be enough to form two squadrons.

Thomas E. Coll, 456 Columbia avenue, North Side—I am glad to publish your letter, which reads: "I want to organize a Flight Squadron. Now if there are any of your members that live somewhere near here see me at once. If you are not a member, join now and then see me. It won't be too late."

Miss Dorothy Gaukel, 2434 Berg street, South Side—We have quite a number of members who live on the South Side. Later we will arrange so that members can correspond with one another. However, I am going to publish part of your letter, hoping that you will get some response. "I would like to know if anybody in this neighborhood belongs to the Junior Birdmen. If you know him or have members from the South Side put me in touch with them."

Margaret Schmidt, 7734 Bennett street—Eagle membership cards will range in size from 1 by 2½ inches to 3 by 5 inches, depending on whether you want a wallet size. Send 10 cents for membership cards and 25 cents for wallet size.

Wade Thomas, 1248 Bowman street—The dictionary lists that you missed will most likely be published next in the 15th issue. They will also be published in booklet form. You can get them then.

DICTIONARY LIST NUMBER 23

COWLING—A removable covering which extends over and around the engine to protect it. Also used to streamline wheels, etc.

COWLING (N. A. C. A.)—A cowling inclosing a radial air-cooled engine, consisting of a hood or ring.

COWLING (RING)—A ring-shaped cowling placed around a radial air-cooled engine to reduce its drag and improve cooling.

COWLING (WHEEL)—A covering placed around the wheel of a plane, with an opening at the bottom where the wheel protrudes to make contact with the ground. Usually referred to as "pants."

CRABBING—Flying sideways to the direction of flight. This is necessary when flying in a high wind. It is also known as "yawing."

CRADLE (BUILDING)—A support provided for the frame of a rigid airship or the keel of a semi-rigid airship, during construction.

CRADLE (DOCKING)—A support for the car of an airship while it is being inflated in the shed; most used with rigid airships.

CREW (LANDING OR GROUND)—A detail of men necessary for the landing and handling of an airship on the ground.

Happy Landings!

May Ban Street Livestock Displays

An ordinance has been introduced in Council which would prohibit the display of chickens, ducks and other live fowls on sidewalks in front of stores without a permit from the Department of Health. A fine of $50 has been provided for violation.

Mayors' Plumbing Veto Overridden

Another McNair veto has been overridden by City Council, which has affirmed the plumbing ordinance providing standards of sanitary equipment for liquor dispensaries and other public gathering places. The Mayor argued that the new regulations would hamper the building industry and put an added burden on business. Two members of Council, Walter R. Demmler and John M. Huston, voted to sustain his position.

Accused Governor In Plea for Office

BISMARCK, N. D., June 26.—(AP.)—Gov William Langer made a last-minute plea today for renomination in Wednesday's primary, in the face of his recent conviction of a felony. Two days after the primary election, Langer and four co-defendants, convicted nine days ago of soliciting funds from federal relief workers, are scheduled to appear before Judge Andrew Miller at Fargo.

Beaver Woman Killed By Auto

BUTLER, Pa., June 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. Agnes Bartelt Boyd, 71, one-time national officer of the Daughters of the American Revolution, died today from injuries received in an automobile accident.

Police said she was injured by a car driven by Paul Lake, of McKees Rocks, on the Perry highway near Warrendale Friday night.

Mrs. Boyd was the widow of C. M. Boyd, pioneer of Western Pennsylvania.

M'NAIR CABINET FIGHTS BRILLIANT INCINERATOR SITE

U. P. ASSEMBLY ENDS HISTORIC SESSIONS

College Social Life Regulation Left To Synods

OXFORD, O., June 26.—Having refused, after five years of negotiations, to pursue the subject of union with the Presbyterian Church further and to make a final deliverance on the subject of "social life" in the church colleges, and indorsing the campaign for decent motion pictures, launched by the Catholic Church, the seventy-sixth General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church adjourned its sessions here last night. Next year's Assembly will meet in the First Church, Akron.

Chief interest in the day's session centered around the report of the Committee on Education. Two memorials had been presented to the Assembly asking for action on the subject of dancing and card playing in the colleges of the church.

COLLEGE HEADS SPEAK

After a lengthy discussion in which Dr. Robert N. Montgomery, president of Muskingum, at New Concord, O.; Dr. T. H. McMichael, of Monmouth, at Monmouth, Ill.; Dr. M. Earle Collins, of Tarkio, at Tarkio, Mo., and Dr. H. A. Kelsey, of Sterling, at Sterling, Kan., expressed their views, the Assembly voted unanimously to refer action to the synods under whose control the several colleges operate.

The assembly adopted the report of the committee on reform, which indorsed the Costigan-Wagner bill, which would make lynching a federal offense, the Shepherd joint resolution for a twenty-second amendment to the Constitution giving Congress power to limit or prohibit the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating liquor, and pledging the support of the church to the program of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ and the Roman Catholic Church to eliminate indecent and vicious motion picture films.

STUDENTS ON PROGRAM

The Pittsburgh district was prominently represented in the popular meeting under the direction of the committee on education last night. The five colleges of the church were represented on the program. Wilbur Christy, who was graduated this month from Westminster College and whose home is in Pittsburgh, represented the New Wilmington institution with an address on "The Work of the Christian College." Muskingum was represented by a quartet consisting of Miss Marian McMurry, of Canonsburg; Miss Agnes Smith, of Youngstown; James Orr, of Aliquippa, and Joseph Collins, of Philadelphia.

Monmouth College put on a one-act play in which Miss Janet Randles, of Thomas boulevard, Pittsburgh, took part. Dr. Collins, of Tarkio, presided, and Dr. Kelsey, of Sterling, gave the address.

The Assembly was officially closed by a brief address and prayer by the moderator, the Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr, pastor of the First Church, North Side.

MARSHALL WILL RETURN SOON

Police Supt. Benjamin R. Marshall, patient in a sanitarium about 100 miles from Pittsburgh, was expected to return to his desk ready and willing to answer questions of the police research commission within four weeks at the longest, friends said today.

Dr. Harry M. Goering, personal physician to the superintendent, back from a visit to the sanitarium yesterday, declared:

"He's been pretty sick, but I can tell you he has no intention of resigning so long as Mayor McNair and Director Bell are satisfied with his work."

The superintendent has been suffering from a stomach ailment. He was quoted as saying:

"I can't get back any too soon."

FATHER OF FIVE FATALLY HURT ON RWD JOB

Engineer Run Down By Truck on First Job in 4 Years

Frederick Ray, 59, father of five children, was dead today from injuries received when he was struck by a truck while doing his ninth day's work on a Relief Works Division project in North Park yesterday.

Ray, a stationary engineer, unemployed for four years, obtained a job as a laborer nine days ago. In the Pearce Mill road, North Park, a truck used on the project backed up on Ray as he stooped to pick up something from the ground. Suffering fractures of both legs and internal injuries, Ray was taken to Suburban General Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Ray, who lived at Melwood Stop, Babcock boulevard, was a brother-in-law of Inspector Walter V. Kaiser, of the North Side. He lost his job in the depression after working 34 years for a North Side company and the RWD work was the first he had found in four years.

He leaves his wife and five children, Margaret, 21; Walter, 17; William, 9; Richard, 7, and Helen, 4.

ATHLETE KILLED

One youth was killed and two others were seriously injured when their automobile struck an iron pole in McClure avenue, near St. John's Hospital, late yesterday.

Edward Heiser, 23, of 1329 Liverpool street, North Side, was pronounced dead at St. John's Hospital. Heiser was a well-known local basketball star and sandlot football player and all-round Mt. Oliver High School athlete.

The injured were Edward Lovell, 23, of 206 North Jackson street, Bellevue, and Martin Tyler, 22, of 2015 Atmore street, North Side. Both suffered internal injuries and severe lacerations and bruises.

WOMAN, 50, STRUCK DOWN

Mrs. Jennie Rothman, 50, of 1929 Wylie avenue, died last night in Passavant Hospital shortly after she was struck by an automobile driven, police said, by Codie Houseworth, 23, a Negro, of 35 Sardinia way, at Wylie avenue and Wooster street. Houesworth was arrested.

Charles Angel, 10, of 5625 Harvard street, suffered a fractured arm when he ran against the side of an automobile near his home late yesterday, police reported. He was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital.

Steve Wargo, 4, of 226 Perry street, McKeesport, was seriously injured when he was struck by an automobile at Dale and Ann streets, McKeesport, late yesterday. He was taken to McKeesport Hospital.

Kenneth Bier, 6, of 524 Lockhart street, was injured slightly last night when he ran into the side of an automobile near his home, police said. The boy was treated at Allegheny General Hospital.

MAYVIEW ISSUE PUT TO VOTERS

It will be up to the voters at the general election in November to decide on the proposed $1,683,000 bond issue for improvement of the City Home and Hospital at Mayview.

Finance Committee of City Council today decided upon a people's bond issue rather than utilizing Council's borrowing power, which is approximately $6,000,000.

The proposed issue would provide a new mental building, an additional story on the general hospital building and other improvements.

It was pointed out that the people's borrowing power is now more than $200,000,000.

Former Squire Held for Liquor

A former justice of the peace at Point Marion and a truck driver were held for court today by a federal commissioner following a liquor raid at the "squire's" home last week.

John DeGardeyn, the former justice, was held under $2,000 bond; LeRoy Bennett, truck driver, was held under $1,000 bond.

MAN FIRED AT HELD WITH KIN

Two men were held in Allegheny County Jail today as the result of a shooting in which three bullets narrowly missed striking one of the men—a Stowe Township contractor.

Those held were Joseph Palermo, 145 Highland avenue, Stowe Township, and a brother-in-law, Joseph Perrone, 45, of 155 Highland avenue.

According to County Detectives Frank Ritz and Walter Monoghan, Palermo was starting his auto in front of his home when the bullets struck the door of his car, narrowly missing him. He accused Perrone of firing the shots, the detectives said.

Perrone was later arrested and Palermo was also held when a revolver was found in his car.

3 GUN CHARGES NAME OFFICER

Three informations charging pointing of firearms were filed late yesterday against Patrolman Herman Stubenrauch, who terrorized a group of Beechview men Sunday.

Alderman Len Dyer, before whom the informations were filed and who was kicked on his crippled leg during a battle allegedly started by Stubenrauch, said he expected to name the officer in another charge of aggravated assault and battery.

Stubenrauch has had previous run-ins with his superiors as a result of his gun play.

M. B. Holland Named To Institute Board

Moorhead B. Holland was unanimously elected a member of the board of Trustees of Carnegie Institute to succeed Taylor Allderdice, deceased, according to an announcement by the board. This membership carries with it membership in the Board of Trustees of Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Moonshine Seized By Police in Raid

Two bottles of moonshine and 47 bottles of home brew were reported seized by police in a raid at 18 Fernando street, where Albert Shmolli, 48, was arrested. Shmolli, charged with keeping a disorderly house and violating the liquor laws, will be arraigned in Central Police Court today.

Robbed of $57 in Park, Four Sought

Four men robbed P. P. Edgar, 51, of 110 West North avenue, of $57 as he walked in West North Park last night, he reported to police.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The pictures of Hitler and Mussolini are pouring in on us from the press now, and every one of em keep looking more like they are going to bite each other.

Will Rogers

Sure glad to see where William Allen White had received the high award for Americanism, he is a mighty clear thinking man, that Kansas has more real newspaper men than all the rest of the states combined.

Mr. Roosevelt attended a meeting of Tammany Hall leaders. First time Tammany Hall's name has come up in months. I kinder thought they had given up their franchise.

Yours, WILL.

Upholds Refusal to North Side Club

Refusal of a liquor license to the Schwaebischer Saenger Bund was upheld by Judge W. Heber Dithrich in Qaurter Session Court, who held that the club, at 1109 East street, although charteded in 1893, had been inactive for a number of years. The license had been refused by the State Liquor Control Board on the grounds that the club had ceased to operate, and an appeal was taken to court.

MOTHER'S FALL KILLS GIRL

Three-year-old Lillian Soss lay dead in her home, 520 White street, McKeesport, today, a victim of a tragedy that ended a visit to an East McKeesport farm yesterday.

Lillian was fatally injured when the ladder upon which her mother, Mrs. Mary Soss, 29, was standing to pick cherries on the E. J. Myers farm, slipped and struck her on the head. She was taken to the farmhouse, where she died a short time later from skull fracture, according to the Coroner's report.

The falling ladder also bruised Mrs. Soss' two other children, Michael, 11, and Violet, 6, who were standing near the tree. Michael, seeing the ladder slip, attempted to prevent it from falling to the ground, his mother said. Mrs. Soss was uninjured.

While McKeesport police were informing the father, Mark Soss, of the tragedy, another little girl in an apartment adjoining the Soss quarters on the second floor, fell from the back porch of the house onto the brick yard. She was Eleanor Maturkanic, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Maturkanic.

Her parents picked her up and took her to McKeesport Hospital, where physicians said she suffered a fractured leg.

3, Killed by Ladder

LILLIAN SOSS . . . . FATALLY HURT AS HER MOTHER FELL

Lillian, 3, struck by a ladder that slipped, threw her cherry-picking mother to the ground on an East McKeesport farm to which they had been invited. The family lives in White street, McKeesport.

Need Postoffice, Just Write Note To Jim Farley

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

If you need a new postoffice, just write Jim Farley and change your hollow tree for a marble building.

Jim is building three hundred new postoffices, mainly because the old ones had been used by Republicans.

Morgenthau and Farley have got nearly a hundred million from the PWA. You must admit that things are getting more prosperous when every letter of the alphabet is worth a billion dollars.

We hate to see our New York postoffice go. In the old days they used to steam open registered mail in the parlor and hang pirates in the attic.

That's why all colonial rooms have high ceilings.

Tex Guinan went on trial in the same building for selling booze. Nobody knows the verdict in that case, because the judge is still trying to write it out with a postoffice pen.

O. K. BOULEVARD WIDENING

The first step toward improvement of the congested traffic area in the neighborhood of Bigelow boulevard and Seventh avenue has been taken by the city.

Council has passed finally three ordinances widening streets in that section. This paves the way for an effort to obtain help from the federal government for the construction of an underpass at Seventh avenue and a special arrangement to handle trucks from the new postoffice.

The present plan is for the city to spend $1,500,000 for the work, including property damage. The government would be asked to contribute $500,000 because of special benefits to the Federal Building.

The ordinances make it possible to revise street lines on the southeast side of Bigelow boulevard from Grant street to a point 226 feet east of Elm street.

Provision is also made for the widening of the north side of Strawberry way from Grant street to Pentland street and the relocation of Telegraph Square.

Nine Seek Divorce, Grant Seven Decrees

Divorce suits have been filed by Florence L. Sheehy against Thomas J. Sheehy, Nello Delfi against Rose Delfi, Rosemary Schmitt against Fred Schmitt, Margaret Summers against Joseph Summers, Harriet B. Wooster against Lynne M. Wooster, Vera Wirth against Raymond Wirth, James R. Bole against Eva Bole, Mildred H. Adrian against William A. Adrian and by Antonnette A. Giddings against Llewellyn C. Giddings.

Divorces were granted to Elizabeth Reno from Jack Reno, Ethel S. Gayward from Michael Gayward, Anna D. Stiveson from Theodore L. Stiveson, Jannet C. Campbell from Archibald Campbell, Theodore Evans from Madless Evans, Anna B. Hershey from Martin F. Hershey, Robert Parisen from Flora Parisen.

Homewood-Brushton Trade Board Outing

The annual Homewood-Brushton Board of Trade picnic is to be held tomorrow in Kennywood Park. Pupils of the public and parochial schools of the district will attend. A program of sports, entertainment and dancing has been arranged. Music will be played by the Westinghouse High School Band.

LOGANS FERRY MINERS STONED

Miners returning to work at the Allegheny-Pittsburgh Coal Company's mine at Logan's Ferry were stoned today by strike sympathizers, according to deputy sheriffs.

Chief Deputy B. V. Coffey reported that the miners were stoned as they were driven into the mine in autos, that several windshields were broken and five of the miners injured slightly.

Two men were brought from Logan's Ferry into the Sheriff's office for questioning.

W. R. Davis, president of the United Mine Workers' local at Logan's Ferry, denied that the returning miners were stoned. Davis said that 27 out of 558 miners returned to work.

The mine had been shut down from May 23 until yesterday. According to Davis, the miners wanted Supt. C. E. Reynolds replaced. Also, he said, the company recognized the union but refused to recognize the local officers.

Company officials refused to comment.

NO PARALYSIS IN PITTSBURGH

City health authorities have announced that there have been no cases of infantile paralysis in Pittsburgh this year.

A severe outbreak of the disease is reported in California, but no spread of it could occur which would reach into the eastern states, according to Dr. P. E. Marks, superintendent of the City Bureau of Infectious diseases.

Pittsburgh, in recent years, has had comparatively little of the malady. Last year there were 55 cases, none of them fatal. In 1932, there were 13 cases, none of which caused death. In 1931, there were seven cases and two deaths.

Pressed Steel Car Founder, 72, Dies

A founder of the Pressed Steel Car Company here, Llewellyn W. Jones, 72, is dead at his home in Rosemont, suburb of Philadelphia, according to an Associated Press dispatch. Jones was a native of Philadelphia and was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad at Altoona and Pittsburgh. Associated with E. T. Schoen, he founded the Pressed Steel Car Company.

Blames Companion For $270 Robbery

Robert McIlray, 207 Anderson street, North Side, reported theft of $270 from his clothing in his room last night, police said. He blamed a fellow-roomer stole the money, police reported.

TWO DIRECTORS ASK COUNCIL TO AMEND PLAN

Five Oppose River Location; 4 Favor Leech Farms

Although City Council has approved an incinerator at Brilliant Pumping Station by a vote of 6 to 3, and one at Chateau and Reedsdale streets, North Side, by 5 to 4, two of the cabinet appeared before Council in an effort to persuade them to amend the Brilliant selection.

Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston and Health Director Ray P. Moyer were named by the cabinet yesterday at their regular meeting, to inform Council they have erred.

What the majority in Council which has been fighting for the incinerators will say to the two directors is a matter of keen anticipation about City Hall.

CONTINUES DEMAND

Mayor McNair, in the meantime, has continued his demand for the names of the stockholders of the Pittsburgh Forgings Company, owners of the North Side site.

Edwin Hodge, Jr., president of the company, paid a visit to the Mayor yesterday, shortly after the Mayor told a delegation of Manchester residents that the $70,000 price for the North Side site was graft and that the property is not worth $10,000.

The two ordinances for the erection of incinerators on the sites selected by Council and the resolution buying the North Side plot now go to the Mayor for his signature.

NO PROMISE OF VETO

The Mayor has not said he will veto the measures.

McNair later said he believed Council had authorized purchase of the North Side site by resolution instead of by ordinance in order to avoid his veto.

However, the Mayor has equal right to veto legislative resolutions and ordinances.

Incinerators were the subject of the McNair cabinet meeting yesterday.

Director Johnston, referring to Brilliant, asked:

"Why concentrate all the garbage at that beautiful spot?"

Mayor McNair chimed in:

"Using the steam for Leech Farm was what appealed to me."

Johnston:

"I am informed there is a very good chance of a veto being sustained on the incinerator sites."

CABINET POLLED

Mayor McNair then polled the cabinet and an odd vote resulted. Five voting against the Brilliant site were John Lang, chief clerk of the Supplies Department; City Treasurer James P. Kirk, Safety Director A. Marshall Bell, Solicitor Scully and City Assessor P. R. Williams.

Four cabinet members decided to vote for instead of against something and picked the Leech Farm location. They were Welfare Director Bouthard Hay, Director Moyer, Director Johnston and Water Assessor James W. Gray.

Director Moyer asked timidly, if the action would mean postponing the incinerator program. He said:

"If it does, it means we won't have incinerators by January 1."

Solicitor Scully:

"You'll have that incinerator on the river bank for a long long time."

A short pause, then Solicitor Scully (dubiously):

JOHNSTON-MOYER NAMED

Solicitor Scully (dubiously):

"But doesn't Council have the entire say-so in this matter?"

Johnston:

"I'm inclined to think they have."

McNair:

"Well, we won't bother with it. But Dr. Moyer could ask Council to amend the ordinance. I think if I veto it, Council will just pass it over my veto. If Johnston and Moyer go in tomorrow, Council may withdraw it. Do you two have any objection to going in?"

Johnston:

"None whatever."

Moyer:

"I'll go along with Director Johnston."

Counterfeiter Blames Prisons for Training

Sixteen years as a prisoner in three federal and state penitentiaries trained him in the art of counterfeiting, William H. New, 40, told the United States Commissioner here today.

New was held for court for making three counterfeit $5 Federal Reserve notes.

Released from Ohio State Penitentiary last May 1, according to his own story to the federal authorities, New got a job as night janitor in a North Side printing and engraving shop.

While alone in the building, he experimented with photographic processes, utilizing his training in the Bertillon and finger printing bureaus of Atlanta Penitentiary, the State prison at Bismark, N. D., and Ohio Penitentiary, where he had served sentences on burglary charges.

New was arrested at his rooming house, 425 East Ohio street, June 18, by County Detectives Peter Connors and Walter Monaghan.

—But there are no African natives beating the jungle on account of (A) there are no African natives around Erie, and (B) there are no jungles, either.

This is a very citified lion hunt, with cops on motorcycles and things like that.

Martin Hautt, who lives in suburban Erie, started the hunt last night after, he said, he saw the lion "underneath a tree munching on a rabbit." His wife saw it, too. They notified police.

Then a safari, composed of state police, highway patrolmen, Erie officers and a representative of the Glenwood Park Zoo, set out on a trek for the purpose of finding the eminent Mr. Leo.

But they didn't find a trace of him. No, sir, not even a foot print.

The zoo officials said the lion—adding cautiously "if it is a lion"—may be one which escaped recently from a circus near Erie.

TASTY MENUS HELPFUL TO HOUSEWIVES

Aren't your unknown housewife friends, who've submitted menus with their recipes, making life just a bit easier for you these days? One less menu to plan daily should make an appreciable difference in the week's routine.

Here is today's contribution:

LIGHT SUMMER MENU
Corn a la Southern
Broiled Bacon
Buttered Cauliflower
Fruit Salad Spice Cup Cakes
Iced Coffee.

Six prizes, one for $5, five for $1, are still being awarded to the best recipes received by Prudence Penny, at the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, in her day's mail. Due to the many recipes submitted none of them are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

ROSE GELDER,
836 Prospect avenue, Charleroi.

CLUB CHOPS

Sear pork chops lightly on both sides. On each chop place one slice of onion, a slice of tomato and a teaspoonful minced green pepper and parsley. Season each chop with one-quarter teaspoon of salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and one-half teaspoon of sugar. Cover with a tablespoon of buttered bread crumbs. Bake in a hot oven until the chops are tender.

Five $1 Prize Winners

MRS. T. S. McQUILLAN,
2116 Saranac avenue.

A SUMMER SALAD.

One cucumber, sliced.
Two tomatoes, cut in cubes.
One-half head lettuce, shredded.
One medium onion, sliced.
One-half green pepper, shredded.
A few sprigs of parsley.

DRESSING.

One-half cup vinegar.
One-half cup water.
Two tablespoons sugar.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Dash of pepper.
Two tablespoons olive oil.

Mix all ingredients together and when well blended, pour over vegetables, stirring vegetables to have dressing over every vegetable. Will serve six.

MRS. M. RIBER,
7544 Short street, Swissvale.

DANISH SALMON

One pound can of pink salmon.
One cup grated raw carrot.
One-half cup green pepper, chopped.
One-half cup salad dressing.
One and one-half cups medium white sauce.
Salt, pepper and dash of cayenne.
One-half cup crumbs.
One tablespoon melted butter.

Remove bones and skin from the salmon and flake. Combine with vegetables, salad dressing, sauce and seasoning. Put the mixture into greased baking dish. Cover with buttered crumbs. Brown in moderate oven for 20 minutes.

MRS. JAMES McGOUGH,
421 Peebles street, Wilkinsburg.

CHICKEN EN CASSEROLE

Two and one-half pounds chicken.
One can mushrooms.
One carrot.
One onion.
One tablespoon chopped parsley.
One teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon pepper.
One tablespoon flour.
Two cups boiling water.
One stalk celery.
One-half cup of butter.

Clean and dress the chicken and steam it until tender. Melt the butter in a frying pan, add all the vegetables, chopped fine, cook five minutes and then add the flour. Add all the seasonings to the hot water, pour it into the frying pan and let it cook five minutes. Put the chicken in a casserole, dredge with flour, dust with salt and pepper and pour the contents of the frying pan over it. Place it in the oven and cook until the chicken is thoroughly browned. Remove from the oven, cover the dish and serve in the casserole.

MRS. PEARL FUSH,
416 Virginia avenue, Oakmont.

TOMATO WITH BACON.

One cup mayonnaise.
One egg white, stiffly beaten.
Eight slices ripe tomato.
Eight slices bread, toasted.
Bacon (as much as desired).

Fold mayonnaise into egg white gently, but thoroughly. Salt tomato slices. Place on slices of toast. Pile mayonnaise mixture generously on tomato slices. Brown lightly under broiler for one minute. Serve while hot with strips of crisp bacon. Serves six.

MARTHA GLOTFELTY,
Box 18, Fayette City.

DROP DATE DOUGHNUTS

Two eggs.
Three-quarters cup sugar.
One tablespoon melted butter.
Two and one-half cups flour.
Two and one-half teaspoons baking powder.
One teaspoon salt.
One cup milk.
Three-quarters cup dates, cut.
One teaspoon lemon extract. Beat eggs thoroughly, add sugar and continue beating. Add melted butter, then sifted dry ingredients alternately with the liquid. Add dates and drop small spoonfuls into hot, deep fat until golden brown. Drain on soft paper.

Slimming Frock Has Good Waistline Detail

Pattern 1914

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

In warm weather the woman with the larger figure just has to have a slenderizing frock . . . there is no getting around it! She can't get any aid from coat or furs when it comes to good lines . . . they have to be right in the dress. And they are in this model! That front panel is a wonder worker, and the capes, which take the place of sleeves and are so much cooler, reduce the seeming size of the figure amazingly. Though it is a good-looking frock even without them as you see it in the little sketch at the right. For silks or sheer cottons.

Pattern 1914 is available in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3¾ yards 39-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

The smartest warm weather fashions, the newest fabrics, and the summer season's outstanding accessories are illustrated and described in the NEW PATTERN BOOK FOR SUMMER. ORDER YOUR COPY OF THIS HELPFUL NEW SUMMER BOOK. PRICE OF BOOK 15 CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS.

Address orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

FATHER 'FED UP' WITH QUINTET

CORBEIL, Ont., June 26.—(AP.)—Ovila Dionne, the 34-year-old farmer who said "I'm the sort of fellow they should put in jail" when told he was the father of quintuplets, apparently feels much the same way about it four weeks after their birth.

In that time the five little girls have become internationally famous. Gifts have been showered upon them along with a contract for their appearance at the Chicago World's Fair.

Dionne doesn't say much, but indicates he doesn't consider the arrival of the five altogether a blessing. "What do you think about their birth?" he was asked recently. He replied:

"I don't think much of it. Well, what do you think?"

Other members of the Dionne family also are "fed up" with the spotlight the birth of the babies brought.

Girls' Lawn Fete Benefits Milk Fund

A group of girls, all 12 years of age, had a lawn fete on Memorial Day at Dallas avenue and Forbes street and raised $5 which they have contributed to the Pittsburgh Milk and Ice Association through the Sun-Telegraph.

Did You Hear About

M-e W--t

C---k G---e?

Well, as the Apollonian C—k was going into the elevator, the curvaceous M—e exclaimed, "Hello, C—k!" This may be world-zero in joke-smithing, but it points a very pointed moral, namely: no one wants to be fooled. The author who pushes his heroine off the precipice and then, at the end of the chapter nonchalantly informs you that it was all a DREAM, soon gets his just deserts. Never again will a book he writes gather dust on YOUR bookshelves. And so it goes with stores. You can trifle with your customers' affections—and pocketbooks—just so long. When they find you out, watch out!

Harris' doesn't Want to Make Money If It Can't Make It Honestly!

NRA or no NRA, chiseling has no place in storekeeping—and buyers who knowingly buy inferior quality—goods that won't wear, won't give you the service you expect—aren't buyers long at 624-30 Liberty Avenue. Naturally, we carry some moderate-priced goods too—but not the cheap, flimsy or deliberately ugly. Shop and compare our Men's Clothing, for example. Shop and Compare our Women's dresses. Shop and find out where the values lie.

And Do Not Pay Cash, If You Prefer

No need to run a fever every time you buy new shoes or your husband a new suit of clothes. Just spread those payments out until they're practically invisible. You can do it—on our Budget Plan—and it won't cost you a single penny beyond our regular cash prices. Why complain of the heat? Come in and be outfitted in cool summer clothes—then say, "Charge It."

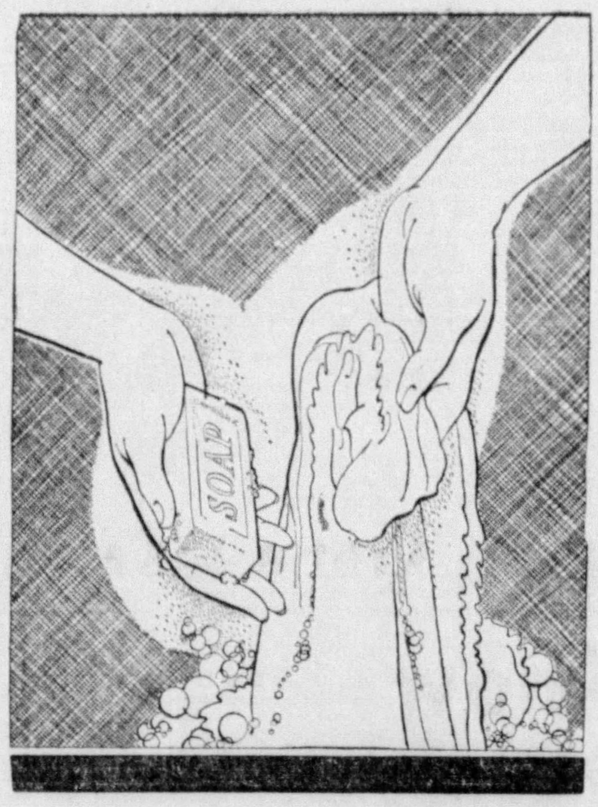
Pale HANDS



Lovely hands . . . celebrated in song and verse . . . the natural desire and frequent accomplishment of the modern woman. Soaps, lotions, and hand creams play their part, but a most important assistant is often overlooked—it's electricity. Think of the many household duties formerly so hard on her hands, are now performed by her electric servants . . . and for only a fraction of the cost of her favorite hand cream. The washboard, carpet-beater, and flat-iron—symbols of coarse, red hands—are things of the past, replaced by her electric washer, electric vacuum-sweeper, and electric iron . . . doing their work with greater effect, in much less time than it could possibly be done by hand. And the actual cost of operating these appliances is surprisingly little. In fact only one cent operates an electric washer (¼ H.P.) for 1 hour and 18 minutes . . . an electric sweeper (230 watts) for 1 hour and 5 minutes . . . an electric iron (660 watts) for more than 22 minutes.

The length of time the appliances named in this advertisement can be operated is based on 4c per Kwh, in which classification a large percentage of our customers come. If your use of electricity entitles you to the advantages of a 3c rate you can operate the same appliances proportionately longer. However, those who pay 5c for electric energy can operate these appliances only four-fifths of the length of time stated.

FIGHTER'S KIN HURT IN BATTLE

Suffering from three broken ribs, John Scanlon, 36, brother of the prizefighter, Patsy Scanlon, was found by police early today sitting on the curb at Diamond and Perry streets. Scanlon told police he had had a fight with a street car motorman and had been kicked, police reported.

The motorman, Peter Knapp, reporting to the dispatcher at the Craft avenue barns, said Scanlon attempted to board his car, but was refused entry, according to police. A fight ensued in which Scanlon was believed by police to have received his injury. Scanlon resides at 7 McDevitt place.

Garden Tea

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am the leader of a girls' club and we have been invited to a garden tea next month. I have never been to an affair of this type and would like you to advise me as to the type of clothes to be worn? (It is to be at 4 o'clock.) These girls range in age from nine to 14, and they will all wear flowery summer dresses. I have a very pretty navy and white flowered silk. I don't go in for anything very much outside of sports clothes on account of our activities, but I do want to do the right thing, as we need this sort of social life.

This party is being given by my near neighbor, a very lovely person who is interested in these girls' clubs. READER.

There is no reason for you to buy a special dress for this occasion. Your navy-and-white-flowered silk dress will, I am sure, be appropriate. Or a light dress of the "spectator sports" variety would also be suitable.

Photographs

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently a very dear and close girl friend of mine gave me an unautographed picture of herself. I have a picture I would like to give to her. Will you please suggest a proper autograph? Also please suggest an autograph that I might use on a picture to a boy friend. L.

You might like to autograph the photograph for the girl something like this: "To Betty, with love from Florence," or "Dearest love to Betty, from Florence," or "Devoted love to Betty, from Florence," or just "To Betty, from Florence."

Why not give an unautographed photograph to the boy friend? It's really in better taste. But if you insist that a photograph must be autographed—many people maintain that the unautographed photograph is in better taste—write on this one: "To John, from Dorothy."

GOLD SHIP HUNT ENDS AS 'MYTH'

MOSCOW, June 26.—(AP.)—Charles Courtney, New York master locksmith who risked his life in an undersea investigation of the wreck of the British cruiser Hampshire, said today he was satisfied it did not carry £2,000,000 in gold (approximately $10,000,000) when a German mine sent it to the bottom of the North Sea.

It was on the Hampshire that Lord Kitchener went to his death.

Courtney said the salvage company with which he is associated would make no further effort to regain the alleged treasure.

He flew here from Bergen, Norway, to interview a British subject who supervised the loading of the Hampshire before her fatal voyage. After talking with this man, Courtney said he was convinced there was nothing of such value in the Hampshire's hold that would justify further exploration of the wreck, lying 12 miles off the Orkneys.

Sunshine Vitamin
TO BRING YOU BEAUTY

The wonders of science never cease.

Not by the wildest stretch of imagination is a mouse related to a woman's beauty—yet a Boston physician used this little rodent to prove the greatest cosmetic discovery of modern times.

He had irradiated a revolutionary new cream with the precious sunshine vitamin D. He proved that he could feed this youth-giving vitality from the sun through the skin, by spreading it on a mouse's tail. His colleagues examined the X-rays. Checked his tests. Acclaimed the new scientific fact that the skin can now be fed the sunshine vitamin D, making it grow young instead of old.

This amazing new cream is called Vita-Ray Vitamin Cream. Try a jar today. You'll be thrilled at the improvement in your skin—the gradual vanishing of wrinkles, lines and crow's-feet, the toning and firming of face and neck muscles, the glorious return of youthful freshness and color to your complexion.

Laziness Cause of Many Failures in Life

We ZOOM about, and where do we get? As a people, we waste entirely too many precious hours . . . We sit and talk, and what have we said? We get into our cars, and browse about, and go nowhere worth remembering. We ride on buses, and visit our friends, and board the street cars, and shop a little . . . and chat some more . . . and call it a day . . .

We know there are specific tasks waiting us. But do we DO them? There are the curtains for the living room. We bought the material for them at a bargain sale in January. But we haven't made them yet.

There's the novel we wrote that has to be revised . . . The publisher said he was quite likely to take it when it was written over again . . . And we intend doing so . . . But TOMORROW.

Miss Brunot

There are people worth knowing living nearby . . . We MUST call on them . . . We have intended doing so for weeks . . . But another week slips by, and they are still in the limbo . . .

Oh, we just ZOOM about . . . We're like cows grazing on the hillside . . . We're like sheep answering the tinkle of a bell.

VACATION TIME NEAR

Vacation time is coming . . . Schools are putting on the shutters . . . The boss is asking everybody when the two weeks' vacation will be . . .

And we're somewhat HET UP. Will this summer be better than last . . . Will something big come to us before autumn?

Not unless we STIR AROUND.

If everyone of us used up every grain of our abilities and every particle of our go-get-there qualities, we'd have such a crowd at the top of things, there would be no room for Brain Trusts, or anyone else . . .

LAZINESS is the answer to lack of nearly everyone's success . . . A young fellow writes and asks me what to do this summer . . . He has had a job somewhere in West Virginia offered him . . . A friend of his father's with a big farm in Kansas is willing to give him a warm weather lift . . . But each of these places have their disadvantages . . . And reading between the lines, these disadvantages in each case spell WORK . . . What he wants to do, during the time from school, is LOAF.

BETTER TO LOSE GIRL

He's interested in a girl, he says. And if he goes away, he'll lose her. Well, LOSE her, if she's that sort . . .

A couple of years ago when the very worst of the hard times was ON, there was an opportunity for a husband of a very close friend of mine to get a very good job. He was an artist, and he had created an aura of superiority. People had unintentionally drunk in the fact, he was an intellectual . . . His color dabs were looked upon as extraordinary. At least, several critics had written about them in such a manner . . .

Even so, there was no FILTHY LUCRE coming in . . .

And there was the new job offered him . . . Good and remunerative, and plenty of others open-mouthed for it.

But his wife said, tearfully: "Freddie can't GET UP and GO TO WORK like OTHER MEN."

It was a NINE to FOUR offer . . . and for every day in the week.

And so Freddie stayed at home, and the rent bill increased, and the grocer wasn't paid . . . And the furniture was attached . . .

NOTHING BUT LAZINESS

It was LAZINESS. Nothing else . . . and that laziness was all dressed up in imagined individuality . . . The name INTELLECTUAL did the harm . . .

Now, young man, let me tell you to go either to West Virginia or Kansas. Either one will be an experience to you and will help you to the right road . . . Nothing makes you less worthwhile than doing NOTHING. A day of idleness brings on another such a day . . . A summer in which there is no discipline, merely banks up against us for more like summers.

Read the lives of successful men and women . . . Has there been much time frittered . . . Elba ruined Napoleon. Not so much, the imprisonment, as the time upon his hands . . . Mark Anthony never was the same after he had been to Egypt. And perhaps it wasn't so much Cleopatra, as the indolence she had taught him to enjoy . . .

We all know people who are so busy, they tire us . . . Even so, they are excellent examples . . . Mediocre brains correctly directed, can do more than real intellects misplaced . . . Artists, writers, university graduates, young people with every advantage parents and the age can give them, end in the GUTTER. And why? Because they frittered time . . . Because they talked away any chance they had to get anywhere . . .

TEMPTATION WITH US

I write this article, because so many of my young people are beginning a period of rest . . . School books are closed . . . The warm weather is here . . . The corner drug store beckons . . . The comfortable seats of the artificially cooled movies give out their call . . . Fresh and salt water invites . . . Summer hotel piazzas are filled with comfortable chairs . . . And many are waiting for the idle flirtation which gets you nowhere . . .

No, sisters, to ZOOM about gets you nowhere.

And just because it is summer, is no EXCUSE.

SURE! I REMEMBER YOU!
SMARTEST KID IN THE WORLD (IF I DO SAY SO!
MARVELOUS! WONDERFUL! HOW GRAND!!
GEE! HOW LONG HAVE I KNOWN YOU!
OH FLAME! IT WOULD EMBARRASS ME TO REMEMBER
FAY KING

By FAY KING

The nicest thing about growing older is to see the development in one's own life, and in the lives of those one has known.

We all move on as we live, in one direction or another. None stands still, and fortunately very few fail to advance. It is nice to see old friends out of the past, especially if one has not seen them in a good many years. There is so much talk of old friends, and old fun.

But it amazes me a little when these dear old "ghosts" as I like to call them, show me group pictures of flourishing families that have once come into their lives since last I saw them.

A few have remained bachelors still! That is amazing also!

RAINCOATS AND CAPES FOR SUMMER

This oil silk raincoat of feminine cut is unusually lightweight and it can be folded into a handbag.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

RAINCOATS FOR EVERY HOUR of the day can be useful and there are plenty of new models of summer weight which are smart and made with enough of the dressmaker touch to look quite suitable over a party frock. Maybe it's the fleet influence, or maybe just the garnered experiences of many girls who have put out in small boats during squalls to dine on board yachts which accounts for those swell silver oil silk capes with their matching hats.

They are so inexpensive and take up such a tiny bit of space that any woman might keep one in the pocket of her car against the sudden shower come to complicate any summer evening party on land. Of course, they are perfectly good daytime affairs, but they are so pretty that they rate stepping out formally.

THE ALL-WHITE RAINCOAT retains its popularity, which is no surprise to any woman who ever owned one. They are awfully becoming, still swank though no longer a novelty, and whether one chooses the trench coat model or the one with the traffic cop's cape (probably there is where the fad started) it is bound to make a good appearance.

One should take some care about the accessories for the white raincoat, however; dark brown for umbrella, hat and rubbers, or wine red, navy blue, or all-white are the best bets. Something is lost from the whole effect if the hat and the umbrella are of different shades, even though they are harmonious.

NOTHING SO POPULAR as the rain cape which can be pulled poncho-wise over the shoulders at the first spatter has been invented in a long time. In these any old color is to be found, but the white is easily the least informal and the smartest, the other colors looking a wee bit like bathing suit accessories.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By Josephine Culbertson

The Time in Play

Though there are some hands with which it makes no difference in what order the cards are played, in a vast majority it is necessary in order to realize the full trick-taking ability of the cards to time the play in such a manner that trick follows trick in an orderly procession and in pursuance of a well thought out plan. The hand below, which was played by Dr. William N. Kingsbury, of Reno, Nev., is of particular interest in that in order to make the contract a Vienna Coup was required, followed by a Double Squeeze.

East—Dealer.

	♠ A J 3 ♡ K Q ◇ A 7 6 2 ♣ A 9 8 6
♠ 9 8 7 6 5 ♡ 7 ◇ Q J 5 4 ♣ Q 4 2	North West East South	♠ K 10 4 2 ♡ 8 6 4 ◇ K 9 3 ♣ J 7 3
	♠ Q ♡ A J 10 9 5 3 2 ◇ 10 8 ♣ K 10 5

North and South reached a contract of six hearts, after North had opened the bidding fourth hand with one club. West's Opening lead was the diamond Queen, which Dr. Kingsbury allowed to hold. The diamond suit was continued and the trick won with the Ace in Dummy, and a diamond was now ruffed in the closed hand. The spade Queen was led and won with the Ace (the Vienna Coup, setting up East's King as the high spade) and a small spade ruffed in Dr. Kingsbury's hand. A heart was then led to the King in Dummy and the second round of hearts was overtaken in the closed hand, West discarding a spade. Dr. Kingsbury then followed with two more heart leads, upon which West dropped two more spades and East discarded the spade 10. The hands now were:

	♠ J ♡ — ◇ 7 ♣ A 9
♠ — ♡ — ◇ J ♣ Q 4 2	North West East South	♠ K ♡ — ◇ — ♣ J 7 3
	♠ — ♡ 5 ◇ — ♣ K 10 5

At this point Dr. Kingsbury played the last heart and West was squeezed in clubs and diamonds, while East was squeezed in clubs and spades. West discarded the club 2, and the diamond 7, which had now served its purpose, was thrown from Dummy. East was compelled to retain the spade King and so was also forced to part with a club. A small club was then led to the Ace and a club returned to the King, and Dr. Kingsbury won the last trick with the club Ten, fulfilling his contract.

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Mistaken for Burglar

As I made my way to the lower floor of the farm house, I found myself listening tensely for any indication that the searchers below had discovered some trace of Junior and Roderick.

But there was no sound whatever. The low calls which Lillian had given in every room had ceased, and I wondered if perhaps she and Hugh and my father had transferred their search to a point outside the farm house.

As I came into the living room, however, I saw the three standing together, silent, motionless, and my pulses constricted with a renewal of the terror which Hugh's assurance and that of Marion and Carolyn had partially dispelled.

At sight of me Lillian came swiftly forward and slipped her arm through mine.

"We're not loafing on the job," she said. "We've combed this lower floor thoroughly, and Katie and Jim are going through the cellar. They later will take the barn, the garage and every other building, even the chicken coops. We're eliminating, you see, every spot, even the most fantastic, in and around the farm house. Then, if we don't find them, it will be time to extend the search farther."

SEARCH WIDENS

I tried to speak, making a sorry job of it, my throat was so dry, but finally asked in a croaking voice that did not sound like mine:

"You haven't looked in the bedrooms upstairs?"

"That's our next move," Lillian said briskly. "We're going to make sure that they haven't hidden in any closet, or perhaps under a bed, for some prank of their peculiar devising, and gone to sleep.

"There's only one person I hate to waken," Lillian went on, and I snapped into attention, for I well knew whom she meant.

"Mother Graham?" I queried, and, at Lillian's assenting nod, I found speech at the prospect of something definite to do.

"She never wakens as early as this," I said, "and as she is somewhat deaf, I am sure I can get into her room without waking her."

"Doesn't she always keep her door locked?" Lillian asked.

"Yes, but there's her closet, through which there's an exit to a similar closet in Mary's room," I said. "I'll slip through there."

"Good!" Lillian answered briskly. "Chief, will you tackle Sam Brixton for me? If I go back there—after what I pulled on him a little while ago—he'll think I'm persecuting him, and he'll shut up like a clam, even if he should have seen the boys. And Hugh, will you take Phil Veritzen? I'll tackle the Braithwaites and Edith Fairfax, and that completes the roll."

"I'll go up to mother's room at once," I said, making for the door, vaguely encouraged by the chance to do anything, no matter what, in the search for the boys. I heard the others close behind me, but I outdistanced them and reached the door of Mary's room before they had fairly mounted the first flight of stairs leading to the landing.

AROUSES MOTHER GRAHAM

I caught my breath, with an emotion that had nothing to do with the boys, as I stepped into the deserted room which my husband's winsome niece had left as a bride but a few hours before. The room with its disorder, its little piles of discarded things, had a pathetic look, I fancied, as if it missed its lovely mistress, too. I realized anew, as I crossed the door to the closet, how much I was going to miss the companionship and aid which Mary had so freely given to me.

Noiselessly I entered the closet and as silently opened the door into the ample one, almost as large as a dressing room, in which Dicky's august mother keeps her wardrobe. Switching on the light, I looked in every cranny, finding, of course, no trace of the small boys.

I switched off the lamp and cautiously pushed open the door leading from the closet into the room. And then, from behind that door, there reached out an umbrella which gave me a well-directed, though not powerful, whack over the head, and I felt a hand seizing my hair in a tight grip while my mother-in-law's voice shrieked:

"Help! Murder! Police! In my room! Mother Graham!"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Removal of Adenoids, Tonsils

On my tour of inspection of a recently-constructed hospital I was amazed at the number of children admitted for removal of tonsils and adenoids. But this is the popular time of year for this operation. The parents of children who have suffered from severe colds and infections caused by large and diseased tonsils and adenoids, are advised to attend to their troubles during vacation time.

Dr. Copeland

I believe this is an excellent plan. The child convalesces quickly during warm weather and is less liable to a cold or other complications following the operation.

Chronic infection of the tonsils is often the chief cause for colds, sore throats, earaches, discharging ears, chronic discharge from the nose, and enlarged glands of the neck. There can be no question that a child who has difficulty in breathing and has suffered from any of these ailments should have his tonsils removed. Of course, the attending doctor should decide whether the operation is demanded.

Difficulty in breathing, as well as infections of the nose and throat, can be traced to adenoids. The adenoids closely resemble the tonsils in the nature of their tissues. They are smaller masses located in the back part of the nasal passages, between the nose and throat.

Enlarged adenoids lead to difficult mouth breathing. Unlike the tonsils, the adenoids rarely become diseased in adults. As a rule they shrink in size and disappeared during childhood.

I am glad to say that tonsils are no longer ruthlessly removed as in former years. Merely because a child has an occasional cold or sore throat is not sufficient reason for the removal of the tonsils. But if the tonsils are definitely enlarged and diseased, they are a menace to the health of the individual and should be removed as soon as possible. Bear in mind that infection of the tonsils may lead to infection of vital organs within the body.

The operation is a simple one and need cause no undue alarm. If necessary, it can be performed on the child two or three years of age, or younger. The operation should not be done during an acute attack of tonsilitis or while fever is present.

-:- The Beauty Box -:-

By HELEN FOLLETT

Time was when little girls were told that if they ate their bread crusts they'd have curly hair and sound teeth. But soft food does not make for the health of human biters.

Lettuce, orange juice and milk are recommended, and, of course, there should be the twice daily scouring of the teeth, especially at night. It is during sleep that germs and destructive chemicals get in their devastating work.

Refreshing and wonderful for skin that is inclined to be coarse and goosefleshy is the salt glow. Fine, too, for those days when a girl gets out of the bed from the wrong side, feels grouchy. Starts blood streams circulating, makes red roses bloom in the cheeks when cheeks are wan.

Moisten a cup of ordinary table salt. Stand in the bath tub, scour the skin with the moistened salt. No soap. Soap and salt no like. Turn on the tepid spray, chill gradually. Have a vigorous rub down with a towel that takes hold like the pangs of a guilty conscience.

Why Suffer?

"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets enough for the way they have helped me," says Mrs. M. Grill, 1001 E. Clay Street, Shamokin, Pa. "I always suffered a great deal of pain each month. I felt tired and sick all the time. In the morning I was dizzy and faint. Usually I had to stay in bed a day, sometimes only half a day. A friend of mine told me about these Tablets and they helped me very much. I suffer very little now and I feel full of pep."

A Tonic and Sedative for Women

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Happenings on Pittsburgh's Society Events

Pink hydrangeas, soft green cibotium ferns and standards of gladiolas and white tapers in candelabra will decorate the chancel of the Edgewood Presbyterian Church for the wedding tonight of Katherine Virginia Craig, daughter of Mrs. Edward Armstrong Craig, of tree-lined Maple avenue, Edgewood, and Lewis Whittaker Morgan, son of the P. W. Morgans, also of Maple avenue.

The wedding will take place tonight at 8:30 o'clock with the Rev. Walter L. Moser officiating. Giving the bride in marriage will be her brother, George Roth Craig.

A stately gown of white lace over white satin, with a veil draped from a cap of old lace from her mother's wedding gown, will be the bride's costume. She will carry gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Both her matron of honor, who is her sister-in-law, Mrs. George Roth Craig, and her maid of honor, Theodosia Parke, of Pasadena, Cal., formerly of Edgewood, will wear pastel blue lace gowns.

Bridesmaids Will Wear Gowns of Peach Lace

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Edward Armstrong Craig, Jr., also a sister-in-law of the bride, and Jane C. Morgan, sister of the bridegroom, and Virginia Rossell, will wear similar gowns of peach lace, made with brief trains. They will all carry arm bouquets of garden flowers.

Duncan Jerome Morgan will be his cousin's best man, and Edward Armstrong Craig, Jr., Robert M. Repp, Jr., Dr. John Day Garvin and James P. Sayers, all of Pittsburgh; William A. Forrester, Jr., of New York, and Frederick A. Frost, of Newark, N. J., will be ushers.

At the reception in the Craig home for relatives and members of the bridal party, the mothers of the bride and bridegroom will help receive. The mother of the bride will appear in pastel-blue chiffon, and the mother of the bridegroom in white chiffon. Both will have ushers.

Men's doubles will be played on the Fox Chapel Golf Club courts Saturday afternoon, July 7, at 2:30 o'clock, and will continue daily from then on until Sunday, July 15.

Coraopolis Heights Boy To Wed New Jersey Girl

A Coraopolis Heights boy will be married tomorrow night—Charles Holmes Graham, son of the Harry C. Grahams, of Thorn Run road, Coraoplis Heights.

The Paul Berghauses, of Orange, New Jersey, have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter Louisa to young Mr. Graham, with the ceremony to take place tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock in the Berghaus home. The Rev. Dr. Charles Thomas Walkley, rector of Grace Church, Orange, will officiate.

Mrs. John B. Osborne will be her sister's matron of honor, and Albert Graham, a cousin of the bridegroom, will be best man. After their honeymoon, Mr. Graham and his bride will live in Pittsburgh.

Eliza Ruth Hasson Bride Of John Selmer Smith

Stately Calvary Episcopal Church was the scene yesterday of another attractive wedding, that of Eliza Ruth Hasson, daughter of the Harry D. Hassons, of the Highland Towers Apartment, and John Selmer Smith, of the Schenley Apartments, formerly of Jonesboro, Tenn.

The ceremony took place yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock with the rector, the Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten officiating, assisted by the Rev. Dr. George Taylor, Jr., of the First Presbyterian Church, of Wilkinsburg. White roses, ferns and candles decorated the church.

A gown of ivory satin, in princess style, was worn by the bride, who was given in marriage by her father. Her veil was of tulle and her flowers were orchids and lilies of the valley.

Her matron of honor, her sister, Mrs. William J. Young, appeared in flesh-colored velvet-dotted mousseline de soie with a girdle of velvet. Her hat was of the same color and material, and she carried delphinium in varying shades of blue.

The bridesmaids, all classmates of the bride at Sweetbriar, Mrs. Thomas P. Henry, Jr., Mrs. Robert W. Woodroofe, of Detroit; Mrs. C. Stephen Stubbs, of Kansas City, and Marjorie Sturges, of Greenwich, Conn., wore similar gowns and hats, and carried garden flowers.

Frank R. Denton was best man, and James Bovard, Nelson Vance Harper, Clarence B. Nesbitt, Arthur B. Van Buskirk and William J. Young, all of Pittsburgh, and Donald Shepard, of Washington, were ushers.

Triangle Club Will Fete Officers

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

With Mrs. William Johns in the president's chair, the Triangle Club of Wilkinsburg will begin another season on September 6 with a reception for its officers. These include Mrs. Johns and Mrs. W. F. Struble, the vice president; Mrs. Luther Shults, recording secretary; Mrs. G. H. Humbert, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. J. S. Scobey, treasurer. For program that afternoon Mrs. Josephine Sipe will tell of "An Ideal Vacation" and Mrs. J. T. Proctor will contribute piano solos.

Arbor Day and "Care of Plants in the House" are October's program subjects and at the November session Mrs. A. B. Strunk is to give "My Conception of Harvest Home." At roll call that day the members will answer with "Expressions of Gratitude." The December meeting will be appropriately featured by a reading from Dickens' "Christmas Carol" and a collection of toys for the poor.

"Famous American Women," "World News" and "Preventive Diseases" are other topics to be heard before the season comes to a close in June. The Rev. John Franklin Troupe is to speak in March, having "The American Home" for his subject. There's an Edgar A. Guest Day scheduled for April when each member will respond to roll call with a poem. Suggestions for the betterment of the club will be made in May when the club afternoon will be given over to dramatics by the members.

Miss Lefko Weds Leonard Wolk

Mr. and Mrs. George Lefko, of the Royal Yorke apartments, make known the marriage on Wednesday of their daughter, Miss Lenore Lefko, to Leonard Wolk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Wolk, of Graham street. Mr. and Mrs. Wolk have gone to Cambridge Springs, where they will stay for some time.

Amaranth Group Will Hold Party

He knew the butter flavor secret

When Josef was chef to the Vanderbilts forty years ago, he declared the canvas-back duck to be the greatest delicacy in the world. He basted it with butter which he whipt to a marvelous creamy texture. Only in that way could Josef be sure that the delicate, delicious butter flavor would be released at once and in full to enhance the flavor of his proudest dish.

Chiffon Butter

CREATED BY KRAFT

Spreads easier

● Taste this new Chiffon Butter. The instant it touches your tongue you savor all the delicate creamy flavor of freshly-churned butter.

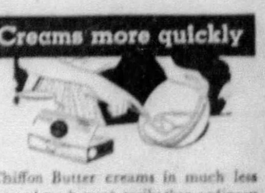
Known until now by only a few epicures and skilled chefs, the secret of improved and instant flavor has been perfected and brought to you by Kraft.

After the finest selected, pasteurized cream is churned in the great Kraft creameries the butter is scientifically whipt. This distributes the flavor and aroma elements more thoroughly through every bit of the butter. They are more instantly released when the butter touches the taste buds on the tongue.

Take home a pound . . . two pounds . . . of Kraft's new Chiffon Butter, and let your family enjoy its instant flavor praised by epicures. Save money—Chiffon Butter is economical because it's whipt.

● Chiffon Butter spreads more easily, more smoothly, than ordinary butter—yet keeps its form in warm weather.

Creams more quickly



● Chiffon Butter creams in much less time and much more easily than ordinary butter. Saves time and work in making sauces and cakes. Makes all good foods taste better.

Economical

● Chiffon Butter is economical because it is whipt! The big Chiffon package is nearly a third larger than the usual half pound of butter package.

Margaret Fink Is Married in Her Home

At a pretty home ceremony Wednesday, Miss Margaret Fink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Fink, of New Kensington, and Edgar C. Mellander, son of Mrs. Anna Mellander, of Mt. Jewett, were married by the Rev. Dr. George S. Bowden, pastor of the Parnassus Presbyterian Church.

The wedding took place before an embankment of ferns and palms. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore white satin with a lace turban edged with seed pearls, from which the silk net veil was draped. She carried Johanna Hill roses and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Lucille Fink, was her only attendant and she wore a frock of blue mousseline de soie with pink accessories and carried a spray of spring flowers. Clyde Oakes, of Mt. Jewett, was best man. Mrs. John Linton played the wedding music.

Until tomorrow Miss Margaret Jacobs will take reservations for the New Kensington Junior Woman's Club buffet supper dance to be given Friday in the Brackenridge Country Club.

Miss Mary Allen is general chairman and has as aides Miss Dorothy Yingling, Mrs. Frederick Conrade, Mrs. Charles Schultz, Mrs. R. W. Jacobs, Miss Margaret Cooper, Miss Margaret Jacobs and Miss Mary Alice Faulk. Miss Jessie Fair is president-elect of the club, which closes its season with Friday's affair.

Miss Mary Hamilton Bride Of Charles K. Ewing

A distinguished looking bride was Miss Mary Hamilton, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Hamilton, of Wilkinsburg, when she married Charles Kermit Ewing, of Coraopolis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Ewing, of Coraopolis, last evening.

The ceremony took place in the Hamilton residence, in Hill avenue, before an embankment of cibotium ferns and palms, lighted by cathedral tapers in tall candelabra. The Rev. George Taylor, Jr., was the officiant.

The bride's gown was of pearl white satin, princess mode, fashioned with a high, cowl neckline, long, fitted sleeves and a court train, and a braided girdle of the satin from which loops cascaded to the hemline. Her veil of rose point lace was draped from a coronet of the lace, and she carried a small sheaf of calla lilies with satin wrapped stems.

Miss Miriam Young, her only attendant, wore primrose pink crepe with accordian pleated drapery and a brief train. She carried an arm bouquet of mixed delphinium. Miss Elizabeth Hamilton, the bride's sister, wore yellow silk printed in a violet design, and a shoulder corsage of yellow rosebuds. The bridegroom's mother wore beige lace with a corsage of roses and delphinium. Claude Marvin Potts, of New Martinsville, W. Va., and Canton, O., was the best man.

Miss Kathryn Zweidinger Weds Colorado Man

The marriage of Miss Kathryn Zweidinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Zweidinger, of First street, Aspinwall, to Wayne Elston Chambers, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Chambers, of Boulder, Col., took place Saturday evening, June 16, at 7:30 o'clock, in the Aspinwall Methodist Church. Officiating was the Rev. W. Sproul Boyd.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with a tulle veil and cap of tulle edged with seed pearls. She carried calla lilies. Miss Audrey Zweidinger, as her sister's maid of honor, wore maize mousseline de soie with a matching hat and carried Talisman roses. The bridesmaids were her other two sisters, Miss Ruth Zweidinger, in a gown of green mousseline de soie, and Miss Helen Zweidinger, in tea rose mousseline de soie, with matching hats and they carried pink roses.

The bride's mother chose a gown of tea rose lace. Minor Wenner, of Pittsburgh, served as best man and ushers were John P. Walter, Ralph Coffey, and Jay Danni, of Pittsburgh, and William Scoffield, of Washington.

Mrs. J. B. Henry played the wedding music and Ross Munn sang.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Son May Follow Father. Footwork in Ring. Faster Mile Predicted.

The changes in the make-up of the Phils did not end with the action of the owners in selling nearly all of their marketable players. After being installed as manager in place of Burt Shotton, Jimmy Wilson proceeded to tear down the remainder of the club with a view to rebuilding for the future on a basis of youth and speed, and he surely has come close to making a complete job of it. The extent to which Jimmy has cleaned house may be judged from the fact that of the 36 players used by the Phils last season only eight remain on the squad now playing a series at Forbes Field.

Dick Bartell

Dick Bartell, shortstop and captain, and Mickey Haslin, who played the last 26 games of the 1933 season at second base, are the only men now answering the roll call who held down regular positions on last year's team. Al Todd is the No. 2 catcher, as he was last season, and the pitching department has five holdovers in Phil Collins, Ed Holley, Snipe Hansen, Austin Moore and Rey Grabowski. But as compared with 1933, there are three new faces in the outfield since George Davis came back to replace Chick Fullis, and Bartell and Haslin are the only survivors of the Shotton regime in the infield.

It isn't often that a major league club is made over so extensively within a single year as to retain only eight of its players of the preceding season. Even the Reds, after all their shifts, still have 11 of their performers of 1933.

OUTFIELD DOES NOT WORRY TIGER BOSS

The managers of some of the other clubs in the American League are pointing to what they consider a spotty outfield as an argument against the pennant chances of the Detroit team. Rogers Hornsby declares it would be impossible for any club to hold up for a full season with such a set of gardeners, and two or three other pilots have expressed the same opinion. But Mickey Cochrane is not at all worried about his picket line. He does not claim to have a great ball club, but insists that 1934 is the year for the type of team he commands.

Mickey hopes to surprise those holding the view that the race is going to be between the Yankees and Senators. If his own outfield is to be criticized, he calls the attention of the jury to the Yanks' first line of defense, which he calls an American Association infield. And he can't see where any other rival has the pitching to give it a better pennant chance than that of the Tigers. As a matter of fact, there isn't a really outstanding club in the league, and any one of three or even four clubs may be up there at the finish.

M'KECHNIE FAVORS BASEBALL FOR SON

Whether or not the McKechnie line in professional baseball is to be carried on by the oldest son of the present manager of the Braves is a matter to be determined entirely by the playing ability of the youngster himself. Bill, Sr., will not object. On the contrary, he favors it strongly, provided the boy becomes a good enough player to make the major leagues. Young Bill has ambitions in that direction. He plays first base for Penn State College and has been elected captain of the team for next year.

Bill McKechnie, Jr.

Asked the other day if he would desire his son to play professional baseball as a career, the skipper of the Braves replied: "Yes, if he is good enough to play in the major leagues." Did he hope the youngster would become a big leaguer? "The answer to the first question covers that point." How did the boy compare with other players of his age whom Bill, Sr., had seen? "Like all other college players, he can't hit the hat off his head." What was the father's reaction to the son's participation in college baseball? "One hundred per cent favorable. I am very glad he is in baseball at school, for I feel that the game is a great character builder." Does young Bill have any hopes of making the big leagues? "Yes, he thinks he has a good chance, but his dad is somewhat doubtful."

POOR FOOTWORK FAILS TO HAMPER FITZ

Good footwork is held to be essential to success in the fight game. Many boxing teachers start at the pupil's feet. Yet one of the all-time greats reached the peak in three different classes without being expert at pedal maneuvering. An old-timer recalls that Bob Fitzsimmons was the only great fighter in history whose footwork was downright bad; that Fitz shuffled around the ring, dragging his feet, which pointed in this direction and that direction, and that people couldn't understand how a man who used his trotters so awkwardly could ever hit a hard punch, because Bob certainly didn't pivot on his feet.

What they didn't understand, the veteran explains, was that Fitz swung from the hips. He pivoted from the hips, whereas Jack Dempsey, Max Baer and all the other noted punchers have pivoted from the feet. It is recalled that Ruby Robert was badly knock-kneed, and that his legs never were meant for boxing, but the remainder of him was surely all fighter. When he led his left and crossed with his right he was shuffling in close, and after the right came the left to deliver the solar plexus punch. Fitz was the great freak of boxing. No one could ever adopt his style.

WEFERS SEES NEW MARK BY CUNNINGHAM

Far from believing that Glenn Cunningham reached the limit of his possibilities when he ran his world record mile in 4:06.7, Bernie Wefers, old sprint champion, reveals that Cunningham did that mile with a sore foot that was heavily taped, and he expresses the opinion that the Kansan will beat his own mark before he hangs up his racing shoes. Wefers is one of the track veterans by whom a four-minute mile is considered possible. He doesn't attempt to predict what runner will accomplish it, but feels sure that Cunningham can and will go faster than 4:06.7.

Bernie Wefers

Wefers was present when Tommy Conneff in 1895 set what was then a world record by running a mile in 4 minutes 15 3-5 seconds. Asked if he had believed at the time that Conneff's record ever would be broken, Bernie said that if Tommy had run his race properly he would have finished that mile in 4:07. Conneff, according to Wefers, ran three-quarters of a mile in 3:22, but just loafed the final quarter in spite of strong urging by the onlookers. Bernie thinks that because track athletes in those days had to work like horses, Conneff was saving something for a half-mile race later in the day.

Activity at Oakmont Boat Club as Hearst Gold Cup Regatta Nears

THE STARTING CLOCK . . . . ALREADY IN POSITION FOR THE RACES

With entries coming in from near and far and interest in the feature increasing daily, the Oakmont Boat Club already has its arrangements completed for the staging of the William Randolph Hearst Gold Cup motorboat regatta in conjunction with the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in the Allegheny River at Oakmont, Saturday and Sunday, July 14-15. The big timing clock, which guides the racers in crossing the line, is set, the judges' and tie-up barges are in place and the race could be run this week-end if necessary, instead of two weeks later. Among the latest entrants are O. A. Babcock, in the Professional F class, and E. E. James, of Columbus, O., in the Professional A and B classes, both with speedy boats. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

JUBILEE GAME PLANS ARE EXTENDED

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Sam Watters, vice president of the Pirates, today gave out some important announcements relative to the Silver Jubilee of Forbes Field, to be observed next Saturday, when the Chicago Cubs will appear here for a game with the Bucs.

Among the announcements was one that concerns the future of the Oakland Orchard. The vice president disclosed news to the effect that beginning with the twenty-fifth anniversary game a loud speaker system would be installed at the home of the Buccos. There is a chance that the announcing system will not be ready for the jubilee game, but workmen are rushing the installation with this end in view.

MEMORIAL FOR DREYFUSS

Another permanent fixture will be the unveiling of a granite shaft bearing a bronze tablet memorializing the great services to baseball performed by the late Barney Dreyfuss and his son, Samuel Dreyfuss. This sentimental shaft will be located in deep centerfield midway between the two flagpoles.

Watters said that John A. Heydler and William Harridge, presidents of the National and American leagues, will be in attendance. Commissioner K. M. Landis will be unable to attend, but he and his office will be represented by his secretary, Leslie M. O'Connor.

Gold medals will be presented two present-day Pirates—Right Fielder Paul Waner and First Baseman Gus Suhr. Paul and Gus are the winners of a baseball popularity contest carried on by a San Francisco newspaper, which chose this means of selecting an all-Coast League club over a 15-year period.

FRED CLARKE COMING

The holiday spirit will abound throughout the day and evening. The committee in charge of the Benswanger testimonial dinner slated for Saturday night at the William Penn Hotel announced today that in all probability Fred Clarke would be on for the festivities of the long day.

Bill Swift limited the Phillies to seven hits yesterday as the Buccos made it two straight over the Quakers. The Pirates bunched their 14 safeties with their passes in a judicious manner and enjoyed three good scoring innings in the early phase of the battle which put the contest on the ice.

Reggie Grabowski and Southpaw George Darrow found the Pirates' snappy attack too much for their slants. The former was relieved by the kid lefthander in the third. Darrow gave a fine account of himself after he found his control. Paul Waner connected for a homer in the eighth.

Rip 6-26

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE HOUSE OF WELCH—Mrs. Charles F. Hicks, of Welch, W. Va., has combined in her home two most unusual features—a coal mine in the basement and a garage in the attic. Built on the side of a steep hill, the house is so constructed that a road leads up to the hillside of the roof into the attic-garage, and 30 feet below the floor of the garage is a coal seam even with the basement floor, making it an easy matter to mine the coal for direct use in the furnace. THE FORT WORTH TRAVELER—J. H. McKinney, of Fort Worth, Tex., has traveled more than 2,643,840 miles thus far in his life time, yet never has been more than 34 miles from his home. McKinney is a conductor on the Fort Worth-Dallas interurban line, and for 28 years—every day of the year—he has made three or four round trips daily between those points, averaging about 100,000 miles per year. He still is making his runs regularly and probably will pass the three-million mile mark without ever going farther from home than the end of his run—34 miles.

TOMORROW: WHERE IS THE ATLANTIC OCEAN BRIDGE?

GADD, BRITISH PRO, MEDALIST WITH 140

SANDWICH, England, June 26.—(AP.)—Bert Gadd, a 25-year-old professional from Quinton, blazed the Royal St. Georges course in 69 today for a two-round total of 140 to swing into the lead in the 36-hole qualifying round for the British Open golf championship, which begin on St. Georges tomorrow. Gadd toured the Royal Cinque Ports links—the other qualifying course—in 71 yesterday.

Second place was shared by Henry Cotton, Percy Alliss and James Adams, British Isles pros, who had 36-hole aggregates of 141 each. Cotton, who set a record with a 66 at St. Georges yesterday, carded a 75 at Cinque today, while Alliss and Adams shared a new record as they toured the same layout in 67 today, after chalking up 74s at St. Georges yesterday.

DEADLOCKED AT 143

This triumvirate held a two-stroke lead over Syd Fairweather, British pro; E. F. Story, British amateur Walker Cup star, and Angel De La Torre, five times former Spanish Open king, who were knotted together with 143s.

MacDonald Smith, of Nashville, Tenn., with a 36-hole aggregate of 148, led the invaders from the western side of the Atlantic into the title grind. Smith got off to a brilliant start over St. Georges today, negotiating the first nine holes in 32 and then encountered a run of trouble and hard luck to take an inward 41 for a 73. He scored a 75 over Cinque yesterday.

DENNY SHUTE RALLIES

Denny Shute, of Philadelphia, the defending champion, returned to form today to post a one-under-par 73 at Cinque for a two-round total of 149. Shute's chances of qualifying, much less repeating his 1933 playoff triumph, were considered slim yesterday when he took a blundering 76. But he had his wood shots and putter under better control today and easily got inside the qualifying fold limited to the first 100 and ties.

Gene Sarazen, 1932 champion and betting odds favorite, and his touring exhibition companion, Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot performer, qualified with 150's. They achieved this total from two rounds each of 75. Sarazen, playing St. Georges, continued to have trouble with his putter and wasn't able to shake off the "three-putt jinx" that attached itself to him yesterday.

SWEENEY CARDS 69

Robert Sweeney, a former New Yorker attending Oxford University, caught the spirit of the low scoring at Cinque and chipped in a sub-par 69 for a new amateur record for the course and an aggregate of 145 and a tie with Harry Padgham, crack British pro. Padgham did St. Georges in 71 today.

NET DEADLINE TONIGHT

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Men's singles entries for the annual Allegheny County tennis championships will close at 8 o'clock this evening, according to word from Tournament Chairman Howard Clark, who further states that immediately upon the stroke of the said hour he and his committee will go into session at the Westinghouse Club and there choose a seeded list of eight contestants and make the draw.

Aspirants may file last-minute applications for positions in the bracket by calling Churchill 0280 prior to the putting up of the bars.

Competition in the county classic will get under way on the 12 clay courts of the Westinghouse Club late Thursday afternoon and will be continued over the week-end, with final frays scheduled for Independence Day. In addition to the man-to-man play there will be hostilities in women's singles and in men's and mixed doubles.

GIANTS RECALL LEIBER

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 26.—(AP.)—Hank Leiber, center fielder, whose batting has contributed to the success of the Nashville Vols in leading the Southern Association this season, has been recalled by the New York Giants, and the Vols bought Homer Peel from the Giants to replace him.

JAYS BOOST LOOP LEAD

The fact that it was Merchants' Day in Washington yesterday meant practically nothing to the Jeannette Jays. Hitting at timely moments behind Compton's steady hurling, the Jays strengthened their lead in the Penn State Association by pasting Washington's Generals, 19 to 5, with 8,000 General fans looking on.

At Charleroi, the McKeesport Bucs defeated the home club, 5 to 2, as Peckman and Hutsell kept Charleroi's 12 hits well scattered. Greensburg defeated Monessen, 9 to 3, behind Gillette's four-hit hurling.

HONUS AT GATHERING

Honus Wagner, the famous Flying Dutchman of baseball, who now assists Manager Pie Traynor in running the Pirates, and Charles J. (Chilly) Doyle, of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, were speakers last night at the baseball gathering held in the auditorium of the Dormont Presbyterian Church. Members of the Dormont Legion and City League clubs were guests of honor.

BOUT HALTED BY REFEREE IN TENTH

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Write it down in big, bold letters that the name of Zivic still means fight and a fighting heart, as it did when Jack and Pete Zivic were making boxing history.

Write it down also that Eddie Zivic, one of the four fighting brothers, of Lawrenceville, has arrived.

Eddie Zivic

The sporting population of this man's town today still was buzzing excitedly over Eddie's sensational technical knockout victory over rugged Joey Costa, a seasoned campaigner, from New York, with 25 seconds to go in the final round of their 10-round battle at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night, marking Eddie's debut in fast company.

DRAMATIC FINISH

It was as dramatic a battle as ever has been waged here and left the fans heatedly debating the finish. There were some who said the referee, Red Robinson, erred in halting the bout so near to the final gong and others who upheld him. This writer climbed into Costa's corner after Zivic had been declared the winner and satisfied himself that the referee had done the right thing.

Costa still was dazed and he was exhausted. He had been knocked down twice for counts of nine and then had fallen down from sheer exhaustion before Robinson intervened as Joey gamely and with the instinctive actions of a fighter dragged himself wearily up at eight, a target for a finishing punch. It is when fighters are exhausted and defenseless that they get killed or badly hurt. A lot could have happened in those remaining 25 seconds, and it would have happened to Costa in his condition.

ESCAPES EARLIER KAYO

Twice before, early in the fight, Costa had tasted the sting of Zivic's punching and had taken counts of nine, both times in the third round, when he just escaped a knockout. However, up to that time and after that until the startling climax he completely dominated the fight. He was a mile out in front until he fought himself out and went down under his opponent's blows in the closing minutes. Had he been able to weather the storm to the final bell he would have been the winner on points.

Costa had no complaint to make after the fight. He admitted he was dazed and very tired at the finish. Zivic, elated with the sudden shift of events which had turned seemingly certain defeat into a blazing victory for him, came over and said:

"Good fight, Joey."

And Joey replied simply:

"Yeah, good fight."

That was all. Not a word of complaint about the referee's action in stopping the bout.

COSTA TAKES LEAD

Zivic appeared frail against his solidly built opponent and took a bad beating about the body and from stiff left jabs to the face, and in the first two rounds he seemed to be outclassed. Then, suddenly, in the third, he uncorked two rights to the head and Costa went down to a sitting position in midring for a nine count. When he got up Zivic pursued him about the ring until he finally caught up with him and sent him down into the ropes with a left hook for another count of nine. Eddie expended a lot of energy trying to finish his man, but couldn't do it, and at the bell Costa had recovered and scored with two jabs.

The next round found Zivic coasting to regain some of the strength he had punched out of his system, and Costa got back into the running and remained there right up to the sudden turning of the tide in the final round, winning every frame. In the eighth he had Zivic hanging on from the alternate bombardment of his head and body.

TIDE TURNS SUDDENLY

In the ninth Eddie heeded the advice of his brother, Fritzie, to keep moving and pick his spots for leading, and he avoided a lot of punishment. In the tenth he started off slowly and then opened up for a desperate finish. He backed Costa across the ring with a volley of punches which did no especial harm and then nailed him with a right which dropped him. Joey turned over and got up groggy. Another right floored him for another nine, and when he arose he was so weak that he fell down and took a count of eight and was in no condition to continue as the referee stepped between them after 2 minutes 35 seconds of the round.

Zivic weighed 131¾ pounds, a low weight for him. He was fighting at around 135 and 136 pounds during his recent successful invasion of California. Costa weighed 129½. Their bout drew the best gate of the outdoor sea-

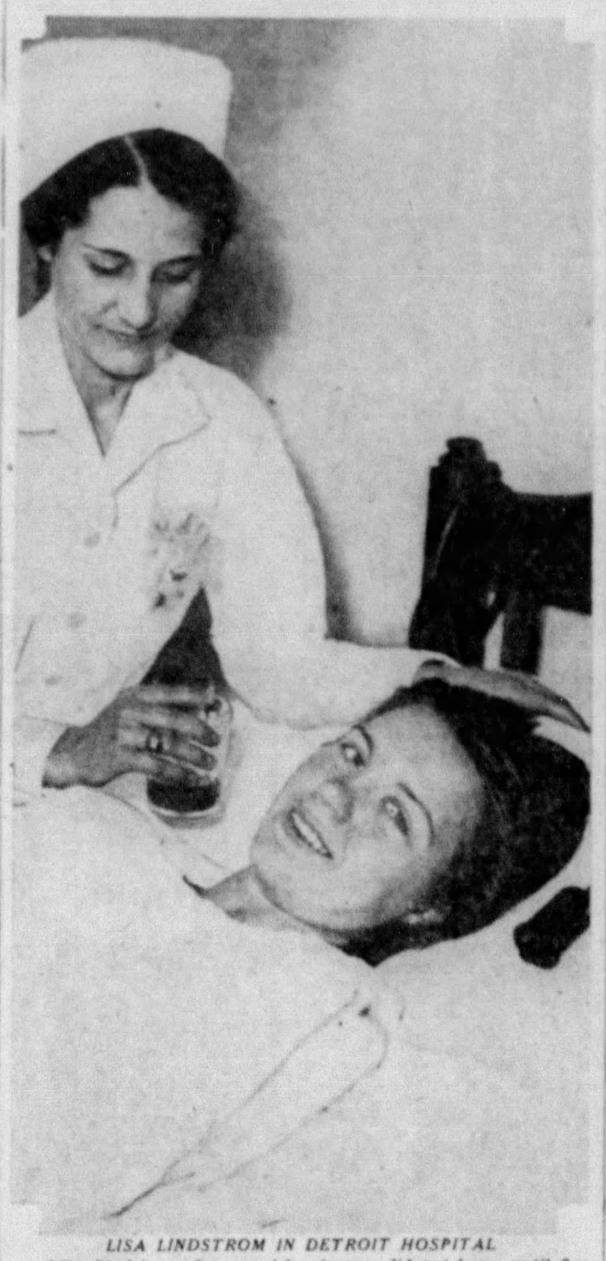
Swimmer's Back Broken



LISA LINDSTROM IN DETROIT HOSPITAL

Miss Lindstrom, famous girl swimmer, did not know until five days after she arrived in Detroit that she had suffered a broken back in an automobile accident. Here she is seen in the Grace Hospital, Detroit, where it is said she will be confined for possibly a year. This is a Wide World News Photograph Service picture.

Softball Rules Clarified By Parent Organization

By PHILIP GRABOWSKI, Softball Tournament Secretary

Official interpretations of the rules of softball, the popular new game being sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph through its Western Pennsylvania amateur tournament, have just been announced by the Amateur Softball Association of America, the parent body, and are printed herewith for the benefit of the teams playing the game.

The interpretations deal with pitching, base-stealing and run-scoring and may clear up some points which have proved puzzling to players and umpires. Here they are:

RULE 8—PITCHING RULES

There has been some question as to whether a pitcher can start a windup from behind his back, whether he can take a full arm-swing, whether he can turn his body in winding up, etc. The ruling is:

A pitcher may use any style of windup he desires, so long as it conforms to the rules; that is, before delivering the ball, he must come to rest with both feet on the rubber, facing the batter. The ball must be delivered with a continuous full-arm swing, with the hand below the hip and the ball not more than six inches from the leg or body. Snapping or jerky release is prohibited, and the arm must not swing across the front of the body, either in the delivery or the follow-through. One foot must maintain contact with the rubber until after the pitch. After the ball has been delivered, the pitcher may advance.

RULE 20—BASE STEALING

Is a delayed steal permitted?

A runner may make a delayed steal of any base except home, provided he does not leave his base until after the ball has passed home plate, and before the pitcher again has the ball in his possession in pitching position.

Base-runner is off his base when ball is returned to pitcher, having taken a lead after the ball has passed the batter. Is he out?

If a base-runner legally takes a lead off his base, he shall be given a reasonable time to return. He should not be called out unless he deliberately stalls in returning after the pitcher is in position.

Base-runner takes lead legally, pitcher gets throw from catcher and immediately pitches to batter. Is runner out?

No. The pitcher, by not allowing runner enough time to return, releases him from the penalty of the rule.

Runner on second, batter hits single. Runner goes to third. Pitcher takes throw from outfield and is walking to the box when runner breaks for home and scores. Is he safe?

The run counts. The ball is in play and runners may leave their bases until the pitcher actually is in the pitching box in pitching position.

Runner starts with pitch. Batter hits ball. What is the proper way of calling such a play?

There is no such thing as a "hit and run" in fast pitching. The runner is out for having left his base too soon, but inasmuch as the rules do not say that a ball is dead on such an out, the hit is permitted to stand, unless the base runner's out is the third of the inning. In such a case, the hit is not allowed, and the batter leads off in the following inning unless he makes an out on the play.

...Rest in a pitcher in pitching position?

At any time when he has both feet on the rubber, facing the batter with the ball in his possession, whether or not the batter is in his box, unless the umpire has called "time."

RULE 24—SCORING

A runner on third cannot score if the catcher throws the ball back directly to the pitcher, whether or not the pitcher is on the rubber. A runner may attempt to score if the pitcher, catcher or any other player makes a play on him or any other base runner. He may try to score if the catcher makes a throw to any player except the pitcher, whether there is a play or not. He cannot score on a passed ball or wild pitch. A runner on third may take a lead off base as provided in rule 20, but cannot steal, nor can he score except on a play or a legally hit ball.

BELTZHOOVER TO QUIT IN CITY LOOP

President Everett Sweeny has called a special meeting of the City League for the Hotel Henry tomorrow evening and at the session the Beltzhoover club officially will tender its resignation, it was learned today.

Rumors have been circulating in the league that all was not well with the McKinley Park outfit. Last night, Manager Bill Hite notified President Sweeny that the club would withdraw from the circuit.

Until the managers get together it is not known what club will fill the vacancy, but the Immaculate Heart and Scott Morgan nines are making applications for the berth.

Manager Joe Dobbs, of Immaculate Heart, admitted last night that he intended to apply for the berth for the second half race. He said:

"The followers of our club are fed up with the teams that appear at the West Penn playgrounds. The attitude of these clubs is affecting the morale of our club. The better the opposition, the better Immaculate Heart plays, so we will try and get a berth in the City League."

This evening, the Bock nine travels to Mt. Oliver and should Heinie Boll and his mates win, then the championship of the first half will be theirs. The other game in the circuit finds Parmelee clashing with Homewood at the playgrounds.

The Olympia Park club easily defeated Dormont last evening, Swede Anderson pitching a stellar game to win over Lefty Richards, 10 to 3.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER,
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

Some of the boys said "phooey" when they read about how American girls wanting to say "howdy" to the King and Queen of England would have to have their dresses just so. No more low backs, high fronts, etc., any more. It is O. K. to have a train four yards long instead of 18 inches, it is said. But I don't see any harm in that sort of stuff. If girls are so giddy as to get excited about meeting royalty, why, whom does it hurt? No one, not even the girls. Men have to dress just so, too. But don't ball players have to dress just so to get on the field? What would happen if Bill Terry or Frankie Frisch came on the field dressed in overalls? It's what we call custom—so go to it, girls, if you want to meet royalty. Regards,

HONUS WAGNER.

YANKS REGAIN FIRST PLACE IN RACE

Associated Press

The answer to Joe McCarthy's prayer for pitching strength is Johnny Broaca, Yale graduate of a week ago.

This apprentice right-hander's fourth effective pitching job in a row had put the New York Yankees back in the American League lead again and given McCarthy a chance to worry about something else besides the condition of his mound staff.

COASTS TO VICTORY

Ably supported by Lou Gehrig and other Yankee swatsmiths, Broaca coasted to a 13-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox yesterday, although the 10 hits he allowed were almost as many as he had permitted all told in three prior appearances.

The bespectacled Yale star's record since he joined the club June 2 shows two victories, including a one-hit shutout, and one defeat, in which he allowed only three hits. He has given up only 27 hits in 38 innings and fanned five men yesterday to boost his strikeouts to 23. Gehrig contributed his nineteenth homer, a triple, double and single to New York's 18-hit assault. Not content with his pitching efforts, Broaca equalled Lefty Grove's American League record for a nine-inning game by fanning five times.

TAKE FIRST PLACE

The victory sent the Yankees back into first place by four percentage points over the Detroit Tigers, who bowed to the Philadelphia Athletics, 13-11, in a knockdown, drag-out battle marked by Jimmy Foxx's nineteenth and twentieth homers.

LONDOS AGAIN MAT CHAMP

NEW YORK, June 26.—(AP.)—Jim Londos, idol of the Greeks, came back to the heavyweight wrestling throne amid some of the finest groaning, gurgling and cackling in years as he downed burly Jim Browning, generally recognized as world champion, in one hour, 10 minutes and 10 seconds last night before a crowd of 20,000. A series of body slams brought the finish.

SHIELDS, WOOD VICTORS AT WIMBLEDON

WIMBLEDON, England, June 26.—(AP.)—Lester R. Stefen, of Los Angeles, third ranking American singles player, scored impressively in his second round match of the all-England tennis championships today as he defeated John S. Olliff, British internationalist, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

Frank Shields, the top-ranking American, blasted Pierre Landry, of France, out of the tournament, 6-4, 6-4, 6-0. The big New Yorker got his service booming after a somewhat erratic start and easily kept the upper hand throughout the match.

CRAWFORD ADVANCES

A surprise was occasioned by the withdrawal of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crawford, of Australia, from the mixed doubles, thereby enabling one of the American teams, George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago, and Sarah Palfrey, of Boston, to gain the second round by default.

Crawford, playing steadily, advanced to the third round by defeating one of the ranking Germans, Hans Henkel, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

Fred Perry, British ace, easily wore down the resistance of the American veteran and Davis Cup leader, R. N. (Dick) Williams, of Philadelphia, and won by scores of 6-2, 6-2, 6-0.

WOOD IS EXTENDED

Sidney B. Wood, Jr., another of the American Davis Cup players, encountered stiff opposition in Max Ellmer, of Switzerland, but won, 6-4, 5-7, 6-0, 7-5, to keep pace with Shields and Stofen.

Gottfried Von Cramm, German Davis Cup ace, defeated A. Jacobsen, Denmark, 6-2, 6-3, 9-7, and Bunny Austin, one of Britain's greatest, eliminated H. Denker, of Germany, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2.

In women's singles matches today Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, England, surprised by defeating Betty Nuthall, England, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4; Josephine Cruickshank defaulted to Senorita J. de Chavarri, Spain; Dorothy Round, England, defeated Joan Ridley, England, 6-2, 6-0; Lolette Payot, Switzerland, defeated Nancy Lyle, England, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1, and Margaret (Peggy) Scriven, England, and Hilda Sperling, Germany, won over little-known opponents.

Miss Cruickshank explained that she had sprained her shoulder in practice.

GANGER WINS IN TOURNEY

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—(AP.)—Led by a seeded contingent of eight American and two Canadian stars, the field in the national intercollegiate tennis championships whittled itself down to 32 players from its original 100 in an all-day session of action yesterday.

The ranking list, headed by Champion Jack Tidball, of the University of California at Los Angeles, had little difficulty in pacing the field into the third round of the fiftieth anniversary tournament at Merio.. Cricket Club.

Nate Ganger, No. 1 player and captain of the University of Pittsburgh tennis varsity, advanced to the third round, winning by default over J. P. Higgins, of Duke, in the first round and downing Charles G. Brooke, of Johns Hopkins, in the second, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2.

WOLFFS FORFEIT GOLF TITLE

By TOM BIRKS

Whether Regis Wolff, representing the University of Pittsburgh in the national intercollegiate golf tourney, now in progress in Cleveland, makes a showing or not, he and his father will not defend their father-and-son title, won last year at the Allegheny Country Club, when the tourney gets under way over the links of the Oakmont Country Club Friday.

The women's Section I team matches promise a real struggle today over the links of the Pittsburgh Field Club. With two more matches to play, the Field Club, Oakmont, Fox Chapel and Allegheny teams all are closely bunched.

Playing at home, it is likely that the Field Club women will gain a commanding lead.

The final matches for the championship will be played at Fox Chapel Friday.

Section II plays at the South Hills Country Club today. St. Clair has a five-point lead over its nearest competitor.

Joby Connors, assistant professional at Chartiers Heights, gave par at Stanton Heights a booting around yesterday as he led the field in the Caddie Masters' and Assistant Professionals' Golf Association tournament. Connors scored a fine 34-34—68 for his third triumph in a row. He previously won the Churchill Valley and Edgewood events.

Johnny Johnston, of the home club, finished in second place with a 73 and Dick Kline, of Churchill Valley, posted an 80.

In special team matches, Connors and Brannigan, of Churchill Valley, defeated Johnston and Kline, 5 and 4, and Jim Bruno, of Churchill Valley, and Charley Bagwell defeated Mike Swisdak, of Edgewood, and Art Underwood, of Alcoma, 1 up.

THIRD INNING

PHILADELPHIA—Collins fanned. G. Davis singled to center. Bartell grounded into a double play, Vaughan to Lavagetto to Suhr. One hit.

FOURTH INNING

Conroy School Gets Two School Trophies

The Fintex trophies, emblematic of the Pittsburgh grade school mushball and track championships, were presented to the Conroy School, of the North Side, at an assembly in the school auditorium today.

The presentations were made by Charles W. Nethaway, supervisor of athletics in the Pittsburgh grade schools.

Mrs. Thompson Wins In Baltimore Play

BALTIMORE, June 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. De Lloyd Thompson, of Washington, Pa., defending titleholder, dropped only two games yesterday in advancing to the second round of the Maryland state women's tournament.

ANGELS CLINCH FLAG

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—(AP.)—Without losing a series in the first 12 weeks of campaigning, Los Angeles was returned champion of the first half of the split season in the Pacific Coast League with an 18½-game margin over the second-place Missions.

FONSECA LECTURER

CHICAGO, June 26.—(AP.)—Lew Fonseca, deposed manager of the Chicago White Sox, got a new job today. He's to become a lecturer. Fonseca was appointed to handle a program which has the indorsement of the American League club owners and President Will Harridge to promote baseball through the showing of baseball motion pictures at colleges, clubs and schools.

BANQUET TONIGHT

St. Peter's Lutheran Church, of East Liberty, will hold its annual fathers' and sons' banquet at the church tonight. Among the guests will be James P. Mace, of the Downtown Y. M. C. A.; Joe Skladany and Doc Hartwig, of Pitt, and Gus Suhr and Woody Jensen, of the Pirates.

FIGHT PROBE ASKED

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—(INS.)—A probe of the Sammy Slaughter-Freddie Steele fight, which was declared "no contest" in the first round, was urged by the State Boxing Commission today by the California Boxing Managers' Association.

KOCSIS LEADER IN COLLEGE GOLF PLAY

CLEVELAND, June 26.—(AP.)—Playing the last six holes in a cloudburst which flooded greens so that mashies and chippers replaced putters on the green, Charley Kocsis, of the University of Michigan, turned in a sparkling 73 today, one over par, to take the lead in the qualifying rounds of the National Intercollegiate golf tournament.

Added to his 74 of yesterday, Kocsis has an aggregate of 147 for the 36 holes, which many believed would be low score for the two-day qualifier. Jack Hoerner, of Stanford, playing with Kocsis, was less fortunate and finished with an 85—which gives him 163 for the 36 holes.

Only about a third of the field had left No. 1 tee when the wind and rain struck the course. Several of the players doffed their shirts as they teed off.

son to date and a return match will fill the same arena, in which Brother Fritzie Zivic boxes Eddie Ran in the windup next Monday night.

THREE OTHER KNOCKOUTS

While a thriller that will be long remembered by the fans, the windup merely was in keeping with the remainder of the card for excitement, every bout but the opening five-rounder ending in a speedy knockout. Vic Willetts, of the Hill, and Farmer Bill Schwerin, of Clairton, started off the bill with a drab bout in which Schwerin won the decision.

Then Harry Krause, of Oakland, an eleventh-hour substitute, stepped into the slugging of Ralph Gizzy, Donora lightweight, and floored him for a count of two with a right to the jaw and then knocked him through the lower rope onto the outer edge of the ring platform with a left hook for the full count after 2 minutes 40 seconds of whirlwind battling in the opening round.

Jack Dalcherone, Springdale middleweight, lambasted Tom Green, East Liberty Negro, so lustily about the body toward the end of the first round that Tom resigned in his corner before the next bell, and then Georgie Pace, Negro featherweight, of Cleveland, cornered Nat Litfin, of the Hill, in his own corner and belted him down for a count of seven, from which Nat arose to fall down along the ropes and have the count completed, the semi-final lasting only 1 minute 45 seconds of the first round.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Ted Yarosz will establish training quarters at Conneaut Lake Park soon and will referee one of the bouts on an amateur card there July 4.

Joe Humphries, veteran announcer, saw Al Quaill knock out Harry Thompson, an experienced Negro fighter, in his first start in the East at Long Branch, N. J., the other night, and is touting the Brookline middleweight around New York as one of the best young prospects he's looked at in a long time.

Jimmy Belmont and Young Rudy have been matched for a special six-round bout on the Tiger Joe Randall-Eddie (Kid) Wolfe card at Monessen, July 13. Randall, by the way, now is under the management of Frank Klaus, former middleweight champion of the world.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Hickey Park, Millvale—Eddie Zivic won by technical knockout over Joey Costa, 10 rounds; Georgie Pace knocked out Nat Litfin, 1 round; Jack Dalcherone won by technical knockout over Tom Green (Green refused to answer bell for second round); Harry Krause knocked out Ralph Gizzy, 1 round; Farmer Bill Schwerin defeated Vic Willetts, 6 rounds.

At New Orleans—Midget Maxico defeated Jumbo Rovira, 10 rounds; Henry Hook knocked out Joe Saille, 2 rounds.

At Richmond—Joey Goodman defeated Henry Falegano, 7 rounds.

At Washington, D. C.—Al Gillette defeated Charley Von Reedon, 10 rounds; Al Figone defeated Sammy Seaman, 8 rounds; Henry Irving defeated K. O. Jack Renault, 6 rounds; Wild Bill Howell won by a technical knockout over Sailor McKenna, 2 rounds; Al Tulman won by a technical knockout over Joe Doty, 3 rounds.

At Jersey City—Billy McMahon and Teddy Loder drew, 10 rounds; Joey Legray defeated Joe Nelson, 8 rounds.

At Chicago—Everett (Young) Rightmire defeated Nive Barry, 8 rounds; Al Pahl defeated Carl Scalise, 6 rounds; Solly Dukelsky defeated Jack Gibbs, 8 rounds; Lou Bartel knocked out (technical) Johnny Simpson, 2 rounds; Mickey Beal knocked out (technical) Bud Dempsey, 3 rounds.

At Sioux City—Dick Demeray knocked out (technical) Ralph Leslie, 3 rounds; Goldie O'Hare knocked out (technical) Irish McKenna, 4 rounds; Kid Miller knocked out (technical) Leonard Johnson, 3 rounds.

KERN TO WED SATURDAY

William F. (Bill) Kern, first assistant to Dr. John Bain Sutherland, head football coach at Pitt, is to take on a new boss this week. Yesterday Kern and Miss Valetta McCullough, of 239 Suncrest street, took out a marriage license. The wedding will take place Saturday.

After graduating from Pitt in 1927, Kern coached at the University of Montana and played professional football with the Green Bay Packers, National Professional Football League champions. He was appointed first assistant to Dr. Sutherland this year when Andy Gustafson left Pitt to go to Dartmouth.

LITTLE CHANGE IN BUSINESS CONDITIONS

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, June 25.—Business activity last week continued to show the irregular strength which has characterized the last few weeks. Various stimulants have been just about balanced with the uncertainties and depressants, the result being that neither the hopes of the optimists nor the fears of the pessimists have been fully realized.

After receding for a couple of weeks, the curve of industrial activity turned up slightly, due allowance being made for the usual seasonal variation. This, however, has brought no enthusiasm, and few observers look upon it as a real turn for the better.

The reason for this attitude of caution is that the main factor in steel production, and this seems unlikely to hold. In fact, signs of the inevitable reaction in steelmaking are already apparent, and production schedules have dropped quite sharply. The steel corporation is blowing out two furnaces this week.

For several weeks the steel industry has been operating on orders to anticipate the higher prices which take effect July 1. Labor uncertainties have also caused some speeding up of production. These factors are now losing effect. Orders are falling off. A sharp letdown in steelmaking is almost certain in July.

Some stimulus is reported to have been given to automobile sales by the price-cutting policy. This will relieve dealers who have large inventories, but all precedents indicate that the manufacturing season is too far along to allow us to expect much change in the very moderate prospects revealed by May automobile sales.

TEXTILE BACKWARD

Evidently here is a case in which price-boosting tactics, under the "code," helped to kill the goose.

Car loading last week showed about the usual seasonal gain. This showing has been helped a little by an early movement of winter wheat, and by what is probably one of the last weeks of heavy movement of steel, ore, coal and coke resulting from the factors mentioned above.

Commodity prices again averaged higher, some weekly indexes touching new highs by a narrow margin. The chief factor here appears to have been a rise in hogs and lard, together with other food products and hides, and it reflects the drought and government purchases. Grains, flour, rubber, silk and wool were a little lower.

These uncertainties have hardly been reduced by the adjournment of Congress. The big question right along has been "what will he do?"—meaning Mr. Roosevelt (and his advisors).

LOOK TO PRESIDENT

How fast will he deal out the billions of our money which he has been given to spend? He has just signed an order to pour $150,000,000 into drought areas, but that is only a drop in the big bucket.

How "enthusiastically" are he and Mr. Morganthau going to buy silver and deal out silver certificates under the new law? There will be only about 37 cents worth of silver back of the new paper, but will they price it at $1 or $1.29? Will they soon write up a big paper "profit" for the Treasury and proceed to spend it as they have done with gold?

What will he deal in the new tariff game?

Will he hold or discard the Frazier-Lemke bill, which would probably result in virtually wiping out farm mortgage debt?

Will he try to finess a "pep" housing campaign, or will he give a real boost by putting down the prices and wages which are keeping building costs prohibitive?

These are some of the uncertainties in the New Deal. Business is waiting to see how the President will play his hand.

Steel Trade Nearing Critical Period

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

THE STEEL industry is approaching another critical period. This time it will not be labor. It will be demand.

Steel purchases were stimulated until recently by the fact that higher prices will become effective on July 1. When this date is reached, a pause in buying may take place as consumers use up the stocks which they have accumulated in advance of immediate needs. No statistics are available showing the volume of this anticipatory buying so that predictions of steel production during the next few weeks must be based on guess work.

A sharp reduction in the volume of new steel business has been taking place. It is too soon, however, to guage the effect on production next month. Output has declined to some extent throughout the entire country. The decline has been particularly sharp in the Youngstown district. Seasonal influences usually result in curtailment of steel production during the summer.

Retail Auto Sales Gain

GOOD NEWS comes from Detroit. Motor car makers report that the recent price reductions have been followed by a general increase in retail sales. Figures on retail deliveries are more encouraging to sales executives than earlier indications.

While the gain is believed to be due chiefly to the stimulating effect of the price cuts, the ending of the drought in many of the farming districts also is considered to have been a helpful influence.

Production of automobiles in June is expected to exceed 300,000 units. This would make the total for the first six months of the year at least 1,770,000 units. This would compare with 1,045,372 units in the first half of 1933 and would be the heaviest production for any corresponding period since 1930.

New Security Issues Coming

BOND HOUSES again are devoting attention to new issues. The changes made in the securities act have reduced restrictions to an extent which may break the deadlock in new financing. Discussions are understood to be under way between leading underwriting firms and some of the stronger corporations. The fact that several issues are selling above their call prices is an indication that a market exists for new securities. Present money conditions would make it possible for some companies to refund existing bond issues at a lower interest rate.

Deals of this kind, however, are not made over night. Several months may be needed to determine the effect of the changes in the law.

SURPRISE RALLY LIFTS STOCKS 3 POINTS

NEW YORK, June 26.—(AP.)—The stock market today proved a pleasant, or unpleasant, surprise to traders who had confidently expected a sharp relapse on the basis of the quite bearish report on declining steel operations.

Prices, after hesitating a bit in the early dealings, turned rather briskly upward and rallies of fractions to about three points were recorded in most categories. The rails and metals led the recovery and the activity, although still far under normal, was much more pronounced than in yesterday's session. The buying flurry lasted about 20 minutes, then the slow trading pace was resumed. Leading issues pared their extreme gains under profit taking.

In addition to reports of short covering, a recovery of grains may have been a helpful factor. Corn and oats recovered a cent or more a bushel and wheat followed more leisurely. Cotton was a little hesitant, but rubber and silver futures were fairly firm. Prime bonds continued in demand, and other loan categories were mixed. The dollar held steady in foreign exchange markets.

Among shares advancing 1 to around 3 points were those of United States Smelting, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Cerro de Pasco, Howe Sound, American Can, Chrysler, American Tobacco B, Liggett & Myers B, Montgomery Ward, American Beet Sugar preferred, Wilson & Co., Great Western Sugar and Western Union. Both Reading and Homestake Mining established new highs for the year with advances of more than 3 each. Such issues as American Telephone, United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Consolidated Gas, General Motors, General Electric and N. Y. Central were fractionally to a point higher.

Word from Washington that the President planned to make an address to the country Thursday evening was pleasing to the financial district, which hoped the Executive will clarify some of the new laws and extend additional encouragement to business and industry.

Commission houses generally, while seeing nothing immediately ahead to bring about an extended buying surge, could find no reason to abandon sound trading and investment positions. It was felt, however, that until more important sponsorship and bullish stimulus appears, there is little profit to be expected in "reaching" for the general run of equities.

At the same time, some commentators advanced the thought that, on the basis of past experience, it is entirely reasonable to expect business to feel the beneficial influence of government spending within a relatively short time, so that a reversal in the seasonal trade recession may come earlier this year than expected.

With the administration preparing to make large sums available to home owners and industrialists under the housing act and industrial loan measure, hopes for a substantial upturn in business this fall were widespread.

WHEAT LEADS GRAIN DIP

CHICAGO, June 26.—(AP.)—Fresh downturns of grain values took place early today, influenced by rains and cool temperatures in spring wheat Northwest territory. Liverpool wheat quotations were weak, and buying demand here inadequate for the time being.

Opening ¼@¾ lower, September, 90¾@90⅞, Chicago wheat afterward sagged further. Corn started ⅛ off to ¼ up, and subsequently declined all around.

Open Mind Brings Results

By B. C. FORBES

DON'T HESITATE to adopt a good idea just because you were not the one to originate it.

I have known executives so pin-headed that they would never gladly accept a suggestion from any subordinate, but who would, later on, contrive to give it some little twist and then palm it off as their own brain-child.

Mr. Forbes

John McKinlay, president of one of America's greatest department stores, has no such conceited notions. He recently installed 10 new electric stairways, at a cost of half a million dollars. When I asked him the other day whether the investment is proving profitable, he replied:

"Yes, indeed; we find them increasingly popular. In fact, we hope to build more of them. They have at least doubled our elevating capacity."

Mr. McKinlay confides that, when the news became known that his establishment was going to install electric stairways, some people pointed out that certain so-called "cheaper stores" had done this. Here is this wise merchant's broad-gauge philosophy:

"We feel that if the cheaper stores seize on an undoubted improvement quicker than we do, so much the better for them."

Scot though he is, Mr. McKinlay revealed his innate sense of humor when he suggested as a fitting headline across a full-page newspaper advertisement announcing the inauguration of the new moving stairways:

"Thirty years behind the times, but catching up."

Any chief executive who becomes so obsessed with notions of his own superior mentality and ability that he feels it would be humiliating for him to act upon any suggestion from a colleague is suicidally short-sighted. He should remember the pointed adage:

"Any man who becomes cocksure he has arrived, is ripe for the return journey."

BETTER-CLASS restaurants are doing better business.

MY GUESS is that liquidation of stocks has about run its course.

Bonds of important corporations yielding 7 to 10 per cent (or more) look attractive as speculative investments. Such bonds purchased during the last two years have yielded me handsome income and profit.

THE PROSPECT is NRA's bad features will be diminished, its good features retained. And many NRA codes do have good features.

BRITAIN'S indignation against Germany for not paying debts is somewhat funny in the eyes of Americans. "It all depends on whose ox is gored."

A PREDICTION: Governmental financial assistance will shortly increase home-building and, more especially, expenditures on home improvements.

DIRECT GOVERNMENTAL loans to industries are unlikely to develop large proportions or to prove powerfully helpful in stimulating business expansion.

THE FIGURES being issued by steel companies purporting to show that recent voting of employes has been overwhelmingly in favor of retention of company employe representation, and against outside unions, are not calculated to encourage American Federation of Labor officials to order the calling of steel strikes.

IF AMERICAN business and industrial leaders cannot bring about substantial improvement in America's general economic conditions during the second half of this year, the first half of next year may be counted upon to bring acute unsettlement.

Of course, fault can be found with the way things have been going at Washington, and especially with the colossal expansion in public appropriations and expenditures: but if business and industry were to wait until there was no patch of cloud on the economic or political horizon before driving ahead, they would never register progress.

"Full steam ahead; damn the torpedoes."

DEPRESSION HERE and elsewhere has already lasted longer than normal. Time is on the side of revival.

Time alone, however, is not sufficient to do the trick. Confident effort, combined with cooperation between government and governed, is.

Spring Wheat Crop Threatened by Heat

MINNEAPOLIS, June 26.—Spring wheat has no more than held its own since the government June 1 forecast of 100,000,000 bushels, according to crop observers. In their opinion the crop may not run that high, and if present hot weather continues, further damage will be done.

A new heat wave started last Friday and continued over the week-end, evaporating surface moisture rapidly. Abundant rainfall will be necessary throughout the rest of the growing season to compensate for heat.

EXPERT SEES NO FASCISM IN 'NEW DEAL'

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 26.—It has frequently been remarked—without real justification—that the Roosevelt "New Deal" administration is moving toward Fascism.

Mr. Rukeyser

Others have gone further and pointed out that the necessities of the underlying situation will drive the United States to Fascism—or to Communism.

One is tempted to stay these easy generalities with the challenge—Why?

On the basis of results, neither the Fascist Italy nor the Communist, or Socialist, Russia has begun to approach the comparatively high living standards attained in democratic United States. The recent studies by the Brookings Institution indicate that the possibilities of future growth under the American system are still large.

FASCISM 'NO BONANZA'

In view of the spread of Fascism to Germany and elsewhere, it becomes increasingly important to examine its promise and its performance.

In Italy, of course, the Fascist party took over the government when the country was threatened with economic decay. Even if its positive performance has been limited, it has, of course, stayed the process of deterioration and has improved the credit of Italy.

In an effort to state definitely the economic consequences of Fascism in Italy, the magazine Fortune has set forth half its staff investigating the subject, and it presents its data and conclusions in the July issue. Fascism, it finds, has proved no bonanza for Italian labor.

The publication points out:

"Real wages in Italy are certainly low. As late as 1930 the statistics of the international labor office at Geneva showed that they were the lowest in Europe. (Now Nazi Germany ranks lowest.) Even after allowing for the many services that the state supplies to the people, it is practically certain that the standard of living has not been raised at all. Despite the fact that no other European nation has raised the standard of living, nevertheless as long as Fascism cannot point to a clear gain in standard-of-living it is reasonable to doubt whether state-controlled syndicates of labor do really constitute an effective means of pushing the claims of labor. The heads of the syndicates, whether or not they are 'freely' elected by labor, hold office only at the pleasure of the government."

LIVING STANDARD CUT

Again dealing with the basic question as to whether Fascism pays dividends to the Italian people, Fortune says:

"The long established poverty of the Italian masses has been emphasized elsewhere. It is a poverty that only the natural buoyancy of the Italians prevents from being insufferable. Like the Japanese, the Italians have for centuries been used to living on next-to-nothing with a smile. In recent years next-to-nothing has been reduced. The average wage of Italian agricultural and industrial workers has fallen perhaps 25 per cent in the last five years. The last published figure is 1.5 lire (eight cents) per hour. The masses are struck at every turn by the indirect tax policy of the state.

"Unemployment has been slowly increasing, with a January official estimate of 1,160,000. The standard of living of Italian labor has been estimated as the lowest of any country of Europe. An indication of the effects of Fascist economy on middle class levels is provided by the gradual increase of bankruptcies from 1,800 in 1921 to 14,000 in 1933. The conclusions seems inescapable that if Fascism has paid dividends to the Italian people, they have been paid in the coinage of patriotic excitement. The Italian people manifestly have a stoic zeal for the strong, exacting Fascst regime. But the cash rewards for their zeal are not apparent. Fascism has paid its people no cash dividends. And whether it will, no man can say."

Of course, in the last five years the problems of Fascism have been complicated by international depression.

Mussolini has played the role in this period of an arch deflationist.

Certainly there is nothing yet in the Italian experience to warrant Americans to turn from its democratic system, which has paid enormous dividends through the years.

Philippine Sugar Glut Threatened

MANILA, P. I., June 26.—(AP.) Serious overproduction of sugar next year faces Philippine planters, Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy warned today.

Growers, he said, are extensively over-planting the 1934-35 crop, "which, if milled, would yield two to three times the quantity of sugar we can dispose of in the states in 1935. It is essential that milling be limited to the amounts available under allocation in 1935."

Eastman Launches 'Allowance' Probe

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Concentrated and vigorous prosecution of the federal co-ordinator of transportation's investigation into railroad practices in granting allowances, accessorial services, etc., which tend to reduce net earnings, was launched by the co-ordinator with the appointment of C. E. Bell as executive and traffic assistant. Mr. Bell was formerly railway adviser to the Turkish government.

Daily Oil Output Up 14,767 Barrels

TULSA, June 26.—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States during the week ended June 23 totaled 2,676,422 barrels, an increase of 14,767 barrels daily over the preceding week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

Reserve Heads Study Direct Loan Plan

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Regulations will be issued shortly—possibly late today—pertaining to direct loans by the Federal Reserve banks to commercial and industrial corporations.

Governors and agents of the Federal Reserve banks continued their conference with the Reserve Board concerning the direct loan regulations and to formulate a policy under the stock exchange control act.

Eugene R. Black, governor of the board, will confer with Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, which also has been authorized by law to make direct industrial loans. The plan is to co-ordinate the loans system in order to get the best possible results in attaining re-employment of those out of work.

In general the loans by the Federal Reserve banks and RFC will be on the same basis. The law provides that these loans must be "fully and adequately secured." Both organizations emphasized that initial consideration will be given to loans to small industry since it is the opinion that the big industries are adequately financed or have no difficulty in meeting their financial requirements.

Direct loans to industrial concerns by the Federal Reserve banks probably will be made within the next few weeks.

No action on regulations pertaining to the stock control act is expected before September since Black said the board does not have to act before October 1.

Concerning

LOANS

THERE has been criticism against all Banks because it is claimed they are failing to make loans as freely as they should.

The facts are these:

1. All but a small fraction of the money which any bank has to lend belongs to its depositors—not to itself.

2. Many loan applications are to pay for past mistakes and misfortunes, which the bank cannot underwrite without jeopardy to the safety of its depositors.

3. Personal honesty and willingness to repay a loan, while essential, must be backed by ability of a prospective borrower to repay.

All of which are exactly the same factors which any individual would consider if he were called upon to lend his own money.

Girl in the Family

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XX.

"There's a fire in here. Won't you come in for a minute? I want to talk to you." Susan turned toward the parlor and he followed her.

"Let's close the door. They're all asleep upstairs." By the mercy of Providence none of the sleepers had been disturbed by the opening and closing of the doors and the tom-tom of the storm. There was not a sound from the upper regions of the house.

"I wanted to ask you not to lock the side door tonight," she said. "Anna's gone out to a party, and just before dinner she called up to tell me that she's lost her key—the key to the back door. I told her I'd see to it that the side door was left unlocked for her."

When she finished there was a little silence broken by the faint noise of the fire.

Then Allen spoke. "Is that all you wanted to say to me?" he asked.

"Yes," she answered after a moment. "I didn't want my uncle to hear me tell you about it. He's always angry when he has to get up to let Anna in . . . Don't you want to hang your overcoat over a chair? It's dripping."

He shook his head.

"I think the best thing I could do would be to go upstairs and get out of all this wet stuff," he said. But he made no move to go. He stood, with his wet hat in his hand, looking at her.

Both Declare Love

"Susan," he said, using her name for the first time. "Susan—is that really everything that you wanted to say?" His voice was very low.

"Yes," said Susan and her own voice went thick in her throat.

She saw him shake his head, and her heart made an odd and startling movement as if it had dropped an inch or two in her breast. There came an aching swelling feeling in her throat and she was afraid that she was going to cry.

"You feel toward me the way I feel toward you. You wanted to talk to me, didn't you?—Just as I want to talk to you."

Susan's throat tightened still more. "You don't—you couldn't," she said. "How could you know it?" And then she was in his arms.

She never knew whether he came closer or whether she took a tiny step toward him and into his arms. But there she was, with her head pressed back against the shoulder of his sodden coat and his wet face on hers.

"How did I know it? How do we know anything?" Allen said to her presently when they were sitting close to the fire, on the hearthrug, their arms around each others' shoulders, their faces pressed together. "I knew I felt this way about you that first night when you looked at me in the mirror upstairs. I could hardly get myself out of the house. I wanted to stay right up in that room and find out all about you—whether you were engaged or in love, or even married. That awful thought crossed my mind—Susan, you don't think I'd have stayed in a house where I have to use the side door, like a chauffeur, if I hadn't fallen for you, do you?"

Susan turned in the curve of his arm and looked at him. "Any sane person would tell us that this is infatuation pure and simple, Allen. We've known each other for 15 or 16 days—barely know each other at all. We don't know anything about each other. We haven't talked to each other for half an hour all told—Anyone would tell us that love just doesn't pop into being like this, all at once."

Draws Her Closer

His arm drew her closer to him. "Ours did, though. No getting away from it. And what is there that you think you ought to know about me? I've told you I'm a deputy clerk at the Courthouse, haven't I, and that I'm studying law? In a few months I'm to take the bar examinations, and after that I'll be a full-fledged lawyer, ready to support my wife if she'll be poor for a time and not mind it."

He added, "You see, I've been thinking of our future."

"But what about Wallace Steffen, the man I'm engaged to? He thinks I'm going to marry him in a few months." Susan's ring glittered in the firelight, and the jewels in it shone at her like accusing eyes.

"You'll have to tell him you aren't going to marry him, won't you? That's the only thing to do, if you're as sure as I am that this isn't infatuation at all, but the real McCoy.

They were silent for a minute after that, and in the silence they heard the iron gate clang at the foot of the walk. Someone began to whistle outside.

"That's John!" said Susan, getting up from the rug.

"I'm going upstairs before he comes in. Where will you meet me tomorrow, Susan? Tell me quickly."

"The Public Library, downtown," said Susan quickly. "Four o'clock all right for you?—You'd better take a hot bath as soon as you get upstairs. I shouldn't have stopped you when you came in. If you have pneumonia it will be my fault."

Wallace never would have let her stop him, she reflected a half hour later as she lay in bed watching the tossing shadows of the elm tree on the wall of her room. He would have hurried straight upstairs to get out of his wet clothing and would have taken some kind of cold tablets, along with the hot bath, just to be on the safe side. . . . Wallace with his foot warmer and his overshoes, his muffler and his Scotch plaid automobile robe, his conventional carefully-planned life. Wallace, who was to be her whole future unless she broke her engagement—

Didn't Love Wallace

A future without love in it was no future at all. She saw that clearly now that she knew what love was. A strong thing that came along and swept you off your feet like a gale.

She had no love at all for Wallace. She never had had any. Nothing but liking mixed with the feeling that she ought to marry somebody because most girl in their twenties did get married.

Some time during the night she was roused from her sleep by the sound of voices in the hall outside her door—Anna's and Uncle Worthy's. She sat up in bed and listened. They kept on for a minute or two, but she could not make out what they were saying.

Uncle Worthy came into the dining room a little before half past eight the next morning. He picked up the morning paper that lay at his plate and read its first page headlines aloud to the rest of the family as usual, keeping one eye on the clock as he read. At half past eight he asked Aunt Edna to ring the bell for Anna.

"Out until 4 o'clock in the morning! Of course she can't have breakfast ready on time! She won't last long in her next place if she keeps up this business of going out to dance every two or three nights," he predicted darkly. "Ring that bell again, Edna."

Aunt Edna rang it again. It sounded through the house, loud and angry.

In another minute Anna came in bringing the covered toast dish. She looked as if she were sleepy and her hair still lay in the shallow waves that she had put in it the day before with steel curlers.

Anna Discharged

"You didn't hear Mrs. Broderick ring for you several minutes ago?" Uncle Worthy boomed at her.

"No, sir." She shook her head. "Not until just now, Mr. Broderick." She uncovered her dish and offered him the toast. No one could make toast like Anna. Crisp and golden brown outside and soft inside, melting with butter.

Uncle Worthy took a piece of it as if he were doing her a favor. He cleared his throat and leaned back in his chair so that he could look up at her. "Anna, I have a most unpleasant duty to perform this morning," he said. "You were out until four o'clock. You woke me and Mrs. Broderick from a sound sleep by snapping electric lights on and off all over the house."

"Was dark," Anna explained meekly.

Uncle Worthy paid no attention to that. "Sunday night you were out until half past one. I had to get up and let you in because you had forgotten your key," he went on in his heavy way. "You're always forgetting to take it, and you're out late too many nights every week. Your work suffers, Anna." He tapped the table smartly with his short thick fingers. The nails, too long for a man's hand, clicked on the mahogany.

"I go by the Scandinavian Hall or by Herbst's house, and never no other place." Anna frowned at him in complete bewilderment. "I been go there for nine or ten years, Mr. Broderick. No one ever say before that I should not."

"No, we've never spoken to you about it before, Anna. But we've noticed it, and we're very tired of it. We think you've come to the end of your usefulness in this house. For that reason—and for two or three other good and sufficient ones—we are letting you go." He took an envelope from the pocket of his housecoat. "Here are your wages for a week and a letter of recommendation that Mrs. Broderick wrote for you yesterday afternoon. You're free to go any time after lunch."

Anna looked at the letter. "You make up that I should go yesterday afternoon yet?" she asked, setting the toast dish on the table as if it had suddenly become too heavy for her to hold. Her big capable work-reddened hands were shaking.

"Anna," he said to her, "you're free to go at any time, just as I said. But if you'd like to stay on here until you find another place you may."

The maid's throat moved as she gulped. "Thank you. Better I go pretty soon, I think," she said and began to back away from the table. "Maybe I stay to help Susan get Sunday dinner."

"Miss Susan." The pantry door closed noiselessly upon her.

"I don't know how you could do a thing like that!" Susan exclaimed. "Why, Uncle Worthy, it was bad enough to discharge her without notice after all these years—but to let her think that you were doing it because she stayed out late a few times—If that wasn't the most—" Words failed her at last.

Her uncle took off his glasses and began to polish them with an old silk handkerchief that he carried for the purpose. Without them his eyes always looked small, and this morning there were great dark puffy circles under them. "Would you like to tell her the truth? Are you sure of that?" he asked with an air of great patience and wisdom. "Because the truth is that your father has borrowed more than a thousand dollars from this family's income during the past year, and because of that we can't pay her her wages any longer . . . Those are the facts of the case. Would you still like me to give them to a servant?"

With that he unfolded the second section of the morning paper. A small smile played around his lips and he began to hum "Pop Goes the Weasel" to himself.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Can you invent a new game, fellows?

Almost all the games we play today are games that somebody else invented. And many games are changing all the time. For instance, we have new rules for basketball and football almost every year.

Baseball is called the great American game. Only a few boys and men played it at first, but gradually more and more played, until now it is one of the most popular games known.

And it is the same with games you play with cards. Somebody is always thinking up some new way to play with them. Or else they are rediscovering one of the popular old ways that everybody had forgotten.

Maybe some Junior Patrol member can think of a new game just for Junior Patrol members to play. Anyway, if a Junior Patrol member does invent a new game, we hope he lets us know. We'll try to pass it on to all the members through the Mail Box.

The Fourth of July is only a few days away now. And we know what a lot of fun all fellows have setting off firecrackers.

Well, we think that Junior Patrol members can set off firecrackers safely if they want to. But you know how so many fellows, and girls, too, get burned, often severely, playing with firecrackers. We're asking every Junior Patrol member to be extra careful. Don't light firecrackers while you hold them in your hand. Put them off in a safe place. Don't throw firecrackers at your playmates. Nor torpedoes.

Many boys and girls have had their eyes put out by gravel from torpedoes or sparks from a firecracker. Don't take a chance, fellows. Make this year's Fourth sane and safe all the way through. No amount of fun and danger can pay for a lost eye. You can't buy eyes.

Gunpowder burns are also dangerous because they may lead to tetenus (lockjaw). If you are burned, fellows, be sure to use an antiseptic and consult a doctor.

Daily Short Short-Story

By KENNETH MACAULAY

He looked like a tramp. His clothes were shiny, baggy, needy, his hat was battered, and his shoes had opened along the seams. His face had not felt the bracing influence of a razor for many days, his hair was shaggy and untrimmed. For a moment he looked reflectively at the two Ionic pillars flanking the Colonial door, rubbing a hand over the stubble of his beard, and making an attempt to polish his shoes by rubbing them on his trouser cuffs. In spite of all that had happened he wished someone else would do the job.

Finally, summoning courage, he straightened his shoulders with an effort and adjusted his threadbare clothing to some semblance of order. With a shuffling, halting gait, he walked up to the door and lifted the brass knocker. Before he let it fall he glanced at the brightly polished nameplate.

"T. Hollingsworth Milrace," he read aloud, his pleasant brown eyes suddenly filling with loathing and his face clouding. How many ugly memories that name recalled! How many forgotten heartaches it awakened!

He wasn't prepared for the shock when the door opened. The woman who stood in the doorway was elderly and prematurely gray. Time had not touched her lightly.

"What do you want?" she demanded harshly.

He scanned her lined and haggard face. She looked at him coldly, disdainfully.

Her turquoise-blue eyes, which he had recollected for years as beautiful and soft, seemed hard and cruel now. Her face was heavily powdered, her cheeks had a deep artificial color.

"You don't remember me, I guess," he ventured, smiling ironically. "I used to be your husband."

"Dick! Dick Trent! You're not going to——"

She drew her breath in sharply.

"Fifteen years in jail," he continued, "gives you plenty of time for reflection, especially when you know why and how you came to be there. I've thought a lot—don't try to close the door—about many things, you and your husband in particular. I wished a great many times that my aim hadn't been so bad when I found him in my house. I wished that I could have settled both of you once and for all!"

For a moment his eyes flashed savagely and almost as quickly the light died out. His spirit was broken. He continued calmly:

"When I remembered how both of you had me sent to prison for attempted homicide, I could have done almost anything. But that's all over now. I've found that time solves most of our problems."

"You mean you'll let bygones be bygones?"

"It wouldn't do me any good to rake them up again."

"And you don't hate me?"

"No, I'm beyond that. For a time I despised you, but when I come to think of it now, I don't blame you for wanting the beautiful and expensive things I couldn't afford to give you and which a wealthy man like Milrace could. Your nature wouldn't let you think of life in any other way. No, Claire, although you ruined me, I don't bear you any grudge. In fact, I came up here about something entirely different."

Her eyes narrowed to slits that gave her a crafty, feline expression and her face seemed to freeze. She folded her arms slowly.

"Just what did you come for?" she demanded.

"It's rather hard to bring it up," he said slowly, "and if I weren't absolutely obliged to, I would never have bothered you. It has to do with, well . . . you see, you married a man with money and . . ."

"So it's about money?" she asked in a flat voice.

"In a way, yes."

She pushed the door slightly.

"I haven't any to give you, I'm sorry, Dick."

"You mean you'd send me away without anything, after all that's happened? Surely, now—"

"I can't help it," she interrupted curtly. "If you haven't enough backbone to better yourself, you can't expect me to help you. It's your own fault."

Trent smiled.

"Do you know, I expected you'd say that. But I didn't come to get any from you. I came to give you this."

And he handed her a sheet of paper.

"What's that?" she asked.

"A dispossess notice from the landlord. He says that you're not to touch any of the furniture. The gas and electricity will be shut off today for nonpayment."

WORLD OF SPORTS

Judging from press dispatches, it is news when a presiding officer in the Senate falls fast asleep in the chair.

And all the time we thought it was the other way around.

It would certainly take a lot of space if the correspondents started sending out news stories every time a Senator talked in his sleep.

(Los Angeles Paper.)

Miss Margaret Parker of the probation office drew applause when she expressed the hope that policewomen will soon be stationed at all interurban depots, beaches and other public places.

What I always say," remarks Genevieve, the kitchen cynic, "is that we're getting enough realism in books, these days, without having it in life."

This is Zibloski Slobski, heavyweight wrestler, who will be sold for lard if his manager can find a buyer. Despite repeated warnings, Slobski has persistently refused to gouge out his opponents' eyes, butt them in the stomach or tear off their ears. After 15 minutes of such sentimental nonsense during his last bout the referee stopped the match and disqualified the pachyderm for cruel and inhuman treatment of the customers.

SO WHAT WITH ONE THING AND ANOTHER

(Of Course It's From the Lamar, Missouri, Democrat).

There's been a good deal of discussion about the score between Lamar and Webb City, at the ball game, Sunday. Some claimed it was 16 to 3 for Webb City. Others insisted that Lamar threw her score book away. It was the first game after the re-organized bigger and better Redbirds. However, there were those who insisted that the birds didn't know they were going to play ball. Anyway they didn't play.

Bally Bain said for one thing he was depending on a short-stop from Nevada, who used to play with the K. C. Blues. But he wasn't here. Some said he started to drive to Lamar in his Cadillac. Others declared he took down sick. Sam Miller was supposed to be here to play. He was, but he played with Webb City. Dalton, usually a crack second baseman, let 'em go through him, until he came to the bench in sheer disgust. Farmer, Lamar third baseman, struck at a ball that was so wild, that the umps went ahead and just called it a ball instead of a strike.

Bombarding the Suburbs

Golf is again in the driver's seat and divoteers have settled down to steady production.

After reading the cabled reports of the terrific slamming at Prestwick every golfer has discarded his last season's form and is going in for distance.

There are no more neat parabolas or scientific approaching. Neither is there any more ornamental iron work.

Like an escaped wild cat the golfer has gone to his woods.

The first one boasts, "I got 300 yards on that ninth hole. The hole is only 80 yards from stem to stern. But, I just did it to have a surplus for a rainy day."

The other adult marble champion says, "That's nothing. On the fifteenth I wound up like a catapult, let go, and knocked that insulated onion 18 miles. That drive would have been out of bounds on the Sahara Desert. Any time I step up to that bouncing plum I get to consult the Canadian weather maps four drift and wind. I knock those pills right out of local climatic conditions."

All this terrific swinging is resulting in wrists like candy pullers and forearms like Jack Dempsey. The boys are getting muscular and robust. Caddies are wearing bullet-proof vests.

A foursome gets to the putting green at the twelfth and finds 1,680 balls there before them. The new long smackers don't ask permission to go through any more. They just shoot through twosomes, tunnel under threesomes and bank over foursomes.

The caddies perch a mile away in trees. They are equipped with spyglasses. The golfer calls him up on the field telephone system and asks, "Where did that one go?"

The caddy replies, "I don't know."

The golfer says, "I'm getting better."

If he can swipe them where they ain't he boasts of being the Willie Keeler of golf. That's something but it is dangerous. No wise tourist drives by a golf club with his top down. The whole thing is indirect fire and the object is demolition.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Mr. Middle-aged Man, be a bit careful how you start your favorite outdoor sport.

You may have been a rugged old machine in your younger days.

You still have much of the old spirit—too much, if it is not controlled by good sense.

You derive much satisfaction from the fact that you are better preserved than most men at your age.

In some instances this may not be true—you merely take chances that are foolhardy for men of your physical strength.

But you feel good and are rarin' to go.

And usually these men were believed to have been strong physically.

A New Constitution

Pennsylvania State Bar Association Plans to Adopt Resolutions Calling for Redraft

The Pennsylvania State Bar Association at its annual convention at Wernersville is expected to adopt resolutions calling for redrafting of the state constitution, and to press for action by the Legislature for the call of a constitutional convention. The bar can become a most potent force in this direction, not only by its indirect influence, but because of the number of its members who are elected to the Legislature and have the right of direct vote.

Lawyers, through actual experience, have seen the barriers which can be erected to sensible and economical government through the force of any out-dated constitution. They realize the confusion, complication and duplication of government which is constantly growing.

Some of these objectionable features could be cured by amendments, but that would be little more than a patchwork and require a long period of time. The real remedy is a complete revision of the constitution along lines of modern necessities. Some of the changes the Bar Association would make, notably an abandonment of the direct primary and a return to the convention system of nominating political candidates, will not find favor with progressives. They recall the abuses of the old days too well.

The important consideration, however, is that the bar seems determined to work for constitutional revision. Once that opportunity is offered, it will be up to common sense to write and offer to the people a new and acceptable framework of government.

Science and Pittsburgh

City Is Becoming Focal Point for Nation's Scientific Developement

This is being brought to public attention by the fact that the annual meeting of the American Association for Advancement of Science will be held here from December 27 to January 4.

A feature of the conference will be an exhibition of the progress of science in industry to be shown in the Mellon Institute's new building.

Pittsburgh's importance to the scientific world has been demonstrated in the past by the excellent work of the Mellon Institute as well as that of research departments of individual organizations such as the Aluminum Company of America, which only a few years ago completed its magnificent research laboratory at New Kensington.

The International Conferences on Bituminous Coal have foreshadowed many of the developments which are revolutionizing industrial practices today.

In the realm of scientific knowledge, the Carnegie Institute has played an outstanding part and Pittsburgh's technical schools have sent graduates to all parts of the world.

Liquor Stores

State's System Not Perfect But It Provides Best Solution So Far Advanced

This is pretty hot weather even to talk about liquor, beer being more appropriate for those who are attracted to beverages with some alcoholic content.

But the state's liquor stores are open summer and winter, and experience with their operation is a continuous topic.

Clyde E. Smith, the state's director of licensing and enforcement, who has just attended a national convention of officials engaged in the administration of liquor laws, says that an interchange of opinion led Pennsylvanians to the conclusion that their law and system are working better than those in any other state. While the Pennsylvania officials may be to an extent prejudiced, their sentiment is important in view of the expected drive against the state stores in the next Legislature.

Only the action of Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence prevented the last Democratic convention from adopting a plank criticising the state stores. Mr. Lawrence wisely held that the stores were entitled to a longer test before being condemned.

In Philadelphia active Republicans condemn the stores, and their retention or discontinuance is certain to be an issue in many legislative campaigns. The main charge against the stores is the price of the commodity sold, higher than before prohibition. That is a condition which may eventually cure itself, and already there is a downward trend in prices. It is doubtful if lower prices would prevail under any other system.

There is much maudlin talk about how fine was the old system under the Brooks high license law. That system aided the era of prohibition, was no more satisfactory in establishing temperance than the state stores, opened the way for lucrative fees for lawyers, and was suspected of being enjoyed by some judges in the old days.

It may be that no completely satisfactory way of dealing with liquor will be found, now that its sale is legal. But the state stores, so far as Pittsburgh is concerned, are working out in a reasonably satisfactory manner.

The Foulois Case

Army Air Chief Is Entitled to Presumption Of Innocence Until Proven Guilty.

Secretary Dern has refused to comply with the demand of a congressional sub-committee that he immediately remove from office the chief of the Army Air Corps—Major General Benjamin D. Foulois, U. S. A.—charged by this subcommittee with serious offenses.

Instead of complying with this demand, for which there was no authority in law, Secretary Dern has referred the charges to General Foulois for comment.

If the General requests the appointment of a court of inquiry, the probability is that Secretary Dern will accede to his request, the lawless demand of a congressional subcommittee to the contrary notwithstanding.

It is heartening to have this evidence that there is in the cabinet of the President a Secretary of War who "puts the cause above renown." The cause is the cause of justice for every American under the flag.

Under the American system of government, a man is entitled to a presumption of innocence until he is proven guilty by due process of law. He is entitled to his day in court before judgment is passed upon him and punishment inflicted. A government that denies, even to its humblest citizen, this presumption of innocence, this day in court, is not the government established by the framers of the Federal Constitution.

A government guilty of such a denial is no longer a government by law. It has degenerated into a government by lawlessness.

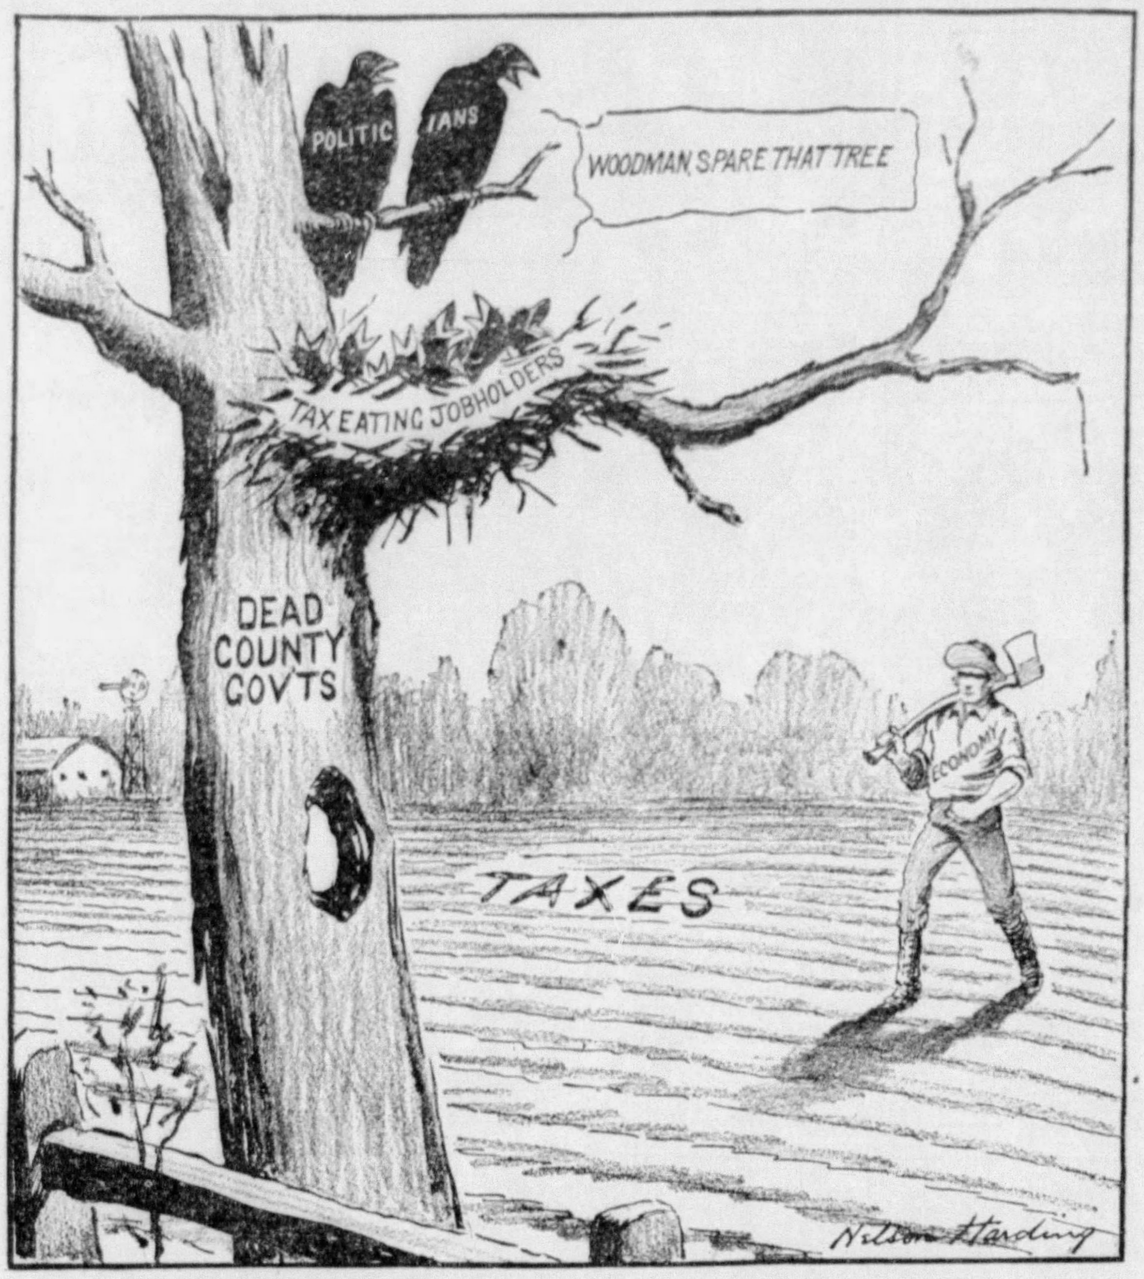
Crows Nest

By Nelson Harding



The old dead tree provides a place
For crows to snugly nest
Resides the farmers pest.

But now these raiders of the fields
Are croaking dismally
His eye upon that tree.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 26.—Grover Whalen has jugged the distinction of being the town's most skillful host. His long training in the role of official greeter to the celebrity visitors during Jimmy Walker's reign honed him for such a role. Mayor La Guardia now calls him to handle big stuff—like the fleet arrival.

Almost every 24 hours in the old days he donned silk hat and frock coat, kept at his office, to go down the bay in a tug or head a delegation inside the gates at the two big railroad terminals. He could not only create a rosy glow of welcome, but snip the red tape that often entangles foreigners.

He has carried the same excess of detail-removing talent into his private life and entertaining. His luncheons, teas and dinners at his Dobbs Ferry estate are like precise moving picture productions. His servants have been regimented and trained like a small army.

Guests departing find their wraps extended without the usual bother, their cars with doors open are awaiting in the carraige way. Not a second lost and everything is clock-works. Even beyond the final gates out-riders on motorcycles see that each guest takes the proper turnings.

Diamond Jim Brady, with his private dinner parties, was once considered the town's ablest host. He had one inflexible rule. Violators thereof were never asked again. Guests at his 8 o'clock dinners were expected to be gone at midnight. An unwritten law. He knew such gatherings have a habit of dying on the vine. Getting rid of dinner guests is an art salvaged only from experience. Anyone can invite them. The most sought-after diners out invariably depart early. Irvin Cobb's limit is 11. Kathleen Norris and Fannie Hurst at 10. Frank Crowninshield 10:30.

The notorious Count de Sade, whose peccadillos inspired the word sadism, over the entrance to his Paris salle a manager had this abrupt description in French: "The most agreeable dinner party ends with the last bite of the final course." The modern cafeteria long ago grabbed that idea with their furious eat-and-run policy.

A few weeks away stresses the continued disintegration of Thirty-fourth street as a shopping center. There are still smart shops and grand stores left, but much of the thoroughfare has become gimcracky. The decadence streaks more heavy shadows in the encircling gloom of what seems at the moment to surround the world's biggest building blunder—the Empire spire. Yet I recall that only a few months ago the Waldorf faced predictions of similar doom. Today most of its store space is rented and every floor is open. The ginger bread fronted Ansonia was for 10 years dubbed Stokes' Folly, yet later paid handsomely. The winds of real estate, like those of chance, are variable. One guess is good as another in what is an eternal game of guessing.

They were talking of the trigger-minded Gilbert White, the painter, whose shoulder hair and aquiline features suggest a pagan W. J. Bryan. There was that large pre-repeal evening he landed from his Paris boat near midnight. In the humor of the moment he decided to drop in at Texas Guinan's merry making. There had been a great military ball that evening and quite a number in full uniform were taking advantage of a night out to see the scantily dressed coryphees caper. Just as the orchestra drums rolled the picturesque White arrived. He gazed at the strange regimented splendor of the military, then at the semi-nudes grouped to rush in. And holding a hand aloft, shouted in a clear, ringing voice: "Don't shoot, boys, until you see the whites of their thighs!"

John Farrar proves the poet is not always the dreamer and may be a force in the business world. The publishing house, launched by him and Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart's son Stanley, has been a sensation during the worst period of slack ever known. "Anthony Adverse" is only one of the many best sellers put out. Farrar is scouting genius of the duo, with Rinehart alert for promotion effects. I have heard the original backer of the whirlwind pair was the copper magnate, Messmore Kendall.

LISTEN, WORLD

The Big Jobs Aren't 'Done Under Inspiration'

"How," she gushes, "do you manage to have a daily insiration?"

The answer is, lady—I don't.

Yes, I know, you "thought all writers worked under inspiration." I thought that too—once. Nor did I limit that notion to writers. I was sure that all good work must be done "under inspiration"—That, indeed, was the test of a job . . . did or didn't you burn and beam when you tackled it? If you didn't— it obviously wasn't the right job for you. And the sooner you dropped it the better.

Equipped with this pleasing theory, I advanced upon life—and rebounded practically immediately!

Wasn't there anything nice to do? There was, indeed. But, for reason, it never stayed nice after I started doing it?

For days before I began I'd be Simply Wild with enthusiasm. I'd spend hours making the most elaborate preparations . . . indulging in the most delicious dreams. At last, I'd start! And continue at fever heat—maybe a day; maybe a week. Then suddenly everything would go blooey, just like a punctured balloon, and I'd find myself cold as a clam, surveying my chosen task with utter loathing.

Well—maybe the next time. But the next time it was exactly the same. Nor were there any exceptions. It didn't matter upon WHAT or WHOM I set my heart, I couldn't make it stick. Marrying. Setting Up Housekeeping. Having a husband and a baby. Sewing. Cooking. Meeting New Friends. Gardening. Raising Gold Fish. Putting Up Preserves. Writing. Working in a store. Digging in a mine. They all started Gorgeously—and ended Ga-Ga.

Whereupon I'd get frightfully cynical and melancholy, and think how cruelly life was treating me . . . what a Great Soul was being wasted . . . and what a Marvelous Career I could have if I only could find the Right Thing To Do.

From bitterness and self-pity, I'd proceed rapidly to anger. For obviously, if I wasn't getting the breaks, Someone Else was to blame! It certainly wasn't MY fault. Heaven knows, I was simply burning up with enthusiasm, but I never could get any co-operation. Someone was always hindering or discouraging me. Someone was always keeping me from getting the breaks.

So the years went on—with me waiting in vain for the Big Blaze to happen. However, you can't go on like that forever unless you're a complete idiot. So presently I began to get a little sense.

I noticed that a lot of work was being accomplished by a lot of people. Were they working under "inspiration?" They weren't. To the contrary, they were plainly bored, peeved, downright rebellious. Yet they plugged right along and produced the goods. So what?

Was that the way life really was? Was this "inspiration" theory just one of those kid dreams we drag along into maturity? Evidently it was! Then the thing that bothered me wasn't Baffled Genius, after all—but just a baby hangover!

How do I manage to work without a Daily Inspiration? That's how, sister. There's no such thing as Daily Inspiration for anybody. There's no such thing as finding any job that'll thrill you all the time, or even fifty per cent of the time. Flashes of Great Vision, alluring as they seem in theory, are actually about as rare as two-headed calves.

And that goes for all jobs and all workers, regardless. It's as true of the poet as it is of the plumber or the plough hand.

CODE FOR LOVE

By Winifred Black

WELL, WELL, good Sir Reverend, so you have a new code which you're going to put into effect when people come and ask you to marry them?

You won't marry any couple who cannot prove to you that each of them understands thoroughly not only the physiology of marriage, but the psychology of marriage, too.

Quite a job you've cut out for yourself, haven't you?

Don't you realize, dear pastor, that the average couple never even heard the word psychology?

A lot of love, a little common sense, a little tolerance, a little understanding, a little sacrifice and a great deal of romance—these are the things that make a happy marriage.

Not beauty, not genius, not even talent, and money and social position the very least of all.

Love is as natural as sunshine, and marriage is is natural as the rise of the moon on a summer's night.

When John sees Mary standing in the moonlight by the garden gate he doesn't want any professor to tell him what to say or what to do.

And as for little Mary, she's just as much of a woman as her grandmother was—if you professors will only give her half a chance.

Why, love is the one thing on earth that makes life worth living.

Oh, you can grin all you want to, but it's true just the same. The stupidest lump of a plow boy is wiser than you, with all your "ologies"—when he is fool enough to fall in love with the milk maid, so deeply in love that he can't work and can't sleep and can't eat—not till he has told the milk maid all about it, and heard what she has to say.

Wise—we poor stammering, stuttering, doubting, fearing ancients who try to pretend that love is just a joke; why, what poor, deluded fools we are.

It's all a part of the great plan of living—the world would stop short if it were not for love, and the folly of it, and the courage of it, and the wisdom of it, and the glorious, impractical nonsense of it.

Whisper, dear pastor—I'd rather be the little girl leaning out of the tenement window in the most crowded part of New York, leaning out to see if I could hear the footsteps of "my boy friend" than to be the bespectacled, scientific, cold-blooded, human fish that your theories and your new code make of every poor hapless young woman, that comes your way.

You're all right in your way, I suppose, dear pastor, but oh, what a dreary, dull, boresome world you'd like to make of it.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

ISN'T IT SO?

Century of Progress Exposition Shapes Design and Evolution of Coming Years.

By Edwin C. Hill

THAT ASTONISHING show at Chicago, which combines the visualized progress of scientific research with the stirring and amusing ballyhoo of Coney Island and the rural simplicity of a county fair is, after all, a great deal more than a show; as great a show as the Century of Progress Exposition is the most worthwhile show in the world for half a dollar.

For the Exposition gives us more than a hint of what the future will contribute to convenience, comfort and luxury; to hygiene and health; to man's eternal effort to get the better of Mother Nature. Its prevailing note is modernism, toned down somewhat from the flamboyancies with which the coming period was introduced, but distinctly modernism just the same.

No one can survey and study the Century of Progress Exposition without being struck by that salient fact. It is modern and it is throughly American. According to audit, 22,565,859 visited the Fair in 1933. The modern style of architecture and the dramatic presentation of color has recorded for 1933 an important change in the Arts.

Architects, artists and engineers worked conscientiously and long to give us a true expression of American modernism. It is not strange then, that since the opening of the Fair last year, many millions of persons have put their accumulated impressions to work on their immediate environment, the home.

Retail stores and manufacturers of building materials, household equipment and furnishings, report increasing sales of articles recently designed in the modern style. Only in the last year have industrial designers carried modern forms and colors successfully into mass production with frank exploitation of synthetic materials.

Man-Made Materials Provide Inspiration

THE MAN-MADE materials have furnished fresh inspiration to artist and industry alike who developed many labor and time-saving devices with character of their own. The last year has brought the streamline, not only to automobiles, but to trains, clothes and the small house. Those dozen or so very attractive small houses along the lake front present so many new ideas and innovations for comfortable living that it is impossible to list them. They have, however, collectively helped to make permanent heretofore feeble attempts to launch an American expression of modern architecture and house furnishing.

Too, they have helped us to determine the good from the bad in modernism. The chaste simplicity of the designs in general has put far behind us those flamboyant cabbage-roses of Paul Poiret, once considered very modishly modern. History points through all the great depressions that only the useful was considered beautiful, but in the upgrade to prosperity, luxuriousness and grace were desired as well.

We cannot forecast the future of our present expression of modernism, but it is safe to expect an evolution of curves and, extravagance. The long-desired wave of small home building should produce many modern style houses as room-form must be in step with the fast growing demand for modern furnishings.

It was appropriate that a distinguished architect, Harvey W. Corbett, one of Alfred P. Sloan's three hundred prophets of progress, should have used the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition as the forum for his prediction of what the modern, small home of the future will be: "a house more beautiful, more permanent, more varied in plan arrangement, erected and ready for occupancy within a week from the time the order is placed."

To Build Complete Houses for $2,000

AND A manufacturer, L. R. Smith, speaking from the same platform, on the same general subject of interest to so many millions, was even more specific in his confident prediction. For he promises a five-room house—equipped with every article of furniture, linen rugs, kitchen utensils—with a garage and lot,—with all improvements, such as sewers, pavements, sidewalks, lawns and trees, which can be sold to workingmen for $2,000, allowing adequate time-financing costs.

And modernism will have strong play in the office building of the next century, or perhaps of the next few years. For William R. Seigle visions an office building which will be a shell structure only, with fabricated interiors designed for the particular needs and wishes of the tenants. Young America likes and understands modern design. It has cultivated a taste for indirect lighting, for straight line and the vitality of color. Traditional styles hold less and less interest for the coming generation, as they represent the taste of a passing one.

Retail sales throughout the country reflect the acceptance of the modern style. During the past year approximately 7 per cent of all furniture and over 75 per cent of all household equipment, fabric and small articles sold were of recent modern design. The 1934 exhibits of arts and crafts present a high artistic standard, not only in the luxury class, but in articles for every-day use.

And, from the increasing daily attendance at the fair, next year an even greater number of people will be impressed with good American designs and will prefer to buy articles of good craftsmanship to inferior ones now available at the same prices.

President Faces Test Over Spoils System

By James T. Williams, Jr.

UPON HIS return to the federal city next week, President Roosevelt will find an opportunity awaiting him to suit the action of the appointing power to the word of his eloquent assurance to Yale University.

In his address at Yale following his acceptance of Yale's highest honor—the degree of doctor of laws which George Washington was the first President to receive and Mr. Roosevelt the fourth President while in office—he said:

"I am quite sure, in the minds of most of the leaders of the federal government, qualification from the standpoint of ability rather than from politics enters into most of the choices that are made. I couldn't tell you today the party affiliations of probably the majority of people holding responsible positions in Washington and it is a mighty good thing that I cannot."

Mr. Roosevelt was of course referring primarily to those positions which were filled before he entered the White House. He was not referring to the approximately 100,000 additional civil employes which have been added to the federal payroll since he entered the White House a year ago last March.

All except a very small minority of these nearly 100,000 newcomers to the federal payroll are Democrats who have been able to bring certificates of that fact from their local chairmen, their state chairmen, their national committeemen, and their senators and representatives in Congress, provided their congressional indorsers were Democrats.

President Under Great Pressure

CERTAILY NO President since Grover Cleveland has been under greater pressure from the spoilsmen of politics for federal patronage than that exerted upon the Roosevelt administration. Instead of extending the merit system, this pressure has resulted in a vast extension of the spoils system.

In fact, on the very day that President Roosevelt was giving to Yale University a sincere expression in eloquent language of the high ideals for the federal service which he cherishes, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who is chairman of the Democratic Committee of the State of New York and also Postmaster General, was having a great laugh in the federal city about what he calls the "natural death" which overtook Mr. Roosevelt's announcement early in his administration that he would press for legislation putting all postmasters under civil service.

When this announcement was made, it was indorsed by newspapers of both parties and by civil service supporters the country over. In fact, it was indorsed by Mr. Farley himself, but it seems to have ended with that indorsement. Mr. Farley never suited his action to the word by going to the support of a proposal which the country believed at the time, and the country will continue to believe, Mr. Roosevelt sponsored in the utmost seriousness and sincerity.

On the contrary, Mr. Farley has continued to retain his political chairmanships and finds them not at all embarrassing, apparently, to a "strictly business" administration of the postoffice department. In fact, on the very day that the President was championing before Yale University a vast extension of the merit system of making appointments to the federal service, Chairman Farley is reported to have been laughing heartily over the suggestion that he might resign his chairmanship and declining to bet on the question whether he might still be chairman in 1936.

It has long been an open secret in Washington that several members of the cabinet are strongly in favor of extending the merit system but have not been able to do much in this direction owing to the rigid rules enforced by the chairman of the Democratic National Committee regarding the filling of federal offices.

New Commissions Bring Test of Strength

THERE WILL be a new test of strength, however, between the cabinet supporters of the merit system and the spoilsmen of politics when the President announces his selections for the new commissions created by Congress. If he adheres to his Yale doctrine in the appointment to these commissions—the aviation commission, the communications commission, the labor board, the stock exchange control board and in other major appointments soon to be made—he will disregard the political recommendations of the chairman of the Democratic National Committee. He will turn a deaf ear to the spoilsmen of politics, in and out of the cabinet, and go to the support of the two or three members of his cabinet who have been making a uphill fight along the lines of President Roosevelt's eloquent address at Yale in condemnation of the spoils system.

As Governor of New York, Mr. Roosevelt aroused national enthusiasm in support of his advocacy of the merit system and of his condemnation of the spoils system. His enthusiastic supporters have not abandoned hope that the President he will ultimately live up his administration in defense of the merit system before the spoilsmen get control of the federal city.
